THE MOAT TAVERN, DONEGORE PARISH, "SEEKING INFORMATION"

was necessary for them to make new connections and in many instances in new territory. Andrew Taggart retired to his eldest son's home at Glenwherry.

The extravagant joy to which he and his late companions gave expression when King Charles was restored to the throne was soon tempered by the news that the King would enforce the obnoxious Uniformity Act in Ulster with great severity.

Public worship in Ireland was interrupted for a period of ten years by the Act of the King and the Covenanters were almost disfranchised. They could hold neither a civil nor a military office, and their marriage rites were declared invalid. Had not the King been persuaded by wise advisers to modify his conduct and grant more liberal statutes to the non-conformists the passion for emigration would have swept the north of Ireland clean at this period and bereft Ulster of her most enlightened and progressive population.

Andrew Taggart was a leader of the opposition resisting the atrocious Act of the King and stirring up the inhabitants of the Wherry and the Six Mile Water valleys. He lived to see the Act annulled but he remained a marked man in Ulster and a martyr to his civil and religious principals.

Of his several sons, John Taggart of Glenwherry was the most conspicuous. He was born in Donegore Parish, Taggartsland, County Antrim about 1630 and settled in the valley of the Wherry when he came of age. He lived through two terrible massacres; one in his youth, at which time he escaped with his parents to Carrickfergus Castle, and the other in 1688, when all his movable goods were carried away and his dwelling house and offices destroyed by bands of insurgents who swept through the valley, leaving it desolate and carrying into deadly effect their threat "to despoil and starve all those protestants who had escaped hanging."

The misfortunes that overtook the family of Taggart through several generations never quite submerged it, although its material prosperity, like that of many others in the north of Ireland, was brought low.

333–334. John Taggart of Glenwherry married Jannette, daughter of Patrick Allan of Ballyeaston, County Antrim, and died in 1706. Jannette Taggart died July 17, 1715. They are both buried in Donegore Churchyard near Donegore Moat, where the inscriptions on their gravestones were still legible in 1903.

F. John K. Taggart, secretary and clerk to his brother David Taggart in the Paymaster's Department of the Federal Army. He married Hannah, daughter of Dr. John Priestly.

G. Frank A. Taggart of the Pennsylvania Railroad lived at Philadelphia. He married, and had four children:

John Taggart
William Taggart
Joseph Taggart
Anna Taggart, married Mr. Christy.

Antrim, essentially Scottish, was settled alike by Highlanders and Lowlanders, and it is said "that about Ballymena the Irish language was never spoken." Kintyre, the nearest point to Ireland, is just thirteen miles from the Antrim coast.

Members of the old Ross and Taggart stock came down from time to time into the lowlands of Scotland, and William, the Earl of Ross of the Makintagart line, settled many in Galloway in 1292 when the king granted him the Sheriffdom[1] of Skye in Argyle.

The affiliations of the Taggart family with the lowland Scots give color to the claim that it had sojourned in Galloway[2] for some generations before returning to Ireland. Perhaps five hundred years had passed before the family returned to Ireland, whence it came. Here it spread over Antrim, giving names to several localities and towns. Taggartsland is a division of a county called a townland. It corresponds, although somewhat smaller in dimensions, with our township and includes several parishes.

A part of Donegore and Kilbride parishes, the ancient burial places of the Taggart family, is in Taggartsland. There is a Taggartstown near Randalstown and another[3] between Belfast and Antrim.

The first member of this branch of the Taggart family of whom we have record in Antrim was Thomas Taggart of the valley of the Six Mile Water, a stream that enters Lough Neagh near the town of Antrim. It pursues the same general course as the Wherry that, traversing the Glen or Glenwherry about ten miles distant, enters the Bann at Kells. Between

[2]On a farm at Plunton, where his ancestors had lived before him, there was born in 1799 John McTaggart, "known to all who belong to Galloway from old standing as the author of the Galloway Encyclopedia," published in 1824.

[3]The Rev. Bruce Taggart while traveling in Ireland on his wedding trip, tells of meeting a patriarch of his name living in an old stone mansion house at Taggartstown between Belfast and Antrim.

Patrick, who added greatly to the possessions of the family died without heirs of the body, bequeathing his entire landed estates to a distant cousin of the Wigton branch upon condition of his assuming the name of Cleland, thus founding the Rose-Cleland branch of the family.

His sisters were married, one to Mr. Henderson and the second to her first cousin, John Taggart of Glenwherry, son of Andrew Taggart, thus founding the Taggart-Clealand branch of the family in Antrim.

John Taggart had several children:

John Taggart, killed 1791
James Taggart
William Taggart
Joseph Taggart
Jane Taggart
Thomas Taggart.

The period at which the Antrim branch of the Taggart family came to Ireland is not definitely known. It may have come with the McDonalds, with which it was connected, or with the McDonnells when Donald Ballock[1] retired there after

[1]These families were affiliated by ties of blood and marriage.

John Mor, the Tanister or Thane, called Big John, was the second son of the Good John of Isla or The Isles and his second wife Margaret Stewart, daughter of King Robert II of Scotland (see Chart No. 17 on opposite page).

His grandfather, Angus Oig or Og, was the son of Angus Mor who died in 1292, and he in turn was the son of Donald, the son of Reginald, the son of Somerled, Lord of The Isles and King of Man. (Christina Makintagart married Olaus, King of Man, as his third wife.)

John Mor or Big John married Marjory, daughter of John Byset or Bisset of Ireland. He was killed in 1427. It was to his mother's, Marjory Byset's estates in Antrim, that Sir Ronald or Donald, commonly called Donald Ballock, retired as above. Donald married the daughter of Con O'Neill and died in 1476, leaving a son called Big John who married Sabina O'Neill, daughter of Felim, Earl of Tyrone, and in turn left a son, Sir John Maclan* the Cathenac (so called because he was fostered by the O'Cathans in Ulster), who, with four of his sons, was executed in Edinburgh. Maclan's wife, Sheila Savage, and two remaining sons, Alexander Maclan and Angus Ilach, fled to Ireland after an insurrection in which they were implicated. The king granted a pardon and in 1532 sent Angus with eight thousand fighting men to assist the Scots in Ireland against the English.

Sorlie Boy, a brother of James, was appointed by him Lord of the Route and the Glens in Antrim and, marrying Mary, daughter of Con O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, had a son Randal MacSorlie, first Earl of Antrim who had a grant of the Route and the Glens in 1603.

In the eighth century Somerled or Somhairle, a descendant of Colla Vais, King of Ireland, wrested Argyle, the Western Isles and Man from Norsemen who had seized them. The house of Somerled survives in two main branches: Macdonald of the Isles, of whom Alexander was raised to the peerage in 1776, and the Macdonnells, Earls of Antrim.

Angus Oig or Og was the great, great grandson of Somerled, King of Man. His daughter married William, the fifth Earl of Ross of the Makintagart line, and their daughter Margaret married Sir David Hamilton thus becoming the progenitor of the Hamilton-Clealand family and of the Clealand-Taggart family in Ireland.

This line of descent together with that of Hamilton, Clealand, Taggart are all compiled from pedigrees taken from Burke's Peerage, and that of Sir James Balfour Paul, Lion King of Arms edited in 1910 and the Cambridge Modern History, Vol. XIII, edited in 1911 which are among the best-known authorities extant.

*The king summoned Sir John Maclan the Cathenac to court under an Act of Parliament which reads: "Gif it like the king he may ger sumonde all and sindry his tenand at lauchfull day and place to schawe that chartis," under which act he was proclaimed a rebel and his title and estates confiscated.

William Kneland, it follows that this John was the eldest son of John of Poitiers.

William Kneland,[1] the sixth heir, was a man of education and given to hunting. He was a witness to a charter of the lands of Watson granted by James, Lord Hamilton, to Sir William Baillie of Hoprigg.

William Kneland, the seventh of that ilk, was married in 1462 to Jean Summerville, daughter of Sir William de Somerville, second Lord Somerville, and his wife Janet Mowatt, daughter of Sir John Mowatt of Stenhouse or Stannis. From this branch descended the various branches: Kneland of Faskine, Kneland of Monkland, Kneland of Cartness.

Alexander, the eighth of that ilk, a partisan of James IV of Scotland, killed at Flodden 1513. To a charter dated 1498 there was appended a seal of this Alexander upon which was a hare salient with a hunting horn about his neck, crest a falcon standing on a sinister hand ppr., supporters two greyhounds ppr., motto "Non Sibe." Under the Arms, "Je pense que pense plus."

James Kneland, the ninth of that ilk, was eminent in the time of King James V, whom he frequently attended at hunting. He married a daughter of Hepburn of Bonnytown who was a son of Patrick, Lord Halies, Earl of Bothwell. He was severely wounded at Solway Moss in 1542. He had several sons, among whom were Maj. William and Alexander the younger.

Maj. William Kneland, tenth of that ilk, was devoted to Queen Mary and suspected of being privy to the taking off of Darnley, as he and Arthur Kneland of Knownoblehill in the Parish of Shotts were accused in court as being connected with this affair, and, while the charge was unproven, it had a decided effect and influence upon the future of the family and may have been instrumental in splitting the family into fragmentary branches, each following its own ideas of spelling the family name.

Maj. William Kneland had several sons. Captain John,[2] a younger son, who received a coat of arms from Queen Mary adopted the sea as a profession.

William Cleland, eleventh of that ilk, and Alexander, his brother, sons of Maj. William, changed the spelling of the

[1]Burke probably confounds him with his son William.

I. Sir John Hamilton of Letterick and Bargeny, the acknowledged son of John Hamilton, first Marquis of Hamilton, was the devoted friend of Mary, Queen of Scots. It was to him that she gave her ring while on the scaffold. John was the son of Sir James Hamilton, third Lord Hamilton, second Earl of Arran, and first Duke of Chatelherault in France, and his wife Mary Douglas. Sir James Hamilton, seventh Lord Cadzow, second Lord Hamilton and first Earl of Arran by Janet Beatoun, niece of Carninal Beatoun, his third wife, was his father, who in turn was the son and heir of Sir James Hamilton, sixth Lord Cadzow and first Lord Hamilton and his wife the Princess Mary, daughter of James II of Scotland.[1]

[1]The foregoing line of descent is compiled from Burke's Peerage and The Peerage of Sir James Balfour Paul, Lion King of Arms.

Hamilton, sometimes called Walter Fitz-Gilbert (de Hamilton). In 1292 he swore fealty to Edward I of England and again in 1296. Edward gave him lands in Lanarkshire. He supported John Baliol in his claim to the Scottish crown and was rewarded by Edward II with the office of overlord of Scotland and governor of Bothwell Castle.

At the battle of Bannockburn he surrendered the castle to Robert Bruce and was granted lands in Clydesdale and West Lothian, and the Castle of Cadzow, the ancient royal residence of the kings of Scotland. The castle was dismantled during the Civil Wars in the reign of Mary, Queen of Scots, whom this branch of the Hamilton family supported with a generous zeal, suffering temporary obscurity and almost total ruin.

Sir Walter Hamilton continued faithful to the family of Bruce and for his services received the honors of knighthood as the first Lord Cadzow. He married Mary, daughter of Sir Adam de Gordon and left a son:

Sir David de Hamilton, second Lord Cadzow, also was faithful to Bruce. He followed King David in his incursions into the north of England, was captured at Durham in 1346, but was liberated upon payment of a ransom. He was one of the magnates of Scotia at Sconce in 1368, 1371 and 1373. He founded a chantry in the Cathedral of Glasgow.

He married, as above, Margaret, daughter of William, fifth Earl of Ross, who was fifth in descent from Ferchard Makintagart, first Earl of Ross.

Sir David and Margaret Ross Hamilton left three sons, the eldest of whom:

Sir David de Hamilton, third Lord Cadzow, received lands in Bothwell Muir from King Robert II of Scotland. He married Johanetta or Janet, third daughter and co-heiress of Sir William de Keith of Galston, and left one daughter and five sons, the eldest of whom:

Sir John Hamilton, fourth Lord Cadzow, married Janet, daughter of Sir James Douglas of Dalkieth, and left one daughter and three sons, the eldest of whom:

Sir James Hamilton, fifth Lord Cadzow, married Janet, daughter of Sir Alexander Livingston, and left five sons, the eldest of whom was:

Sir James Hamilton, sixth Lord Cadzow, who married the Princess Mary, daughter of James II of Scotland. He was created first Lord Hamilton, of whom hereafter.

clans or septs: namely, the Andrews, Andersons, Gillanders, MacTires, MacTears, MacTaggarts and Taggarts, the last two of which claim descent from Makintagart himself. In 1745 its numbers fell to five hundred, and two years later, when the Highlanders were forbidden to wear their native costume by an act of Parliament, many of its members went to the United States and Canada.

The pipe music of the clan is "Spaidsearchd Iarla Ros," its march the Earl of Rosses March and its badge the Juniper.

The ancient arms of Ross: Gu. three lions rampant, ar.

The crest: A hand holding a garland of laurel ppr.

The supporters: Two savages wreathed about the head and middle with laurel and holding clubs in their exterior hands, all ppr.

The motto: Spem successus alit.

Skene in his "Celtic Scotland" defines the meaning of clan as children or descendants, and the name implies that the members of it are or were supposed to be descended from a common ancestor or Eponymus, and distinguished from each other by their patronymics, the use of surnames being unknown among them.

After the acts of 1587, which were so inimicable to the interests of the clansmen, many spurious pedigrees and charters were compiled for the purpose of securing to them their ancient honors and estates. In these genealogies the clan generally chose for its progenitor a Norwegian, Dane, Norman or a member of a distinguished family who succeeded to the lands and titles through marriage with the daughter and heiress of the last of the old Celtic line, and the new form of the clan genealogy would more generally assume this feudal form of succession when the clan name was derived not from a personal name or patronymic but from a personal epithet of its founder; hence, so far as they profess to show the origin of the different clans, they are artificial and untrustworthy. But the older genealogies may be accepted as showing the descent of the clan from its eponymus and, within reasonable limits, for some generations beyond him, while the later spurious pedigrees must be rejected altogether. For instance, the clan Gregor from Gregory the Great is a clan, which, he says, sprang from Grip the Usurper.

As the line of descent is given in full under the family of Ross, we will give here the merest outline of the family down bidden. Celibacy did not become established until the first half of the twelfth century.

The rites of the abbacy were performed by ordained priests of different rank, the highest of which was the sacrificial priest who, by virtue of his office, was called the Sacerdos (a word which in time became corrupted as above into Sacred, and in the Gaelic to Sagart and Tagart).

In the seventh century Saint Maelruba[1] of Beaunchair (Bangor), Ireland went into Scotland and established a great religious house at Applecrossen on the west coast of Ross-shire. The domains of this monastery were very great and, together with the office of Abbot, were hereditary in the family of O'Beollan.[2]

Fearcher O'Beollan, Abbot of Beaunchair,[3] died in the year 878.

Murchadh O'Beollan,[4] Airchimeach of Drumcliff, died in 1053.

Maelmaedhog O'Beollan, Coarb[5] of Columbkill, Drumcliff, was illustrious for hospitality and was honored and venerated alike by the English and the Irish. He died in 1252.

Maelfinnen O'Beollan, Coarb of Drumcliff, died in 1254.

More, daughter of O'Boyle and wife of Auliffe O'Beollan, died in 1223.

Auliffe O'Beollan, evenagh[6] of Drumcliff, was a wise and learned man.

O'Beollan, sometimes called Ua O'Beollan and O'Boland, was coarb of Drumcliff in 1362. O'Beollan, coarb of Drumcliff, died in 1423.

O'Beollan was the hierarch[7] of Applecrossen, Ross-shire in 1144.

O'Beollan was the sacrificial priest of Applecrossen in 1179 and by some authorities is thought to be the founder of the families of Taggart and McTaggart in Scotland. Indeed he is said to be the very Gille Andrias[8] himself whence the clan Ross got its name.

[1]Maelrubha, Abbot of Beaunchair, went to Alba (Scotland) and founded the church of Applecrossen in 671, where he died Apr. 21, 721, aged 80 years, 3 months.

[2]The O'Beollan's, a priestly house of Ireland, are said to be descendants of Milesius of Spain.

THE TAGGART FAMILY

THE name Taggart is a modern form of the word Sagard, the Gaelic form of sacred, derived from sacerdos, which means a priest of sacrificial rank.

The ancient form of Sagard or Sagart appeared at the very dawn of Christianity in Ireland and Scotland, at that period when Ireland was for the most part still covered with pathless forests, with here and there a clearing where some attempt at agriculture was beginning to engage the attention of its inhabitants who, for the most part, were herders of cattle, lifting[1] that of their neighbors quite after the fashion of their Highland neighbors down to a century and a half ago.

The natives were impetuous and warlike, deeming it a lasting disgrace not to have dyed their daggers in the blood of an enemy. Upon one of their incursions into Britain they brought back as a captive a young lad, Patricus, and set him to tending sheep upon the Slemish Mountains. After seven years of servitude Patrick escaped to England and later journeyed into Gaul, where he prepared himself for missionary work. When thoroughly instructed, he returned to England and in a short time proceeded to Ireland, where he came with a view to converting its natives to Christianity. Here he preached with such brilliancy and success as to enthrone himself forever as the idol of the Irish people, becoming at last their patron saint.

In the sixth century Saint Columbo was the leading spirit in the Irish Church, under his influence the monasteries founded by Saint Patrick reached the zenith of their power and fame, a single monastery often accommodating thousands of monks.

Wherever a tribe or clan, inspired by religious enthusiasm, offered large tracts of land for a religious house, the clan itself by easy gradations became transformed into a religious community. A wall would then be thrown around the territory donated and the chief of the clan or a suitable member of his family would be appointed to the office of Abbot, an office which often became hereditary in the family, for in the Western Church[2] marriage among the clergy had not yet been for-

[1]Stealing.
[2]Millman's History of Latin Christianity, Vol. 11, page 150.

The Christian religion was the piercing instrument that fashioned these people into civilized races and upon the priest, more than upon any other factor of this period, fell the burden of enlightening them, for he was not priest only but teacher and physician.

An old document[1] describing the priestly functions and customs of this period says the priests of sacrificial rank wore the hair tonsured from ear to ear with a long plait hanging down the back. Upon ordinary occasions they wore next to the body a white robe and over it a tunic of natural wool, but when performing sacrificial duties they donned vestments of fine linen embroidered with gold.

The O'Beollan said to be Gille Anrias himself, Abbot of Applecrossen, held lands in Ross-shire stretching from Loch Carron to Loch Broom.

"Fergus or Fearchard, the first Macant-sagart,[2] quelled an insurrection that broke out against the king of Scotland led by Donald Bane, the son of Mac-William, Keneth Macarth and the son of a certain king of Ireland who entered Moray with a great army of fearless outlaws for the purpose of deposing the king and setting up a sovereignty of their own."

Skene says these foes of the king were attacked by Makintagart and mightily overthrown; whereupon the king graced him with the honors of knighthood. The ceremony was probably performed in June, 1215,[3] when the title, Earl of Ross, was conferred upon him and his heirs, male and female.

Fearchard thus became the first Earl of Ross of the Makintagart line. It is said upon authority that Alexander also conferred upon him the hand of his sister in marriage.

The names of his children, as commonly given, omitting Malcolm who probably belonged to an earlier line, were:

Christian = Olaus, King of Man
Alexander
Andrew, councillor to Alexander II
Robert
John
William, the eldest son and second Earl of Ross of this line.
Euphemia = Walter de Moravia

The clan Ross was founded by Paul MacTire or Macintire in the twelfth century by uniting with the Rosses seven smaller

[2] Macant from "Macu or Mac," meaning the son of, and "Sagart," the priest. The name was shortened in time to MacTaggart and Taggart.

[3] Sir James Balfour Paul, Lord Lion King of Arms, in "The Scots Peerage, 1910," says Ross was not of the ancient earldoms of Scotland but was a part of Moray and as such was ruled by its jarls, and that Fearchard appeared as Earl of Ross in a Writ dated June, 1226.

to the time of its intermarriage with the Hamilton family, one of the most powerful families in Scotland:

William, II Earl of Ross = Jean Comyn
William, III Earl = Euphemia and had, with five other children, Hugh Makintagart, IV Earl of Ross, who married twice:
1st Maude Bruce, sister of the King of Scotland
2nd Margaret, daughter of Sir David Graham
Hugh Makintagart, IV Earl of Ross, by his first marriage to Maude Bruce had:
2. John
3. Marjory
1. William, V Earl of Ross = Mary, daughter of Angus Og, Lord of The Isles, and had:
William, Master of Ross, who died unmarried before his father
Euphemia, Countess of Ross by the death of the Master of Ross, married 1st, 1366, Sir Walter de Leslie, who thus became Walter, VI Earl of Ross but I of the Leslie line
Johanna or Janet = Sir Alexander Fraser
Margaret = Sir David Hamilton,[1] son of Sir Walter and Mary Gordon, daughter of Sir Adam Gordon
Hugh Makintagart, IV Earl of Ross, by his second marriage to Margaret Graham had:
4. Hugh, I Laird of Balnagowan
5. Euphemia = 1st John Randolph
2nd King Robert II, by whom she had:
David Stewart
Walter Stewart
Alexander Stewart, the Wolf of Badenach
John Stewart
Robert Stewart, Duke of Albany and Fife, who had:
John Stewart, Earl of Buchan, and a daughter = Alexander Leslie, who became, through her, the VII Earl of Ross
6. Janet
7. Lillias.

Through the intermarriage of Margaret with Sir David Hamilton and the affiliation of their descendants with the Clealand-Taggart line, the latter trace their descent in the female line to Makintagart, the first Earl of Ross.

The Hamilton family derived its name from the lordship and manor of Hambledon in Leicestershire, England. The original name was Bellomont, one of whom, Robert, called Blanchemaine, was the third Earl of Leicester. He died in 1190.

A branch of the Hamiltons settled in Scotland in the 13th century. Its representative was Walter de Hambledon or

[1]See the Scots peerage, vol. 4, page 343, which says that the Christian name of his wife has not been ascertained. See also Burke's Peerage.

Gavin Hamilton, his brother, was the fourth son of James, the fifth Lord Cadzow. He was educated for the church and was Bishop of Bothwell. He married Janet Muirhead who, for her great beauty, was called the Bonny Lass or Fair Maid of Lechbrunnach. She was of the ancient family of Hay of Yester,[1] blood relations of the Hamilton family. The Bishop of Bothwell's marriage[2] was not sanctioned by the church, but his children were later declared legitimate by an act of the crown. Gavin and Janet Muirhead Hamilton had five sons, two of whom:

John Hamilton, first Lord Orbiston and Alexander Hamilton of Haggs were the more immediate progenitors of the Clealand-Taggart family.

John Hamilton, the first Lord Orbiston, was the principal heir and successor to his father. He married Jean, daughter of Hamilton of Woodhall and left five sons and two daughters, the eldest of whom:

Gaven II, Lord Orbiston, was one of the heirs entail of James Hamilton, Duke of Chatelherault. He married Helen, daughter of Wallace of Cairnhill, by whom he had five sons, the eldest of whom was:

John Hamilton, third Lord Orbiston, who married his second cousin, Margaret, daughter of Alexander Hamilton of Haggs, likewise third in descent from Gavin, Bishop of Bothwell. They had several children of whom John Hamilton, fourth Lord Orbiston, was his heir and successor, and Mary or Margaret, his daughter, became the wife of Alexander Cleland of Knownoble Hill and left a son, William Cleland who married a sister of Walter Stewart, first Lord Blantyre and daughter of Sir John Stewart, who in turn left a son and heir, Alexander Cleland who married a daughter of Sir John Hamilton of Letterick and Bargeny and sister to John Hamilton, first Lord Bargeny. They left five sons:

Alexander, the heir, who sold the family estates.
John, master of Laird Braes, Wigton
William, Andrew, Patrick } retired to Ireland and changed the spelling of their name to Clealand.

[1]In a civil calendar at Edinburgh, Andro Taggart was cautioned not to harm Lord Hay of Yester.

[2]The marriage was supposed to be within the bonds of consanguinity as recognized by the Church of Scotland, as not a few of the Hamilton marriages seemed to be. Perhaps no Scottish house of standing, save that of the royal line, had so many examples of intermarriage with its own kinsfolk.

name and henceforth the Knelands of Kneland became the Clelands of Cleland.

William Cleland, a loyal friend of Queen Mary, bore the original arms typifying a warrior and forester. S. F. Kneeland says he married a sister of Walter Stewart, first Lord Blantyre, daughter of Sir John Stewart and Margaret, daughter of James Stewart.

Burke in his Landed Gentry of Ireland says it was Alexander Cleland, a son of James, the ninth of that ilk, who was devoted to the cause of Queen Mary. He married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Hamilton, third Lord Orbiston, and his wife Margaret, daughter of Alexander Hamilton of Haggs, and left a son William, eleventh of that ilk.

William Cleland, eleventh of that ilk, married a daughter of Sir John Stewart and the sister of Walter Stewart, first Lord Blantyre. They left a son:

Alexander Cleland, twelfth of that ilk, who married Margaret, sister of Sir John Hamilton, first Lord Bargeny and daughter of Sir John Hamilton of Letterick and Bargeny and his wife Margaret Campbell, daughter of the Rev. Alexander Campbell, Bishop of Brechin, a descendant of the Duke of Argyle. By her he had several sons and daughters. The eldest son, Alexander, thirteenth of that ilk, sold the estates of Cleland or Kneland to a cousin of his own name, thereby alienating his family. The other sons, John, master of Laird Braes, Zeswalt, Wigton, born April, 1623, William, Andrew, and Patrick, together with Alexander, all changed their name to Clealand and the three last retired to Ireland.

From here Burke takes up John Clealand of Laird Braes, the ancestor of the Rose-Cleland branch of Rath Gael House, Bangor, County Down, Ireland. But we will follow Patrick Clealand. Patrick, who came to Ireland with the Hamiltons, settled at Ballymagee, County Down. He married Janet, daughter of John Blackwood,[1] Esq., and his wife, Ann Wauchope of Bangor. Patrick Clealand died in 1682, leaving a son:

John Clealand,[2] born 1665–6, who succeeded his grandfather Blackwood as provost of Bangor. He married Mary Taggart, daughter of John and Jannette Taggart of Glenwherry, County Antrim, and died in 1714, leaving a son and two daughters,

[1]John Blackwood, Esq., ancestor of James Stevenson Blackwood, first Lord Dufferin and Claneboye.

[2]To a deed dated 1700 is appended a seal of this John Clealand: a hare salient with a hunting horn in dexter chief, the crest a hare courant.

these two streams lie the parishes of Rashee, Kilbride, Donegore, Templepatrick and Ballyclare, of which Donegore and Kilbride lie partially within the division called Taggartsland.

Thomas Taggart is said to have fled to Ireland on account of religious persecution for it was a common thing for nonconformists to have their houses seized and their goods inventoried for the king's use and for refusing to pay any part of "the teynd victuall of the personnage and viccarage assignt to them in stipend" for the established church.

He had two sons; Andrew Taggart (333) of Donegore Parish, Taggartsland, Six Mile Water, and Thomas Taggart of Templepatrick, Six Mile Water, County Antrim.

333. Andrew Taggart was conspicuous in the time of Cromwell. He was an ardent covenanter and the warm friend of Josiah Welch[1] of Oldstone and Templepatrick, called by his parishioners "Cock of the Conscience."

Politically Andrew Taggart belonged to the faction that opposed Cromwell. He advocated the government of the country under a mixed rule of kings, lords and commons and not by the Rump Parliament alone and was threatened with banishment. In 1653 he was summoned with John Wilson of Rashee, John Cathcart, Captain Fergueson, Mr. Shaw, Thomas Crauford and the ministers of Down and Antrim to appear before the court and defend himself.

Reid in his History of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland says: "Cromwell designed to remove all the popular Scots of influence and station out of Ulster and to this end confined a number of them in Carrickfergus Castle where they were to remain until transports could be secured to carry them to the south and west of Ireland."

Just as Andrew Taggart and his friends were about to board the ships for deportation to County Connaught news reached them that Cromwell had raised the parliament, dissolved the commonwealth and declared himself lord-protector, "whereupon the officers dismissed the prisoners with unexpected kindness."

The property of these men had been confiscated and given to friends of the commonwealth by the great Commoner so that it disaffected Irish, who ultimately revenged themselves upon him in a singularly cruel manner.

A band of insurgents surrounded his home, Tobergill House in Donegore Parish, one night and compelled him upon threats of violence and pillage to come out. They hurried him to a rendezvous of their confederates at the old Moat Tavern and there insulted and maltreated him, but he, being still a vigorous man, escaped from their hands and sought refuge in the parish church close by. But they, pursuing, entered the church and subjected him to fresh indignities, not designing to take his life but hoping by intimidations and coercion to force him to leave the country. In the scuffle that followed he recognized a neighbor whose disguise had become disarranged and inadvertently called out his name, whereupon he was immediately trampled to death by the affrighted mob.

341. John Taggart V married Mary Bell Carnahan
342. Eliza Agnes, married John Wilson of Rashee
343. William, married Rachel Johnson
344. Francis
345. Mary, married (——) Montgomery
346. James
347. Joseph
348. Andrew, married Sarah Wilson, sister of John Wilson of Rashee.

1330. James Taggart
1332. Samuel Taggart.

1330. James Taggart, the eldest son, remained in Canada and became a manufacturer of shoes at Montreal.

The widow came to Allegheny Co., settling near the line of Butler Co., where Andrew Taggart's family had settled earlier in the year.

1331. John Taggart, the second son, was a bank clerk in Pittsburgh, where his mother afterwards joined him. Later in life he, too, became a manufacturer of shoes. He married Margaret Orr, and had four children:

1351. Maj. Robert Taggart of Tidioute, Warren Co., Pa.
1352. Mary Taggart
1353. William T. Taggart
1354. Elizabeth Taggart, who married Mr. Miller.

INTRODUCTION.

RANDOLPH COUNTY was formed from Harrison in 1787 and included all of the present county of Tucker, all of Barbour east of the river, all of Upshur east of Buckhannon River, and a considerable portion of Pocahontas and Webster. It lost territory in 1821 when Pocahontas was formed; again in 1843 when Barbour came into existence, and in 1851 it gave up some of its territory to Upshur, and five years later 350 square miles were cut off to form Tucker; and in 1860 Webster took a strip; and after all of these losses Randolph still is the largest county in the State. The white man's home on the waters of the Monongahela, within West Virginia, was first planted in Randolph. In this county occurred the first Indian massacre in the State. From that beginning, the county has been an historical center down to the present. Great events have occured here, and men of wide fame have gone forth from the valleys and mountains of the grand old county, and have made their influence felt from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The writer of this book has attempted to collect, to arrange and preserve traditions, reminiscences, annals, biographies and all kindred elements of history, and save them before too late. The task has not been easy nor the burden light. How well he has succeeded must be judged by others. The field was new; no one had entered it before, and the research through the century or more of neglected and almost forgotten fragments of history was not a holiday excursion.

At the conclusion of the French and Indian War, when the tide of immigration came over the mountains into the Ohio Valley, it came in three great streams, one by way of Cumberland into the lower Monongahela Valley; another, by way of the Greenbrier, into the Kanawha Valley; while the third—which, for some reason, historians have almost totally ignored—pushed along old Indian trails across the Alleghanies into Randolph County, into the Cheat Valley and into the Buckhannon country. This third avenue of immigration is given, in this book, the prominence which it deserves. It was of no less importance in working out the destiny of the West than

THE BEGINNINGS OF ROADS.

It would be very difficult to write a complete history of the building and maintenance of the highways of Randolph County, and if done, it would prove dry and uninteresting. There is however, entertaining material for a few pages, relating chiefly to the beginning of road making in the county. No effort has been made to mention, even by name or location, all the early roads, nor any considerable number of the later ones. When the first permanent settlement was planted in Randolph County, about 1772, the first need of the settlers was means of communication with other settlements. These settlements were to be found east of the Alleghanies, east and southeast; on the Greenbrier, south; on the Buckhannon, west and northwest; at Morgantown, north, and on Cheat River, at the Horse Shoe, northeast. The first roads across the county's borders, or to the remote parts of the county, led to the settlements named. Other roads were made from settlement to settlement within Tygart's Valley, or nearby valleys. It is remarkable that the very first mention of a highway on the court records of the county was regarding a wagon road. It generally has been presumed that wagon roads were not needed at that time. The order was made May 29, 1787, (Randolph's very first court, second day's session) that Joseph Friend, William Wilson, Salathiel Goff, and Andrew Skidmore be appointed to view and mark the way for a wagon road from Leading Creek to the Horse Shoe Bottom, on Cheat River, in the present county of Tucker.

but he did build many covered bridges in West Virginia between 1851 and his death in 1884. Modern concrete and steel structures have replaced some; rerouting of highways has relegated others to secondary roads; but almost all lasted through three-quarters of a century of constant service, and those still standing remain sound.

RICH MOUNTAIN BATTLEFIELD, 5 m., was the scene of a decisive battle on July 11, 1861, when Union troops under General George B. McClellan made a flank attack on a fortification here and routed the Confederates with heavy losses. General Robert Garnett, who commanded this force and a larger one at Laurel Hill, had been ordered to stop McClellan's advance, but after this defeat he withdrew both forces, leaving the State, as far as the crest of the Alleghenies, open to Federal troops. The battlefield is now a boulder-strewn hillside; an apple orchard surrounds the gray and sagging ruin of the HART HOUSE, built by Joseph Hart, son of a Signer of the Declaration of Independence, and used as an emergency hospital during the battle that raged around it. The weathered walls are bullet-scarred, and the massive hewn timbers of the ruined barn near by have been marked by souvenir hunters digging leaden slugs from the heavy poplar beams. On one of the boulders is a rough and almost obliterated inscription reputedly left by a wounded soldier in memory of a friend: 'Clay Jackson, shot and killed, 1861.'

A small stone marker, 8.3 m., indicates the SITE OF THE DAVID TYGART CABIN, the first in the valley, built in 1753 when Tygart crossed the mountains with Robert Files, a brother-in-law, who settled on the site of Beverly (see above). The little clearing about the cabin on the river bank later became a burial ground and is now known as HORNBECK CEMETERY, for Benjamin Hornbeck, Revolutionary War soldier, who is buried here with scores of pioneer settlers.

TYGARTS VALLEY HOMESTEADS (L), 11.4 m. (1,957 alt., 900 pop.), one of the three homestead projects undertaken in West Virginia by the Federal Government, was established in 1933 on a 2,883-acre tract. Shutdowns in the lumber mills had impoverished many families engaged in this and allied industries. The project, designed to give these stranded families the security of homes and employment, provides 195 family dwelling units, each with one to three acres of ground. The houses are grouped on three separate tracts surrounded by farm land. Eight types of frame houses have been built and a few brick houses of four, five, and six rooms. Each house has modern plumbing and electricity and a combination garage, vegetable cellar, poultry house, and feed room. Gas and telephone have been installed in some of the units. Fire protection is provided by a volunteer fire department, two new fire engines, and numerous fire hydrants. The trade center has a general store, a craft shop displaying woven articles, a health center, and playgrounds; a community center has been constructed to serve as a public school. The National Youth Administration operates weaving and woodwork shops, and the Work Projects Administration conducts a nursery school. Homesteaders attend religious services at near-by churches.

At present (1941) the homesteaders occupy their houses under a temporary rental agreement, paying from $11.80 to $13.50 monthly against the final purchase price. They derived their income at first from the construction and development of the project. As the site was

REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS AND PATRIOTS OF SOUTH CAROLINA

In the pension files of Revolutionary soldiers may be found the name of many a person who, in testifying for an applicant, implies or perhaps fully proves his own service. Or, some deponent in the case may mention the name of a soldier or give information which serves as a clue and may lead to further proof. The first installment of an alphabetical list of such soldiers and patriots of South Carolina follows. The name in parentheses is that of the pensioner, with pension number. The brief statement or quotation applies to the man whose service we seek to establish.

ABBOTT, Solomon. Militia, Roebuck's Regt. (John Henderson- w. Martha, W. 3,984) Copy of Indent issued 29 June 1786 to Solo. Abbot. . . duty in Roebuck's Regt.

ALEXANDER, James. Militia. (Alexander Copeland- w. Rebecca, W. 9,395) Jane McMillan of Spartanburg Dist., S. C., age 81 testifies in 1851 that she was well acquainted with James Alexander, who was a "companion in arms" of the applicant.

ALEXANDER, Matthew. Prob. Militia. (John Henderson- w. Martha; W. 3,984) On an order for payment of Indents appears the name of Matthew Alexander.

ANDERSON, Robert. Militia. (Thomas Hamilton- S. 30,470) In summer of 1778 applicant volunteered in horse company in county which he thinks is now called Pendleton under Capt. Robert Anderson.

ASHLEY, Robert. Militia. (John Ashley- w. Eleanor, W. 281) Robert Ashley testified that he entered with John Ashlew from Lancaster, Kershaw District—at Surrender of Charleston and at Gates Defeat together.

ATKINSON, Adville. Militia. (William Abbot, S. 30,239) Applicant stated that he knew in Marion's camp, Adville Atkinson. (Name appeared to be "Adnae" in one place.)

BAGNELL, Abel. Militia. (William Abbott, S. 30,239) Applicant testified that he "also knew in Marion's camp . . . Abel Bagnell."

BAILEY, Lewis. Con'l Army. (Thomas Howell, R. 20,385) In Camden County, Ga., 1829, Lewis Bailey testified that he had known Thomas Howell since childhood and served with in the Cont'l Army.

BARRETT, Richard. Patriot. (William Mitchell- w. Eleanor, W. 5,379) Applicant entered from Union District, S. C., May or June 1782 as substitute for Richard Barrett.

BARRY, Andrew. Militia. (Samuel Peden, S. 30,649) Applicant served several tours from Spartanburg District, S. C. under Capt. Andrew Barry. (Name is written "Berry" in pension; but it seems certain that it must be Andrew Barry of Spartanburg Dist., who was a captain.)

BARRY, John. Militia, Roebuck's Regt. (Samuel Peden, S. 30,649) Applicant served tour in 1780 under Capt. John Berry. (See note above.)

BASKINS, James. Prob. Militia. (William Caruthers- w. Mary, W. 6,628) Applicant served from Abbeville District; one tour against Indians under Lieut. James Baskins.

BASKINS, William. Prob. Militia (William Caruthers- w. Mary, W. 6,628) Applicant volunteered in 1777 or 1778 under Capt. William Baskins, and was made prisoner with him; released at Battle of Kettle Creek.

assured me that the said Wm. Taylor had served his time out."

TAYLOR, Hugh. Militia. (Samuel Mayfield, S. 16,930) Applicant drafted from Union County for Siege of 96. The ensign in his company was Hugh Taylor.

TAYLOR, Jeremiah. Militia. (George Harbison, R. 4,586) Jeremiah Taylor testified in Fairfield District, 1840, that he was with George Harbison in East Florida and then Augusta; next saw him "at my father's house in Craven County."

TAYLOR, John. 3rd S. C. Regt. (James Wilson, R. 11,660) Applicant who served from Fairfield District in 1779 declared that John Taylor was Orderly Sgt. of his company.

TAYLOR, Samuel. Militia. (Thomas Hamilton, S. 30,470) Applicant, who served from Granville (later Abbeville) District, stated that he was acquainted with Capt. Samuel Taylor.

TAYLOR, William. S. C. Service. (William Taylor, alias Peter Snyder, S. 10,439) Comptroller's office found one William Taylor who was paid as lieutenant. The notation reads, "Not this man in all probability;" meaning not Wm. Taylor, or Peter Snyder, the applicant.

TEAGUE, William. Militia. (Zadock Wood, S. 3,612) William Teague testified in Wilson Co., Tennessee, 1833, that he and Zadock Wood were mustered into service together at Hammond's Old Store, then in 96 District.

TERRY, Joseph. Marion's Brigade. (John China, S. 46,593) Applicant entered from Sumter District, 1781; one of the lieutenants was Joseph Terry.

THWEATT (?), James. Col. Maham's Corp of Horse. (John China, S. 46,593) Applicant volunteered in August 1782 from Sumter District under Capt. James Thates.

THOMAS, Tristram. Prob. Militia. (Nathaniel Whittington, S. 9,527) Applicant drafted at beginning of War from Marlborough District, under Capt. Tristram Thomas.

THOMPSON, Absolom. Prob. Militia. (Benjamin Neighbors, S. 19,000) Applicant drafted from Newberry District. Lieut. Absolom Thompson testified in Pickens District, that he served under him.

THOMSON, Absolom. Militia. (John Henderson---w. Martha, W. 3,934) On an order for payment of Indents to a number of men from Spartanburg District appears the name of Absolom Thomson.

NOTE: This man and Absolom Thompson above may be identical.—ED.

THOMPSON, James. Militia. (Cornelius Whittington, S. 7,892) Applicant entered service in 1776, in South Carolina (county not mentioned) under Capt. James Thompson.

NOTE: Applicant apparently lived in Cheraw District.—ED.

THOMPSON, John. Militia. (Samuel Mayfield, S. 16,930) Applicant entered service from Union County on tour against Cherokees; his lieutenant was John Thompson.

TIGERT, John. Civil Service. (Alexander Copeland---w. Rebecca) Alexander Copeland and his wife, Rebecca (maiden name not stated) were married in 1777 at the Cowpens by John Tigert, a Justice of the Peace.

TINSLEY, Isaac. Prob. Militia. (John Mangum, S. 16,939) Applicant volunteered July 1, 1781, from Newberry District. His lieutenant was Isaac Tinsley.

Also, (James Tinsley, S. 31,426) This applicant testified that during 1780 his brother Isaac was killed in a conflict with the Tories.

TINSLEY, James. Militia. (Zadock Wood, S. 3,612) Applicant served during latter part of war from 96 District; belonged to company of Capt. James Tinsley.

TINSLEY, Philip. Patriot. (James Tinsley, S. 31,426) Applicant served from 96 District (later Newberry) as substitute for Philip Tinsley.

TOLES, John. Col. Middleton's Regt. (John Chaney, S. 32,137) Applicant enlisted from 96 District, he thinks in spring of 1781, in presence of John Toles, who had previously enlisted in same company.

TOWLES, Joseph. S. C. Line. (John Mangum, S. 16,939) Applicant enlisted in December 1781 from Newberry District, in company of Capt. Joseph Towles.

TRAMWELL, Dennis. Militia. (William Wood, S. 31,589) Applicant served a tour from Spartanburg District under Capt. Dennis Tramwell.

TUCKER, Richard. Militia. (George Harbison, R. 4,586) Applicant served one Mississippi. In pursuance of their claim, they built several forts on the Ohio, and finally Fort Du Quesne, where Pittsburg now stands, at that time, as held by Virginians, within the county of Augusta. In 1753, Governor Dinwiddie sent Major Washington to remonstrate with the French officer commanding on the Ohio, and to warn him that war was inevitable unless he withdrew. The French persisting in their claim, Dinwiddie began to prepare for the conflict, and invited the co-operation of the other colonies. The Indians, at first not specially friendly to either side, were conciliated by the French, and proved their faithful and efficient allies during the war.

It is generally supposed that the French were specially skilful in gaining the friendship of the Indians, and it may have been so to a considerable extent; but there is another reason why the Shawnees, Delawares and other Algonquin tribes, became their efficient partisans. Champlain and other early French settlers in Canada, to ingratiate themselves with the Indians of that region, assisted them in their wars with the Iroquois, or Five nations, of New York, and thus gained their lasting friendship, while the English secured the Iroquois as allies. The Shawnees, Delawares and others were congeners of the Canada Indians. The Iroquois waged incessant and exterminating war with all other tribes.

The Iroquois were composed originally of five tribes,—Mohawks, Oneidas, Onondagas, Cayugas and Senecas,—and occupied the country from Upper Canada to West Virginia, surrounded by Algonquins. They were called the "Five Nations" of New York, where most of them resided. The Tuscaroras joined the confederacy, and they were then known as the "Six Nations."

In 1754, David Tygart and a man named Files, crossed the Alleghany mountain and settled near each other on a branch of the Monongahela, since known as Tygart's Valley River. Files located at the mouth of a creek where Beverley, the county-seat of Randolph, now stands, and Tygart a few miles higher up the river. They had not been there long, when feeling unsafe they concluded to return to the settlements; but before they proceeded to do so, the family of Files was attacked by Indians, and every member killed, except a son who was absent from the house, but within sight of the massacre. Young Files fled to the house of Tygart and gave the warning, which enabled that family to escape and leave the country. [Trans-Alleghany Pioneers, p. 253.]

Colonel James Patton was "County Lieutenant," or commander-in-chief, of the Augusta militia in 1754. In January of that year Governor Dinwiddie wrote to him that he had determined to send two hundred men to reinforce the troops then building a fort on the Monongahela. He therefore ordered Patton to "draw out" the militia of the county, and from them obtain by volunteering, or drafting, fifty men for the purpose. The troops were to be "at Alexandria, the head of Potomack river, by the 20th of next mo. and if possible with their arms, &c." As the county was large, the number of men called for so small, "and the pay so very good," the Governor did not doubt that there would be a sufficient number of volunteers. They were to be commanded, he said, by Major George Washington. The company was no doubt raised and led by Andrew Lewis. At any rate, Lewis was with Washington, July 4, 1754, at the capitulation of Fort Necessity, and, although wounded and hobbling on a staff, by his coolness probably prevented a general massacre of the Virginia troops. Washington had been compelled to fall back to Fort Necessity, a rude stockade at Great Meadows. On the 3d of July, about noon, six hundred French, with one hundred Indians, came in sight and took possession of one of the eminences, where, says Bancroft [Vol. IV, p. 121], every soldier found a large tree for his shelter, and could fire in security on the troops beneath. For nine hours, in a heavy rain, the fire was returned. At last, after thirty of the English, and but three of the French had been killed, De Villiers, the French commander, proposed a parley. The terms of capitulation which were offered were interpreted to Washington, who did not understand French, and, as interpreted, were accepted. On the 4th, the English garrison, retaining all its effects, withdrew from the basin of the Ohio.

Then began the famous seven years war which kept all Europe ablaze while it lasted. It is curious that the first blow was struck in the wilds of America and by George Washington.

In his book called "Georgians," to which we have heretofore referred, Governor Gilmer relates an occurrence near Staunton as follows:

"In June, 1754, a party of twelve Northwestern Indian warriors stopped at John Lewis's on their return from the South, where they had been satisfying their revenge upon the Cherokees for some injury received. Some of his neighbors happened to be there, whose families or friends had suffered from attacks of the Indians. They insisted upon the party remaining until night, and exhibiting their dances. Upon their consenting, they left and employed the time until dark collecting the neighbors who had suffered from Indian murders. A beef was killed, and a large log fire made, around which the Indians assembled, cooking and eating to their stomach's content. They danced and drank whiskey until their lookers-on were satisfied with the display of their antics, and then went on their way homeward as far as the Middle river, where they lodged in Anderson's barn. As soon as they were sound asleep the whites were upon them with their axes, knives and guns. Only one escaped. For that night's doings many Virginia wives were made widows, and mothers childless. The government of Virginia endeavored to punish the perpetrators. All fled to some distant part of the extended frontier of the colonies, except one by the name of King, who lived a skulking life for a long time, always keeping his gun near him. He sometimes would go to the old Augusta church, the great assembling place for worship of the Scotch-Irish of that part of the country, where, seated upon the sill of the door with his inseparable companion, the rifle, in his hand, he listened to the words of the preacher, so necessary to the comfort of the Irish spirit, whether Protestant or Catholic. He was suffered to work out his own punishment, avoiding all men, and avoided by all."

We presume this story is substantially true as related. Governor Gilmer's mother being a daughter of Thomas Lewis, the surveyor and burgess, the facts had to pass through only one or two hands to reach him. We, however, think it probable that the occurrence took place a year or two earlier than the time mentioned; and we find no evidence in the proceedings of the County Court, or the voluminous correspondence of Governor Dinwiddie, of any effort to bring the perpetrators of the outrage to punishment.

Governor Dinwiddie, wisely or unwisely, precipitated the war between the English and French in America. After it began he threw himself into the fray with great ardor. He was indefatigable in recruiting troops, calling for help from neighboring colonies and England, writing letters, and scolding and blustering. He rivaled Horace Walpole, one of his correspondents, in the number, if not in the elegance, of his epistles. His voluminous correspondence, published by the Virginia Historical Society, and edited by R. A. Brock, secretary, etc., is full of interest to those who have a taste for such literature. He was too much pressed for time and space to write his words in full, and often it is difficult to read his productions. He set the rules of grammar and spelling at defiance—especially when in a passion he rebuked a military officer, or abused the savages. The latter suffered terribly at his hands, being denounced as "wicked murderers," "insatiate cowards," "villainous," "banditti," "infidels," "vermin." He was economical to the extent of parsimony, demanding an account of every pound of powder or lead he issued to the troops. Without military training or experience he planned campaigns, and undertook

West Virginia

The first white men known to have been in West Virginia were members of a party conducted by Thomas Batts, the leader, and Peter Fallam, the journalist. Theystarted from near Pertersburg, Virginia, Sept/ 1, 1671, "For the finding out the ebbing and flowing of ye waters on ye other side the Mountains, in Order to the Discovery of the South Sea."

About 1731 the first permanent settler established his home in West Virginia. Morgan Morgan, a Welshman living in Delaware moved his family to Mill Creek. The Eastern Panhandle, where the Mrgans settled, soon became the home of the Worthingtons, one to be governor of Ohio in 1814, the Shepherds, Hites, Harpers, Lemmons, Strupes, Mercers, Van Meters, Foresters, Evans, Swearington, Briscoes, Martins, Friends and Hoges. Within the next three decades came Washingtons, Darkes, Rutherfords, Davenports, Ransoms , Nourse s, and Fairfaxes, all destined to play importamnt parts in the development of the state.

Great impetus was given to the opening of the southeast section by the formation of the Greenbrier Land Company in 1749. By 1754 Andrew Lewis, the surveyor, was selling small farms. In 1760 James Moss settled in Monroe County, to be followed by the Manns, Cooks, Alexanders, Campbells, Millers, Nichells, Hokes, Dunsmores, Sweeneys, Calloways, Erskines, Aldersons, Haynes, Hutchinsons, and Grahams, largely from the Virginia Valley. To the surrounding countryside came Col. John Stuartin 1769, Robert McClenachan, William Hamilton and Thomas Renick from Augusta Co., the Williams, McCoys,

West Virginia

The first white men known to have been in West Virginia were members of a party conducted by Thomas Batts, the leader, and Peter Salling, the journalist. They explored from near Fredericksburg, Virginia, Sept. 1, 1671, "on the finding out the ebbing and flowing of ye waters on ye other side the mountains, in Order to the Discovery of the South Sea."
Count 1731 the first permanent settler established his home in West Virginia. Morgan Morgan, a Welshman living in Delaware moved his family to Mill Creek. The Eastern Panhandle, where the Morgans settled, soon become the home of the Worthingtons, one to be governor of Ohio in 1814, the Shepherds, Hites, Hunters, Lemmons, Strubes, Mercers, Tom Lieters, Torneters, Evans, Beauregards, Briscoes, Martins, Swadds and Hopes. Within the next three decades come Hardins, Boreos, Butler-Lords, Bowenforts, Morgans, Nourse s, and Johnsons, all destined to play important parts in the development of the state.

Great impetus was given to the opening of the southwest section by the formation of the Greenbrier Land Company in 1748. By 1754 Thomas Scott, surveyor, was setting small tracts. In 1760 James Moss settled in Monroe County, to be followed by the Mann, Cook, Clendenen, Campbell, Miller, Mitchell, Hobs, Dunmores, Sweeney, Collaway, Prairies, Clderoons, Hayes, Instrikins, and Graham, largely from the Virginia Valley. To the surrounding countryside came Col. John Stuart 1764, Robert McClenachan, William Hamilton and Thomas Renick from Augusta Co., the Williams, McCoys, Hugharts, Pattons, Blakes, McKinneys, McClungs, McNeils, Arbuckles, Donnallys, Caldwells and many others.

The cabin built by Col. Ebenezer Zane in 1769 became the nucleus around which has grown the city of Wheeling. Soon several families from the South Branch of the Potomac became his neighbors, including the Shepherds, Wetzels, and McCollochs. Along the upper Ohio in both directions the Tomlinsons, Swearingens, Bakers, Biggs, Seflers, Doddridges, Williams, Rogers, Ogles, Poes, McMechens, Wells, Hedges, Chapmans, Gregorys, and Graftons appear.

South of the Pennsylvania line the plentiful land was attracting such families as the Evans, Morgans, Pierponts, Cobuns, Pricketts, Haymonds, Pruntys, Tygarts, Files, Hughes, Ices, Butchers, Statlers, Booths, McIntires, Johnsons, Wilsons, Carpenters, Echarlys, Stewarts, Scotts, Jacksons, Simpsons, Pringles, Flemings, Neals, Woods, Davissons, Cottrills, Hackers, Beauchamps, Bingamons, Summers, Wests, McWhorters, Schoolcrafts, Harberts, Nutters, Bunnells, Talbots, Bradshaws and many others.

The end of the Revolutionary War brought an era of internal improvements and industrial beginnings. The National Road through Wheeling was started in 1811. The James River and Kanawha Turnpike, from Richmond to Kentucky, brought settlers to the Guyandotte and Big Sandy River valleys. Families moved in from all points east. To the central Ohio Valley came the Woods, Wrights, Colemans, La Rues, Neals, Phelps, Rogers, Hannans, Lewises, Waggoners, Ingles, Drapers, Roushes, Roseberrys and others. The Guyandotte and Sandy valleys soon were occupied by the Merricks, Stroups, Wentzes, Everetts, Morrises, Coxes, Yates, Adkins, Bowens, Davises, Bryans, Surlocks, McComases, Dingesses, Holderbys, Baileys, Clays, Buffingtons, Davidsons, Hatfields, Laidleys and many more.

Mayberry, Cotton, Dukes, McKinney, McClung, Nichols, Orlando, Bennett, Ortwell and many others.

The cabin built by Col. Spencer Zane in 1764 became the nucleus around which has grown the city of Wheeling. Soon several families from the South Branch of the Potomac became his neighbors, including the Shepherds, Wetzels, and McColloch. Clerk the wife in both directions the Tomlinsons, Swearingens, Bukers, Hupp, Sellers, Goddridges, Williams, Rogers, Cole, Jones, McCracken, Wells, Hedges, Chapmans, Greenup, and Crafton others.

South of the Pennsylvania line the Pricetight land was attracting such families as the Evans, Morgans, Pierpoints, Osburns, Prichetts, Mayrands, Brunts, Tygerts, Tiltes, Hughes, Rees, Butlers, Stathers, Booths, Hawkins, Johnsons, Williams, Gorbenters, Colbertys, Stewarts, Scotts, Jacksons, Simpsons, Grimples, Jennings, Neals, Woods, Bonnisons, Gottrills, Mayhews, Beauchamps, Simpsons, Summons, Neals, Hathertons, Schoolcrafts, Hurlberts, Mutters, Burnetts, Tredots, Prudefoos and many others.

The end of the Revolutionary War brought an era of internal improvements and industrial beginnings. The National Road through Wheeling was started in 1811. The James River and Kanawha Turnpike, from Richmond to Kentucky, brought settlers to the Guyandotte and Big Sandy River valleys. Families moved in from old Indian seats. To the central Ohio Valley came the Woods, Wright, Coleman, Le Rues, Neals, Wells, Rogers, Hammons, Lewises, Waggoners, Hughes, Bruners, Rowleys, Beckenridge and others. The Guyandotte and Sandy valleys soon were occupied by the Merritts, Strouds, Bentleys, Everetts, Hunnicuts, Cooks, Hotes, Dobbins, Holmes, Scrivens, Bruens, Burdettes, Hatcomees, Fingerees, Medersbys, Bulkeley, Clerk, Huffingtons, Donaldsons, Hatfields, Selkeley and many more.

derstand that there were 50 Indians below us. The Bottoms we passed are good land, But low consiquently overflow very much.

28th. We were stopt by rainy weather.

29th. We proceeded to Big Sandy Creek, passing little Sandy Creek at six miles, thence to Big Sandy 7 miles is one continued Bottom, in all 13 miles, where we stopet and cooked our kettle, and then embarked in our Canoes, and floated all night. In the morning we discovered that we had floated 25 miles.

30th. We proceeded 15 miles to a Creek called 4 Mile creek,[70] where we stopt to hunt, except Mr. Hite and two of his men, who proceeded. After we had killed some meat, Mr. Floyd did not think it proper to let Mr. Hite go on alone. We therefore proceeded 4 miles lower, which brought us opposite to the mouth of the River Sciota. By this time it was dark, but we saw Mr. Hite's Fire and call to him, but he would not answer, therefore we landed below the Fire, and went thro' the woods with caution, until we discovered it to be Mr. Hite and his men. On the upper side of 4 Mile Creek is very good land, I suppose to the Quantity of 2 or 3000 acres.

May 1st. It being Sunday we took our rest, and looked at an old Fort we found about 4 or 500 yards from the Banks of the River. It is a square Figure, each side 300 Paces long. It has 4 Gates and 2 Sally Ports, and it is so antient, that the Indians cannot tell when it was bujlt, or by whome. There has been an Spadden (1756–1834), a Scots Presbyterian emigrant to Virginia and Tennessee, became a soldier in the Revolutionary Army, and made the powder used by the American army in the battle of New Orleans, 1815. In the U. S. the name is also current as MacSpaden and Mac Spedon.

MACSPORRAN. G. Mac-an-sporain, 'son of the purse.' In popular tradition the Macsporrans are said to have been hereditary purse-bearers to the lords of the Isles. Martin (W. I., p. 262), when mentioning the tombs in Iona, says: "In the West-end is the Tombs of Gilbrid and Paul Sporran, antient tribes of the Mack Donalds." Duncan M'Sparren was one of M'Nachtane's soldiers shipped at Lochkilcherane for service in France, 1627 (HP., II, p. 115). Donald M'Sporran in Auchnagairoch, parish of Knapdaill, 1677, and Gormla N'Sporran, spouse to Donald M'Ilcher in Muastill, parish of Killean, appear in the following year (Argyll). The late Rev. C. M. Robertson said that Macsporain is merely a Gaelic rendering of the imported name Purcell, but on the other hand it has been recently said (Weekly Scotsman, Jan. 1, 1938) that when clan names were proscribed after the '45 the name Macsporran was Anglicized Pursell. The Irish form of the name is Macsparran. King Malcolm II (1005–34) is credited in tradition with having a treasurer called Paul na Sporan or Paul of the Purse.

MACSTALKER. G. Mac an stalcair, 'son of the (deer-) stalker.' King James IV presented Sir James Makstalkare to the rectory of Ilamoun (Elanmunde) in 1510 (RSS., I, 2045). Duncan McStokker and Gilpatrik McStokker had precepts of remission in 1542 (RSS., II, 4454). James Mac an Stalkair or Robertson was a fierce enemy of the Macgregors. He appears in the Chronicle of Fortirgall (p. 133) as M'Gestalcar, and is there described as a very wicked wretch and an oppressor of the poor ("Fuit nequissimus et oppressor pauperum unde dicitur malificos ne patiaris viuere super terram"). He was put to death in 1565. Finlay M'Ynstalker appears as witness in Glenurquhay, 1559, and John Roy M'Stalker or Makinstalker in Cranduycht at Ileanran in 1579 and 1586 (BBT., p. 202, 223, 237). Gilbert Makstoker who was occupier of the two merkland of Scotodaill, Kintyre, in 1596, is the Gilchryst M'Stoquhor who was tenant in 1605 (HP., III, p. 74, 81). Niall M'Instucker appears in Harnagyll, 1665 (Sasines, II, 1236), and Neill M'Instokir in Barmolich, parish of Sadell, in 1692 (Argyll Inv.). Some Macinstalkers appear to have been Macgregors (Macgregor, II, p. 52), and Buchanan claims them as a sept of Macfarlane. McIstalkir 1716, M'Staker 1627. The castle on Eilean-an-stalcaire in Lismore-Appin is said to have been built by Duncan Stewart of Appin for the accommodation of King James IV on his hunting expeditions, and appears to have been erected subsequently to the year 1501 (OPS., II, p. 169).

MACSTEVIN, 'son of STEVEN,' q.v. William McSteffan and Matho McSteffan, followers of the earl of Cassilis, were respited for murder, 1526 (RSS., I, 3386). Andrew MacStevin in Calararie, a follower of Ross of Pitcalny, 1592 (RPC.).

MACSWAN. A Skye patronymic, in G. Mac-Suain, 'son of Swan,' from ON. personal name Sveinn, from sveinn, a boy, North English Sweyn, akin to English swain. John McSwain in Back in 1726 (HP., II, p. 322). Angus M'Swane of Ross was one of the Jacobite prisoners of the '45. The name has no connection with MACSWEEN, which is of quite different origin.

MACSWEEN. G. Mac Suibhne, 'son of Suibhne' (pron. Sween). Suibhne was lord of Knapdale about the beginning of the thirteenth century. See under MACQUEEN (1).

MACSWIGGIN. A Galloway name of Irish origin. Woulfe says 'son of Swegen' or 'Swen,' a common personal name in Domesday Book. Searle has recorded fourteen of the name.

MACSYMON. See under MACSIMON.

MACTAGGART, MACTAGGERT. G. Mac-an-t-sagairt, 'son of the priest.' The marriage of clerics in minor orders was permissible, but the marriage of priests had been declared illegal and invalid in the twelfth century. Ferchar Machentagar or Mackinsagart, son of the red priest of Applecross, was knighted by Alexander II in 1215 for his services in quelling an insurrection in Moray (Chron. Mail., s.a.). Though first earl of Ross of the line he was not the first earl of Ross. Donald McKyntagart of Dumfries had remission of his fine, 1459 (ER., VI, p. 553), and William Maktygar "oratour and beidman" of "the kingis hospitaile of the trinite college besyd" Edinburgh, is in record, 1504 (Laing, 248). Thomas McKyntaggart was tenant in Strathdee, 1527 (Grant, III, p. 68), and John Makintalgart in Bocastell made complaint against certain individuals in 1581 (RPC., III, p. 350). Walter McTagart in Glenloy and two other McTagarts were charged with fire-raising and burning houses belonging to Steuart in Fintaillauch, 1583 (ibid., p. 577). Catharin M'Target or M'Targett in Dunbar was accused of witchcraft in 1688 (RPC., 3. ser. XIII, p. 245). McIntagart 1614, M'Intagerit 1541, McIntargart 1615, Mckintaggart 1623, Myketagart 1433, and McTaggard, McTaggate, and McTaggit in Galloway 1684.

MACTALDRACH. A rare Galloway surname recorded there in 1684 as McTaldroch, McTaler, McTalero, McTaleroch, McTaleroh, McTalleroch, McTalerock, McTalzeouch, and McKtaldroch (Parish). The testament of William M'Talleroch in Kilstay was registered in 1684, and likewise that of Finlay M'Talere in Myroch, parish of Kirkmaiden in the same year. James M'Taldrach, a Galloway poet, published his The Story of Orpheus, 1774. The name appears in Ulster as Mactaldridge, and some of the name have changed to Taylor, from the assonance *Tal*droch – *Tay*lor. The name has been connected with Pictish TALORG, q.v., but this seems rather far-fetched.

MACTARLICH. G. MacThearlaich, 'son of Charles.' Duncan McTerlach, a charter witness at Carnasserie, 1436 (Poltalloch Writs, p. 71). Gillespy Maktarliche was servant to Alexander John Canochsone, 1535 (Trials, I, p. 170*). Angus McAne VcTerlych was fiar of Glasvar, 1570–71 (Poltalloch Writs, p. 143). McHerloch 1584. See also MACCARLICH.

MACTAVISH. From G. Mac Támhais, a form of MacThamhais, 'son of Tammas,' the Lowland Scots form of Thomas. Mactavishes are numerous in Argyllshire. The Craignish MS. says the MacTavishes or Clan Tavish of Dunardarie descend from Tavis Corr, second illegitimate son of Gillespick, son of Callen moir math, 'good bald Coline' (SHSM., IV, p. 207). Doncan M'Thamais was one of those cited in 1355 to give evidence regarding the lands of Glassre in Argyllshire (HP., II, p. 139). Duncan McTawisch was tenant of half of Kernach, Strogartnay, 1480 (ER., IX, p. 564). Donald duin Mc tawys made reversion to Evar Campbell of Strouquhour, 1488 (HP., IV, p. 20). Thomas McTaevis, charter witness at Kenaach, 1515 (HP., IV, p. 24). Alexander M'ktaus in 1589 had custody of Ellanwirrich as constable (Wardlaw, p. 184). The Mactavishes of Stratherrick are considered a sept of the Frasers. M'Taveis 1672, McThavish 1676.

MACTEAR, MACTEIR, MACTIER. Shortened forms of MACINTYRE, q.v. Mactyr, a priest in Iona, is in record in 1372. John Makter in Pennyghame was convicted of stouthreif, 1513 (Trials, I, p. 92*), and another John McTeir was tenant in Moymore, Kynnarde, 1539 (ER., XVII, p. 672). Andro Makteir was 'servand to the maister clerk' in 1546 (ALHT., VIII, p. 488). John McTeyr, notary in Prestwick, 1551, may be John McTer who was made burgess in 1559 (Prestwick, p. 12, 61). Gilbert Maktyre had sasine of land in Bute in 1564 (ER., XIX, p. 533), and another Gilbert Mactyre was portioner of Ballintail there in 1615 (Retours, Bute, 21). Catherine M'Teir was 'demit of witchcraft' in Dundonald, Ayrshire, 1602 (Paterson, I, p. 425), and John Mc tyre, tailor in Bute, was charmed by a witch for 'ane sore shoulder,' 1662 (HP., III, p. 6). John M'Tire, exiled Covenanter from parish of Kirkmichael, drowned off Orkney, 1679 (Hanna, II, p. 253). McTere, McTire, Mteir.

MACTHOM. G. MacThom, 'son of Tom,' a diminutive of Thomas. Angus Makthome was a sufferer from the first hership of Petty, 1502 (Rose, p. 176). John Dow McThome in Strathgarrie was fined for reset of Clan Gregor, 1613 (RPC., XIV, p. 636). See also MACCOMB.

MACTHOMAS. G. Mac Tómais, 'son of Thomas.' The branch of the Clan Mackintosh which came afterwards to be known by the surname Macthomas was descended from Adam M'William of Garvamore, in Badenoch, a natural son of William, the seventh chief of the clan Mackintosh. The descendants of this Adam settled in Glenshee, Strathardle, and Glenisla. They appear in the roll of clans of 1587 as "clan mc thomas in Glensche;" and in the roll of broken clans of 1594 they are included in the class of "mony brokin men" (APS., III, p. 467; IV, p. 71). Andrew McThomas was parishioner of Duthil in 1537 (Grant, III, p. 269). Aye M'Ane M'Thomas is one of the signers in the Clan Chattan band of 1543 (SCM., IV, p. 260). William MacThomas in Murthlac, 1550 (Illus., II, p. 261), Alexander McThomas alias Thomsoune was burgess of Tayne in 1590 (Trials, I, p. 204), and William McThomas in Tulliche was fined for resetting Clan Gregor, 1613 (RPC., XIV, p. 629). John McThomas in Erchles, a Chisholm tenant in 1721, appears in the same record as John McComas (HP., II, p. 296, 297), and Donald McThomas in Inverchanich in 1721 appears again in the same record as Donald McComa (ibid., p. 298). The aspirated form, Mac Thómais, gives Macomish. Mac Homas 1718 (in Lewis).

MACTHORE. Thorfynn MacThore, a great landowner in Allerdale, in Cumberland, was granted certain rights by Gospatric in the eleventh century. Gospatric was probably the individual who purchased the earldom of Northumberland from William the Conqueror at Christmas in 1067. This is the only

Pettus Reunion—1995
Our Taggart Ancestors

Note from Louise Pettus: Last December we saw a query in the Monroe N.C. Carolinas Genealogical Society Bulletin in which Susan Morris McGee of Sarasota, florida requested information about Taggarts. She said that in the late 1700s and early 1800s the Taggarts lived in the counties of Anson and Mecklenburg, NC. She wished any information, no matter how small, about these Taggarts, including James Taggart of Steel Creek community in Mecklenburg County. I sent her the following quote from our Samuel Knox's 1794 will: ". . . And I bequeath James Tagart my best Hatt . . . ." along with the infomation that Taggart was one of three executors of the will (along with his wife Mary Knox and son-in-law William Pettus).

On the 23rd of December a wonderful Christmas gift came from Susan McGee: absolute proof that the maiden name of Samuel Knox's wife Mary was Taggart. I had looked for that for 22 years! In earlier handouts to the Pettus reunion gro[1]up I have speculated that perhaps her name was Snow, which I believe I always wrote as "Snow?" (There was a Samuel Knox and Mary Knox living in the Georgetown area in the 1760s and a lawsuit in which her brothers and sisters were identified as having the name of Snow. Obviously, this was not our Mary and Samuel Knox.)

Susan McGee happened to know the Pettus/Knox relationships and sent me a good deal of evidence of that. She also says that she plans to write a novel about the Taggarts, so we my look forward to that. Here is the absolute proof:

Transcription of the deposition of Mary Pettus for her Uncle James Taggart (Taggart on pension file for Revolutionary War service).

I Mary Pettus do hereby certify that I was acquainted with Nancy Tagert widow of Capt James Tagert later of Mecklenburg County deceased. I was present when she and James Tagert were maried (sic) in Mecklenburg County, N.C. at the house of one Mr. Brown whose Christian anme I have forgotten about the year 1791 or 1792 and was present when their oldest son Joseph Tagert was born who was some four or five months younger than my own son Samuel whom I was then nursing who was born the eighth day of March one thousand seven Hundred and ninety three (1793) which is a mater (sic) of record and now before me[2] and that the said Joseph is still living and that the said James Tagert had then and ever after untill (sic) his death the reputation of a good soldier and Bore the rank and title of Capt and such was always distinguished until his death said James Tagert was my uncle and I staid (sic) with my Grand Mother when her sons James and Joseph were in service and has often seen them leaving home for service and returning to visit their mother Mary Tagert and when Cornwallace (sic) Lay at Charlotte, N.C. I have seen my uncles the said James and his brother Joseph bring ten or twelve of their comrades home, take supper and leave to join on fories (sic) in the neighborhood of Charlotte and well recollect they were almost constantly in service during the revolution. Mrs. Nancy Tagerts Maiden name was Brown on oath this 30th day of June 1852.

Mary (her x mark) Pettus

Susan McGee says that Mary Taggart Knox, b. ca. 1743 in Ireland, m. Samuel Knox, ca. 1765, was the daughter of John Taggart, Sr. b. ca. 1718 in Ireland, arried Mary _____ in Anson Co. NC in 1755, died in York Co. SC, bur. in Steele Creek cemetery 1771 and brother to John Taggart, Sr. She rather favors James Taggart 1st as the most likely father of our Mary Knox.

THE COXES OF COX'S CREEK, KENTUCKY

By EVELYN C. ADAMS*

Dedicated to the memory of Rogers Clark Ball rd Thruston, descendant of Benjamin Cox who was one of the founders of Cox's Station on Cox's Creek

From 1750 to 1780 Isaac, Gabriel, and Friend Cox and their descendants built a series of six forts in the Colony of Virginia along a zigzag trail of westerly migration that reached from the South Branch of the Potomac to Cox's Creek, Kentucky. Those trying years two centuries ago were filled with struggle and bloodshed. In addition to international conflict and colonial rebellion, the lives of border settlers were in constant jeopardy because of the proximity of Indians who desperately resented the loss of their villages and hunting grounds. Nevertheless the Coxes, like other courageous Trans-Allegheny frontiersmen, overcame the odds and contributed their part unfailingly toward English-American colonial expansion. They took up land and built forts; and as opportunity afforded they advanced, took up more distant land, and again consolidated defenses. It was by the continuous repetition of this procedure on the part of many sturdy pioneers that the vanguard of western settlement was steadily pushed forward, and firmly held until eventually a new nation unfolded.

The six Cox Forts of record that mark the western trek of some four hundred miles were located (1) at the juncture of the Little Cacapon and South Branch of the Potomac, and (2)

*Mrs. Evelyn Crady Adams, descendant of David and Gabriel Cox, was born and reared in Nelson County, Kentucky. She holds degrees from Miami University, the University of Cincinnati, and Columbia University; is the author of American Indian Education, and contributes to various journals. Mrs. Adams was in government service for many years.

and many other Lemen families.[69] In the latter part of 1808 they sold about two thousand dollars worth of land and within a short time moved to Knox County, Indiana, where they were enrolled as charter members of the Maria Creek Baptist Church at the time of its organization in May, 1809.

10. Joseph Cox (1755?-1780) was killed by Indians as he was en route to Kentucky.

11. Jonathan Cox (1757?-), the twin brother of Benjamin, married Isabella Lemen, the daughter of Robert Lemen of Shelby County. Jonathan came to Kentucky in 1785 or 1786, perhaps with Gabriel. He purchased land and also inherited several hundred acres from the two Isaac Coxes. In 1808 he was living near Benjamin and Polly in Shelby County, where many of his wife's relatives, the Lemens, also lived. In 1808 Isabella inherited land from her father, and from that time until 1815 she and Jonathan sold a number of tracts.[70] It is thought that they joined Polly and John Lemen in Knox County, Indiana.

12. Benjamin Cox (1757?-1829), the twin brother of Jonathan, married Sarah Piety, the daughter of Austin Piety and Sarah Polk. Their eleven children were Elizabeth, who married (a) Joseph Simpson in 1798 and (b) Samuel Miller in 1816; Sarah Piety, who died unmarried in Clay County, Missouri; Susanna, who married James Ballard in 1803; Gabriel S., who married Nancy Gaston in 1816 and had a family of twelve children; Isaac, who died unmarried; Joseph, who died unmarried; Jonathan P., who married Rachel Lemen Tigert in 1817; Austin Piety, who married Rebecca Phillips; John Calhoun, who married Eliza B. Garrett; Benjamin F., who married Elizabeth Shepherd; and Finetta A., who married Elbridge Arnold.[71]

Benjamin Cox was one of the founders of Cox's Station. Colonel Isaac favored him among his brothers by leaving him and three of his children more than twenty-five hundred acres of land in addition to the thousand acres that were claimed in his name in 1776. Benjamin and Sarah established their permanent home on Bullskin Creek in Shelby County. The two-story log dwelling with a breezeway stood five miles west of ated in June, 1884. The same year he was admitted to the Warren County bar, and is now engaged in the general practice. He is a Democrat and a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM TURNER was born in Garrard County, Ky., in 1849. He is a son of William and Rolinda (Hurt) Turner, and is of Scotch origin. His paternal grandfather was a native of Virginia and came to Kentucky as early as 1800. The father of Mr. Turner was born in Garrard County and his mother in Adair County, Ky.; he was a farmer and died in 1873. Mr. Turner was reared on a farm, where he remained until his sixteenth year. He then entered the Male Seminary at Lancaster, Ky., and in 1869 entered the junior class of Center College, at Danville, Ky., and graduated from that institution in 1871 and subsequently taught in the preparatory department for two years; then taught one year in the Louisville Ward School. In 1875 he engaged in the drug business in Danville, Ky., and there remained a short time, then came to Bowling Green and continued the business. In December, 1884, he removed to his present place of business. He has the only modern furnished drug store in southern Kentucky, and is one of the leading druggists of Bowling Green. His marriage took place in 1872, with Mildred S. Fry, a native of Danville, Ky., daughter of Gen. S. S. Fry. To this union were born four children: Joseph S., Nannie O. Bannon, William S. and John; the two latter only are living. Mr. and Mrs. Turner are members of the Old School Presbyterian Church. He is a Republican.

Bio. of Samuel A. Tygrett

J. T. TYGRET, county assessor of Warren County, was born near Bowling Green in 1849. He is a son of John and Ellender (Hays) Tygret, and is of Irish ancestry. His parents were both born in Warren County, and were long and favorably known in this part of the State. J. T. Tygret grew to manhood on the farm where he was born. He was principally educated at the country schools, but spent a short time at the Lexington schools. At nineteen years of age he began teaching school, and followed that profession for four years; engaged in farming, which occupation he has since continued. He is a Democrat. In 1878 he was elected assessor of Warren County, and re-elected in 1882. For seven years he has successfully filled that office to the complete satisfaction of the people of Warren County. Mr. Tygret married, in 1875, Fannie Ritchey, a native of Missouri. Four children were born to this union: Wade H., Mary F., Alexander F. and Fannie K. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and K. of H. Mrs. Tygret is a member of the Christian Church. Mr. Tygret has made his own way in life, and is a successful and enterprising citizen of Warren County.

ABSALOM UPTON was born in Warren County, Ky., April 10, 1826. Elijah Upton, father of Absalom, was born in Wythe County, Va., August 30, 1783. He came to Kentucky with his parents, who resided afterward in Warren County, and here he married his first wife, Miss Elizabeth Ford, who died in 1826, leaving three sons, Thomas, James and Absalom, and three daughters, Rachel, Heritage and Frances. Mr. Upton's second marriage was with Miss Mary A. Cherry, in 1827; she died in 1850, leaving no children. Elijah Upton's occupation in life was that of a farmer; he was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was distinguished for his intrepidity in the battle of the Thames. He died in Warren County, Ky., in 1863. His father, Joseph Upton, was of Irish extraction. His mother, Frances Upton, was Highland Scotch; she was a woman of remarkable strength and vigor. Her height was six feet one inch, and she died at upward of eighty years of age. Absalom Upton was employed on his father's farm until he was seventeen years of age. He attended the common schools of his native county, where he learned the rudiments of English and mathematics. He managed his business in a practical way and with success. In 1843, when only seventeen years of age, he made his first flat-boat trip to New Orleans. He was afterward the owner of several boats and continued in the river trade for some twelve years, after which he purchased land and engaged in farming. He is now the proprietor of a plantation of 1,000 acres, 700 of which are under cultivation. Grain and stock are the principal products of his farm, though he, having about forty acres of orchard on his land, gives some attention to horticulture. January 3, 1850, he married Miss Susan A. Smith, daughter of Henry H. Smith, of Butler County. To them have been born nine children, seven of whom are living: Elijah, Thomas, Eli, James, John, Janie and Hettie. Mr. Upton is a Democrat, but takes very little interest in politics. He patronizes churches, and in educational enterprises he takes a leading and prominent part.

JOHN W. VALENTINE, son of Joseph C. and Judith (McGehee) Valentine, was born in Louisa County, Va., March 8, 1816, and is the second in a family of three sons and one daughter. His parents were natives, respectively, of King William and Louisa

WARREN COUNTY, KENTUCKY - WILL BOOK A - (1799-1814)

TIGERT, JAMES - March 17, 1809. Wife: Jean. Children: John, William and Hannah.

Exor: Wife, brother, John Tigert.

Mrs. Jordan: I have checked SUR-NAME INDEX from Files of W.C.K.: F.R.A. and do not fine anyone listed as researching the Tigret, Tygret- family. I have copied for you a Biographical Sketch and Will from WarrenCounty Records which may be of interest. I suggest that yo write to The Kentucky Library, Western State University, Bowling Green, Ky. 42101 -and they will probably refer you to some one by that name or someone that will help you. I'm sorry I don't have more information on this family.

Best Wishes - and was afterward appointed surgeon of his regiment. After his return from the army, in September, 1864, he attended the Bellevue Medical Hospital, N. Y. In the fall of 1865 he began practice at Smithfield, and has since lived there. Dr. Swain is a member of the Presbyterian Church and of the Masonic fraternity. He owns about 260 acres of land. He married in November, 1868, Bittie Mitchell, daughter of John G. and Elizabeth (Durrett) Mitchell, of Henry County. Mrs. Swain's ancestors came to Kentucky from Virginia. She is also a member of the Presbyterian Church. The names of the children born to Dr. Enos. S. Swain are Henry E., Enos M., John, Paul and Mary E. Politically Dr. Swain is a Republican.

JOSEPH WILLIAM SWINEY was born in Oldham County, Ky., near where he now resides, July 17, 1860, and was the second of a family of four children born to William and Sarah (Willhoite) Swiney, natives of Kentucky. William Swiney was a farmer in Oldham County all his life, and at the time of his death, in 1868, owned about 160 acres of land. His wife died in 1865. Our subject was reared on the farm, and, on arriving at manhood, adopted agriculture as his vocation. He settled where he now resides, in Oldham County, in 1883, and has 200 acres of valuable land, well improved. January 26, 1882, he married Miss Anna A. Smith, daughter of Alexander B. and Susan Smith, of Henry County. To this union have been born two children: William B. and Benjamin A. Mr. Swiney is a member of the Christian Church, and his wife of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Politically he is a Democrat.

R. D. TAGGART was born in Nelson County, Ky., February 14, 1845, the third of four children born to William and Mary S. (Wakefield) Taggart. His father was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1800, came to the United States in 1835, and settled in Nelson County, Ky., where he still remains. He has been engaged all his life at farming. He is a son of James Taggart, who was born in Ireland in 1780. Mrs. Mary S. Taggart was born in Nelson County, August 22, 1809, and died February 15, 1882. She was a daughter of John and Betsey (Taylor) Wakefield, the former a native of Virginia. When our subject was six years old he removed with his parents to Spencer County, where he has since resided. He has passed his life in farming pursuits, and now owns 200 acres of land. He is still unmarried. In religion he is a member of the Presbyterian Church. His brother, James, now resides in Shelby County, Ky., engaged in farming. He married Susie E. Carrithers, and has two children: Lillie P. and William F. Another brother, John Taggart, now deceased, was born December 8, 1842, and from the time he was eighteen years of age up to his death, June 16, 1884, he was a member of the firm of Hughes, Taggart & Co., one of the largest pork-packing establishments in the city of Louisville. He was a strict member of the Presbyterian Church.

HON. PHILIP R. TAYLOR was born where he now resides March 18, 1829, the last of the six children of William M. and Mary H. (Osborn) Taylor. William M. Taylor was born in Virginia, and was a son of Capt. Reuben Taylor, a native of Virginia. William M. Taylor was a physician, and regarded as one of the most able medical men of his day. He came to Kentucky at quite an early day, and was married about the year 1811. He reared a family of five children, who ranked among the best citizens of Oldham County. Our subject was brought up on the farm, and received his education principally from Bacon College and Funk's Seminary. He chose farming for an occupation in early life, and followed the same ever since, and now has 300 acres of land under good improvements, with a fine residence, barns, etc. In 1851 he moved to the Ohio River, in Oldham County, and remained there until 1868, when he moved to where he now resides. He was chosen by the people of Oldham County, in 1881, to represent them in the Legislature, and served one term. In 1849 he married Miss Mary Adams, a daughter of Dr. William and Margaret Adams, of Jefferson County. To this union were born five daughters: Sue M., Bettie O., Margaret W., Carrie and Mary. Margaret W. is deceased. The mother of this family died in 1859, and Mr. Taylor was again married in 1860, this time to Edmonia Barrick, daughter of Charles and Lucy Barrick, of Oldham County. Three children blessed their union: Annie C., Philip R., Jr., and Charles O. The family are active members of the Baptist Church. He is a Royal Arch Mason. Politically he is a Democrat.

ALONZO G. TAYLOR, a native of Jefferson County, was born August 14, 1834, to Pendleton and Cecelia (Baylor) Taylor, natives of Jefferson and Logan Counties, Ky. Maj. James Taylor, grandfather of Alonzo G., took an active part in the war of 1812, and was an early settler in Jefferson County. George W. Baylor, maternal grandfather, came from Virginia, and was also a pioneer of Jefferson County. Alonzo G. Taylor was after come to Kentucky, where Squire finds his brother Daniel.

1770—Capt. Philip Pittman publishes, in London, an elegant map of the Mississippi river, from the mouth up to Fort Chartres, below St. Louis.

A party of 40 hunters, from New, Holston, and Clinch rivers, in south-west Virginia, unite for the purpose of trapping, hunting, and shooting game, west of the Allegheny mountains. Nine of them, led by Col. James Knox, reach the country south of the Kentucky river, and about Green river and the lower part of the Cumberland river. From their long absence, are known as the Long Hunters.

May—Daniel Boone looks upon the Ohio river for the first time.

1771—Simon Kenton, John Strader, and George Yeager (the latter raised by Indians, and visited the cane land with them), descend the Ohio river, to near the mouth of the Kentucky; on their return they examine Licking river, Locust, Bracken, Salt Lick, and Kinnikinnick creeks, and Tygart and Sandy rivers, for cane, but find none.*

1773, June 22—Capt. Thomas Bullitt, Hancock Taylor, (both surveyors), and others, in one company, and James McAfee, George McAfee, Robert McAfee, James McCoun, jr., and Samuel Adams, in another company, going together down the Ohio, reach the mouth of Limestone creek, where Maysville now stands, and remain two days.

June 24—Robert McAfee goes up Limestone creek to the waters of the North Fork of Licking river, through what is now Mason county, and down that stream some 25 miles; thence northward through what is now Bracken county, to the Ohio river; with his tomahawk and knife makes a bark canoe, a[illegible]vertakes his company, June 27, at th[illegible]th of Licking, where Covington now [illegible].

July 4 and 5—The companies visit Big Bone lick, in what is now Boone county—making seats and tent-poles of the enormous backbones and ribs of the mastodon found there in large quantities.

July 7—At the mouth of the Levisa (or Kentucky) river the companies separate—Capt. Bullitt's going to the Falls, while Hancock Taylor and the McAfee company go up the Kentucky and up Drennon creek to Drennon lick.

July 16—Robert McAfee has two surveys made, embracing 600 acres, and including the bottom where Frankfort now stands.

July 8—Capt Thos. Bullitt reaches the Falls, and pitches his camp above the mouth of Bear Grass creek, retiring of a night to a shoal above Corn Island. He surveys land under warrants granted by Lord Dunmore, below the Falls to Salt river, and up that stream to Bullitt's lick, in what is now Bullitt county. In August he lays out the town of Louisville, on part of the plat of the present city.*

Another surveyor, James Douglas, visits the Falls, and on his way down makes extended investigations at Big Bone lick.

Capt. James Harrod, Abram Hite, and James Sandusky (or Sodowsky), in periogues or large canoes, descend the Ohio to the Falls, and return.

Gen. Thompson, of Pennsylvania, makes some surveys upon the North Fork of Licking river, in what is now Mason county.

1773—Simon Kenton, Michael Tyger, and some others from Virginia, come down the Kanawha and Ohio to the mouth of the Scioto, and await Capt. Thos. Bullitt's arrival—who passed down in the night or in a thick fog to the mouth of the Big Miami; thither Kenton's party follow, but finding Bullitt's camp vacated and supposing his party murdered by Indians, they destroy their canoes and go through the country to Greenbriar county, Va., under Kenton's guidance—doubtless, the first trip by land from Northern Kentucky to Western Virginia.

In the fall, Kenton, with Wm. Grills, Jacob Greathouse, Samuel Cartwright, and Joseph Locke, from the Monongahela country, descend the Ohio to the mouth of the Big Sandy, where they spend the winter in hunting and trapping. In the spring of 1774, on account of Indian aggressions, they evacuate their camps or settlements, and return to Fort Pitt.

1774, May—Capt. James Harrod, Abram Hite, Jacob Sandusky, James Sandusky, and 37 other men descend the Ohio, encamp at the mouth of Deercreek, where Cincinnati now is, and upon that ground cut the first tree ever cut by white men. They go on down to the mouth of Kentucky, and up that stream to what is now Mercer county, where in June, they lay off Harrodstown (afterward called Oldtown, and now Harrodsburg), and erect a number of cabins.

June 6—Daniel Boone and Michael Stoner, by solicitation of Gov. Dunmore, of Virginia, go to the Falls of the Ohio, to conduct into the settlement a party of surveyors. They complete the tour of 800 miles in 62 days. These surveyors had been sent out by Dunmore "some months before." Three parties of surveyors were then in Ky., under Col. John Floyd, Hancock Taylor, and James Douglass. Taylor was shot by Indians, and died from the wound. [See Vol. II, pp. 526, 764.]

Simon Kenton visits Big Bone lick.

July—In consequence of Indian hostilities, this settlement is abandoned, and most of the men return to Virginia, or Pennsylvania. Two of them, Jacob Sandusky and another, travel to Cumberland river, and in a canoe descend that river, state will admit ..... Every corporation in Ky. required to report, on Dec. 1st annually, to the Auditor, the amount of stock taken, amount paid in, amount of liabilities, assets and income, and full expose of their condition and management—under penalty of $500 fine, which fine shall go into the school fund.....Requests President Johnson to withdraw the order of President Lincoln which placed Ky. under martial law.... Requests the President to immediately remove all negro troops from the state, and assign white soldiers for duty in their stead.

June 3—Gov. Bramlette approves the "address of the legislature to him requesting him to remove from office Hon. Joshua F. Bullitt, one of the judges of the court of appeals" [for the 3d district, and chief justice,] formally removes him, and declares his office vacant. The address was "for the reason that the said Bullitt has vacated his office by absenting himself from the sittings of said court and from this state, and having taken up his residence within the territory of a foreign government." It had first passed the house, May 31, by 68 to 19, and then the senate by 20 to 7. In the senate, by vote, the prosecution was conducted by James F. Robinson, and the defense by Asa P. Grover; and in the house James T. Bramlette and Thos. W. Varnon were elected to prosecute, and A. Harry Ward and W. M. Fisher to defend. May 25, Joshua F. Bell read a statement, in the house, to the effect that, if time were given, it could be proven that the case of Judge Bullitt was disposed of without any trial; that he was arrested, ordered and sent out of the state by the military authorities without any opportunity for defense; that he returned to Ky., and discharged his official duties from Dec. 6 to Dec. 24, 1864; that shortly after—learning that "the military commander of the state had declared that he should be tried by a military court and executed, without any chance of his appeal to the clemency of the President—he, in consequence, left, and remains out of the state; that if he has heard of the President's order permitting his return to Ky. to attend this trial, it is only since these proceedings have been taken up, and not in sufficient time to be here to make defense; that if he were here, and time allowed him, he could establish that he is not guilty of the charges preferred against him in resolutions for his address out of office." Whereupon Mr. Ward moved to postpone indefinitely the further proceedings in the case—which was voted down by yeas 12, nays 71.

The house of representatives, on May 29, refused, by a vote of 11 to 63, to dismiss the 1st and 2d charges in the address—which were, "1. That said Bullitt was a member of a secret society or organization commonly known as 'The Sons of Liberty' or 'American Knights,' which is treasonable in its purposes and aims—the same being to give aid and comfort" to those in rebellion, &c.; and "2. That said Bullitt is guilty of a high crime by conspiring with others to oppose with force the lawful government of the United States."

The house then, by a vote of 38 to 34, resolved "That the defense take the evidence on the 3d charge against Judge Bullitt; if that is not sufficient to satisfy the house of the necessity of removing him from office, the 1st and 2d charges will be taken up, and evidence taken to establish said charges or acquit said Judge Bullitt."

On the 30th, the governor transmitted to the senate, and it was read in both houses, Judge Bullitt's letter to him, as follows:

NEAR AMHERSTBURG, Canada West, May 24, 1865.

His Excellency, Thos. E. Bramlette, Governor of Kentucky:

SIR: I received a dispatch from you yesterday evening, giving me "a copy of Gen. Palmer's permission for you [me] to attend the sitting of the legislature." I determined to make no defence before the legislature for two principal reasons. In the first place, whilst in the performance of my duties as chief justice of the court of appeals, I was compelled to leave the state in order to avoid arrest and trial by a military commission, for an alleged offense (treason or conspiracy against the United States), over which the Federal court has jurisdiction, and the military authorities no rightful jurisdiction whatever. In other words, I was driven from the state by lawless violence, against which you nor the legislature could protect me.

Upon this point the facts leave no room for doubt. Soldiers searched my house on the night of the 27th of December last, and again on the night of the 1st of January, for the purpose of arresting me; and on the 8th of January Gen. Burbridge declared, in a public speech at Frankfort, that I ought to have been arrested and "hung," and that I would have been arrested if I had not escaped. I left Ky. and came to Canada after the 27th of December, and solely in consequence of the attempt to arrest me. There is no room for doubt that I was driven from Ky. by lawless violence, against which the state owed me protection.

I do not deny the constitutional power of the legislature to remove an absent officer, by address, for any reason deemed sufficient by that body; and if I had left the state voluntarily to join the Confederate army, as did one or two officers who were thus removed, I should not have questioned the propriety of the proceedings against me. But for the legislature to try me during my enforced residence in a neutral country seemed to me improper and unjust. I should have resigned soon after coming here if those proceedings had not been inaugurated. I determined to give to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth an opportunity to decide the question whether they would rebuke the co., judge of the court of appeals, in place of Joshua F. Bullitt, removed by address.

June 12—Gen. Palmer refuses to surrender Jesse Taggart to the civil authorities for trial in Muhlenburg co. for killing Philander Welbourne—claiming "exclusive jurisdiction for military courts" because Taggart was at the time a soldier, and alleging it "the duty of the military to protect him from a possible trial by disloyal courts and juries;" he must have "evidence that judges, juries, commonwealth's attorneys, &c., charged with the administration of justice, are loyal to the government and would give to persons employed by the government a fair trial," before he will give up any such for trial by the civil courts.

June 15—The house of worship and session room of the 1st Presbyterian church, Louisville, Rev. Samuel R. Wilson, D. D., pastor, taken possession of by the military for hospital purposes. [The "war" is over, but persecution for opinion's sake continues.]

June 15—About 1,200 deaths, within the year past, among the negroes refugeed at Camp Nelson, Jessamine co.

June 16—The court of appeals decides unconstitutional the act of congress making U. S. treasury notes a legal tender. Judge George Robertson delivers the opinion.

June 17—Gen. Edward H. Hobson, commanding 1st division of department of Ky. at Lexington, forbids further arrests by the military "unless there is good proof that the party accused is guilty" as alleged; no more arrests for personal feelings must be made.

June 22—Death, at Cincinnati, aged 74, of Thos. H. Barlow, formerly of Lexington, the inventor of the planetarium.

July 1—The average annual rain-fall at Lexington, for more than 30 years past, is about 45 inches; but for the year ending to-day has been 65.73 inches—nearly 21 inches above the average, or no less than 14,000 barrels to the acre.

July 7—David E. Harrold, who was captured with J. Wilkes Booth; Lewis Payne, who attempted to murder the U. S. secretary of state, Wm. H. Seward; Geo. A. Atzerott, who was to assassinate vice president Andrew Johnson; and Mrs. Mary E. Surratt, at whose house these parties met and plotted—sentenced to death by a military commission, and hung at Washington city. In the case of the latter, a writ of habeas corpus was issued by Judge Wylie, of the U. S. district court; but President Johnson suspended the writ, and Judge Wylie refused to proceed further. As a consequence, Mrs. Surratt was hung—whose father-confessor, Rev. Mr. Walters, says, "not revealing the confessional, that, as God lives, she was innocent of the murder, or of any intent or conspiracy to murder, President Lincoln."

July 8—Military interference, in order to keep its hand in, makes "another departure." Gen. Palmer orders the arrest to-night of all dealers in or keepers of faro or faro banks. In Louisville and Frankfort every bank is closed up and the stocks confiscated. They have swindled the soldiers out of many thousands of dollars.

July 11—Gen. Palmer issues an order to quartermasters to pay all wages earned by negroes to them; and not to "pretended masters," unless with the consent of the laborer.

July 16—Emerson Ethridge, one of the most distinguished citizens of Tennessee, is held under guard at Columbus, Ky., by order of Maj. Gen. Geo. H. Thomas, and not allowed to converse on political affairs, on pain of close confinement.

July 20—Upwards of 200 Federal soldiers, arrested on various charges, have been released from prisons throughout Ky., during this month, by the judge advocate of the department of Ky.

July 20—2,336 persons in Louisville pay a U. S. "income tax"—1 on over $75,000, 2 over $70,000, 2 over $60,000, 2 over $50,000, 10 over $40,000, 21 over $30,000, 29 over $20,000, 33 over $15,000, 76 over $10,000, 82 over $7,000, 86 over $5,000, 248 over $3,000, 505 over $1,000, and 1,230 under $1,000; making an aggregate of $7,296,390 of income in one year.

July 20—Gen. John M. Palmer—who seems to act as if he were the autocrat of Kentucky, instead of military commandant—issues general orders No. 49, which directs provost marshals or commanding officers of troops to issue—to all colored persons applying, and representing themselves as unable to find employment—"passes authorizing them to pass at will in search of employment, upon any railroad, steamboat, ferryboat, or other means of travel in the state of Ky. or plying out of it from any point in it;" and ordering the arrest and sending out of the state, or trial and punishment by military commission, of any railroad or steamboat conductor or clerk or other public carrier who refuses them transportation anywhere, upon their presenting said pass and the usual fare. July 22 to 28—At Paris, Lexington, and some other points, such passes (which the negroes call their "free papers," and act accordingly) are issued as fast as they can be filled out—about 1,300 at Paris alone.

July 22—Gov. Bramlette issues a long proclamation addressed "to the officers of election and citizens of Ky.," in which he notifies them that "the law requires that the person offering to vote should state on oath that he has not entered into the service of the so-called Confederate States, in either a civil or military capacity, nor into the service of the so-called Provisional Government of Kentucky, in either a civil or military capacity, since the 10th day of April, 1862, nor has he continued in such service since that date; nor has he given since that date any voluntary aid and assistance to those in arms against the United States or the state of Kentucky." EARLY HIGHLAND IMMIGRATION TO NEW YORK

In the year 1734, proposals were issued by the government of New York inviting settlers from Europe, to whom a certain quantity of wild land was to be granted on their arrival in this country. These proposals were repeated under the seal of the Province in 1736, and in 1738 Captain Lauchlin Campbell, of Isla, brought over a number of Scotch Highlanders, who were followed in 1739, 1740, and 1742 by others.

I have lately come across a list containing the names of these immigrants, and having arranged them in alphabetical order, for more easy reference, I send a copy for publication in the Historical Magazine, as it may interest the descendants of those people, if any there be, in America.

This Committee taking under Consideration the Necessity of Administring an Oath of Secrecy to the Members of this Committee. --- Do Resolve, that the following Obligation be administered to every Member of the Same Committee.

Ordered, that the following Letter be wrote to the Committee of Schenectady and Albany; Vizt. ---

Mr. Ebenezer Cox informed this Board, that Mr.

Peter S. Tygert told this Informant, that he was informed by a person, who we have Reason to think, has it from good authority, that Col. Johnson was ready with 800. or 900. Indians to make an Invasion of this County, that the same Indians were to be under the Command of Joseph Brand and Walter Butler, and that they were to fall on the Inhabitants below the Little Falls, in order to divide the people in two parts, and were to march yesterday, or the Day before; Capt. Jacob Clock informed this Board, that this Morning about an hour before day three Indians of Fort Hunter came to his House from Oswego in their Way home, that he was informed by a free Negroman, a servt. of him, that they had each a Bag of powder on their horses, that they staid about an hour and then went off. --- From these and other concomitant Circumstances, We have but too much Reason to think, it is true, and that all our Enemies in this County will appear in arms against us, as soon as the Indians are nigh to us, which from the above Information we must expect in a few Days ---

We have sent off a party of people by Way of a Scout, to find out, if possible, the Rout of the Indians, and to give us early Intelligence --- Our ammunition is so scant that We cannot furnish three hundred Men so as to be able to make a Stand against so great a Number ---

In these deplorable Circumstances We look up to You for assistance both in Men and Ammunition, to save this County from Slaughter and Desolation, which We beg you will not be backward to afford us as soon as possible ---

We have ordered some of our Companies up towards the Little Falls, who are to keep scouting parties out; And we intend to keep sitting until such Time, as we can be convinced of our Safety. --- This is the more alarming to us, as we shall be obliged in a few days to begin with our harvest. Men are therefore absolutely necessary ---

We beg of you to forward this by Express to Albany & Copies from these to the provincial Congress and to General Schuyler ---

&c ---

Ordered, that the above so far as it relates to the Name of the person who gave Mr. Tygert the Intelligence, be kept a profound Secret ---

Resolved, that necessary Orders in that Concern be sent immediately to the Captains ---

71. JEREMIAH S. [7] EVEREST (Silas-D. [6], Lt. Benjamin [5], Benjamin [4], Benjamin [3], Isaac [2], Andrew [1]), born in Vergennes, Vt.,* 5 Aug. 1810, died in Mt. Pleasant, Mich., 27 Apr. 1891, buried in Palo, Mich. He married, in Orleans County, N. Y., 25 Nov. 1832, POLLY-M. LEWIS, born in New York, 21 Sept. 1815, died in Palo, 17 Mar. 1875, daughter of Stephen and Lucinda (Rice) Lewis.

Taken by his father to Orleans County, in 1834 the family went to Michigan and settled there in Wayne County. In 1850, we find in Royal Oak, Oakland County, Mich., page 239: "J. S. Everest," aged 40, farmer, born in N. Y. [sic], with wife Mary, aged 35, born in Mich. [sic], and their children: Jane 16, Benjamin 12, Emily 10, Charles 8, Mary 5, Amelia 3, and George 3 months, all born in Mich. Between 1844 and 1854, the Lamphere School Records, of Royal Oak, show in attendance, Benjamin, Emily, Charles and Mary-E. Everest. (Detroit Soc. for Gen. Research, 9: 9.)

Jeremiah's second son was killed in the Civil War:

Charles-J. Everest, b. Wayne Co., Mich., aged 18, farmer, enlisted 5 Aug. 1862, Ionia, Mich., consent of father Jeremiah-S. Everest given at N. Plains, Mich. Soldier d. 25 Nov. 1862, at Louisville, Ky., or Nashville, Tenn. (A. G. O.)

In 1885, the father applied for aid:

2 Sept. 1885, Isabella Co., Mich., Jeremiah-S. Everest, aged 75, declared that he was the father of Charles-J. Everest, who volunteered 5 Aug. 1862, at Ionia, Mich., in Co. A., 21st Mich Vols., War of 1861–65, that said son d. in service, at Nashville, Tenn., aged 19, 25 Nov. 1862, with rank of 5th Corporal; he further declared that said son left no widow or children, and that he, the applicant, married the mother of said son, 22 Nov. 1832, Orleans Co., N. Y., the ceremony performed by the Rev. Elder Half. Further, that he was, in part, dependent upon this son for support and that the mother died 17 Mar. 1875, Palo, Ionia Co., Mich. Surviving said son are these siblings:
Charlotte J. Smith, b. 27 Aug. 1834.
Benjamin Everest, b. 22 Aug. 1838.
Emily Martin, b. 22 May 1841
Mary Ray, b. 27 May 1846 [looks like "Redy" in the recd.]

* His birth is not of recd., but his father served in the 1812–14 war from Vergennes, so the family recd. undoubtedly correct; note 7 Apr., and 22 Nov., are also given for his death and marriage; from census it would appear his wife was b. in Mich., but N. Y. prob. correct. W. L. H.

Amelia Collins, b. — 1848.
George Everest, b. — 1850.
Hattie Kimball, b — 1854.
Etta Tygart, b. — 1858.

His post office is Mt. Pleasant, Isabella Co., Mich. Pension not granted. (Charles-J. Everest, Civil War, Jeremiah-S. Everest, father, C.260645.)

He married, secondly, in North Shade, Mich., 18 Jan. 1862 *, EMMA COLLETT, born 20 July 1824, died probably in 1909.†

Theodore and his first wife were members of the Baptist Church, around 1856, in Bloomer, Montcalm County, Mich., in which township Carson City is located. Earlier they were of Royal Oak, Oakland County, Mich., where in 1850, page 247, we find: Theodore, aged 35, carpenter, born in N. Y., "Lusinda" aged 27, his wife, born same, and children all born in Mich.: Sarah 11, "Terisa" 9, Silas 7, Clarissa 5, "Almina" 3, Albert 1; also with them a John Savage, aged 17, born in N. Y., perhaps a brother of Lucinda's.

In the Manuscript we note a letter dated 25 Sept. 1891, from "New Waren," written and signed by "Theodore L. Everest," who speaks of his service in the Civil War and when in hospital in Philadelphia, Pa., in Fall of 1862, he was visited "by a son of John Everest of Addison or Grandson of Ira Everest." The record shows:

Musician Theodore-L. Everest, co. H., 16th Mich. Inf., enlisted at Detroit, Mich., 8 Sept. 1861, aged 44; b. Plattsburg, N. Y.; disch. 17 Sept. 1862 for disability; a carpenter when he enlisted. (A. G. O.)

He applied for and received a pension:

* Theodore-L. Everest, about 47, of Bloomer, Montcalm Co., and Emma Collett, about 38, of N. Shade, m. 18 Jan. 1863, in N. Shade, by the Rev. William-H. Hall; wit: Henry and Sarah Burt of N. Shade. (Gratiot Co., Mich., Marriages, 1855–70, p. 24, D. A. R.)

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

The second courthouse was built in 1834; so, leaving the intervening county court records untouched, I quote from Record Book No. 4, page 135, under date of January 27, 1834:

The persons appointed for that purpose report the situation of the court house of this county, at this court, upon the examination thereof, deem it inexpedient to make any repairs on the present building; that it would be greatly to the public's good to build a new house instead of repairing the old one, and a majority of all the justices in commission of the place being present and concurring therein, it is ordered that Edward Rumsey, Strother Jones, Charles Fox Wing, James Taggart and Wm. Hancock be and they are hereby appointed commissioners to draft a plan of a building for a new court house for the county and that they make a report thereof to the next county court.

The commissioners appointed for that purpose reported that they had drafted a plan for a new court house for this county, which being examined and accepted of by the court, it is therefore ordered that Ephraim M. Brank, Wm. Martin, Coroner R. D. McLean and Charles Fox Wing or any three of them be and they are hereby appointed commissioners to let to the lowest bidder the building or erecting of said house upon the ground whereon the present building stands, after giving due notice by advertising the same, which building is to be completed on or before the first day of August, 1835, to be paid for by installments, that is to say, $500 to be paid as soon as the building shall be covered in, and the balance to be paid in two annual installments, payable out of the county levy, in such money as the said levy may be collected in, taking bond with approved security for the faithful performance of the work on said house with the said plan annexed.

I did not find the plans annexed to this document. However, I will state that according to my memory the old brick courthouse was about thirty-two feet square and two stories high. The court room took up the entire lower floor, while the second was divided into three small rooms, reached by steps erected on the outside of the building against the south wall.

The contractor, after having almost finished a certain part of his work, was obliged to tear it down and rebuild it in order to comply with his agreement. This delayed matters, and the house was not finished "on or before William Bell and his brothers Josiah, Robert, and Thomas Bell came to Muhlenberg County about the year 1797. All of them became well-known men. Although the name of Bell is now extinct in the county, they are still represented by many descendants through their daughters. William Bell was born in 1768 and died in 1826.

Peter Boggess was a bachelor, a son of pioneer Richard Boggess, who came to Muhlenberg from Virginia about 1797 and settled near Pond Creek, above the Russellville Road, where he died about 1805. Richard Boggess was the father of Richard, jr., J. Warren, Joel, Peter, Robert, William, Lemuel, and Eli Boggess.

THE OLD MILITIA MUSTER

UP to the year 1850 every man in Kentucky considered himself a soldier, and was so considered in the eyes of the law. Until the Third Constitution was adopted, every male citizen from the age of twenty to forty-five, with a few exceptions, was on the enrolled militia and reported at a mustering place on specified dates and there took part in military drills. Such was the law old Virginia inherited from England, and it was also the law when Kentucky became a State, and, as before stated, remained a law until 1850. To-day every able-bodied man from eighteen to forty-five years of age is enrolled as a soldier of the United States under compulsion to respond if called upon in time of war. If he does not belong to the regular army or navy, or is not a member of the national guard, he then belongs to the reserve militia.

Previous to about the year 1820 the militia muster was a gathering of citizen-soldiers who met for the purpose of drilling, and all devoted their time while on the muster grounds to military exercises conducted according to military tactics. However, about five years after the second war with England, interest in the military features of these gatherings began to decline, and during the second quarter of the century all of the musters were more or less a farce.

The law required all able-bodied men, with a few exceptions, to report for duty at the musters, and imposed a fine for non-attendance. The company musters usually took place in April, June, August, and September; the battalion usually in May, and the regimental in October. In the early days a company consisted of from fifty to one hundred men, including officers; two to four companies constituted a battalion, and two to four battalions formed a regiment. The number of men in these various organizations was governed principally by the extent of the population in the locality.

Among the many places in the county on which companies met to drill were: The courthouse yard, the Russell Old Field, the Andy Craig place, Kincheloe's Bluff, Morehead's Field (now Central City), the George Clark place, Thomas Sumner's farm, the Solomon Rhoads farm, the Hunt Old Field, William Bell's, the Vanlandingham Old Place, the Jim Taggart farm, Wyatt Wells', the Mosley Collins Drake farm, Old Liberty, Mike Lovell's, Old Millport, and the Gish Old Field. Up to about 1820 most of the battalion and regimental drills took place in Greenville. After that time the place of rendezvous for the men in the southern part of the county was changed to the Russell Old Field, southeast of Greenville, near what is now Pleasant Hill Church. In the meantime regimental musters also took place

Two letters written during the latter part of 1863 by D. C. Humphreys, of Spring Station, Woodford County, to Gilbert Vaught Rhoads, contain much that pertains to this period of Muhlenberg's history. D. C. Humphreys for many years owned a tract of timber land lying near the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, between Browder and Bellton. Shortly before the Civil War broke out Alexander Todd came to Muhlenberg to look after this land for his uncle, and with a view of making this his permanent home. He opened a small farm and built a cabin, in which he lived for a few years. D. C. Humphreys' sister, Elizabeth Humphreys, was the second wife of Robert S. Todd, who by his first wife was the father of six children (among whom was Mrs. Abraham Lincoln) and by his second wife was the father of seven children, among whom was Alexander Todd and Mrs. Ben Hardin Helm. Alexander Todd, having received a special invitation from Abraham Lincoln, went from Muhlenberg County to Washington City to witness the inauguration of his brother-in-law, March 4, 1861. Shortly after his return he joined the Southern army, became ordnance sergeant in the First Kentucky Cavalry, was made aide-de-camp on the staff of General Ben Hardin Helm, and on August 5, 1862, was killed at Baton Rouge. "Aleck" Todd was a bright young man, and during his stay of a few years in the county was a great favorite among the old people as well as among those of his own age. Although he had a well-furnished cabin of his own, he spent much of his time in the homes of two of his neighbors, David and Absalom J. Rhoads. Alexander Todd, after his death, was succeeded as overseer of the Humphrey tract by his friend Gilbert V. Rhoads:

Spring Station, Kentucky.

Gilbert V. Rhoads, Esq.—My dear friend:—Your very acceptable letter of 30th September I received a short time since. It arrived while I was absent in Illinois which will account for your not receiving an answer sooner. I am happy to learn you have recovered from the dangerous attack of sickness you had in June last, and that you bid fair to be in the enjoyment of your usual health again. What a blessing it is to enjoy health and how thankful we all are to Him in whom we live and move and have our being for it.

I have been anxious for two years to pay you a visit, and had made my arrangements to send some hands down to open a large tobacco farm, but this cruel and unnatural war has broken up all my arrangements, and now I don't think it worth while to count upon the work or value of my negro labour. If the war lasts much longer all our young and valuable negroe men will be pressed into the service to make railroads, cut wood, drive wagons, make fortifications or perhaps enlisted as soldiers. I think the abolitionists are determined to give a finishing blow to slavery in America. Should they succeed I pity the poor negroes. I hope God will overrule and govern all things for our present and eternal good, the good of his church and his glory.

I have been speaking to a man who has lived with me several years about going to Muhlenberg and living on my land. He has not yet made up his mind on the subject. I don't wish you to rent my place to any one until you hear from me. My rent corn dispose of as soon as you can for the best price you can get, and retain the money in your hands until further instructions. Write to me and let me know the amount you receive for it. Corn here is in good demand at $3.00 per barrel in the field and will be higher. The crop of corn in Indiana and Illinois is very poor; the drought and the early frost have cut it down to almost nothing in places. Last year in Illinois I got only 12½ cents per bushell for my rent corn; this year I am offered 40 cents.

I am glad to learn that my old friend Mrs. Rachael Rhoads is still enjoying good health. Remember me kindly to her and all the family. Give my kindest regards to my old friend Isaac Woods who I sincerely hope is prepared to live or prepared to die whenever God in his providence shall see fit to call him. When you see Mr. Baker remember me to him and his wife whose kindness and hospitality I can never forget.

My family are all well except my grandson David who has been confined for seven weeks with a swelled knee. I fear it is white swelling. He is much better and I hope will recover without a stiff knee.

Write me soon and believe me sincerely Your friend,

D. C. HUMPHREYS.

Spring Station, Kentucky.
9th December, 1863.

Mr. G. V. Rhoads,—Dear Sir:—I am just in receipt of your kind letter of 21st November which by some mistake was missent. I am glad to learn you are enjoying peace and quietness and sincerely hope you may long be exempt from the horrors of war. It is bad enough at a distance but when it comes into our own houses it is dreadful.

I notice your remarks about Chancy. My sister Mrs. Todd is now in Alabama where she got permission from President Lincoln to go for her daughter (who was married to General Helm who was killed at the battle of Chickamauga.) She gave me no special directions about Chancy, but I am satisfied she wishes her and her son and daughter hired out and would consult Chancy's wish in a considerable measure as to whom she would like to live with. Certainly from my knowledge of Mr. Taggart my sister will have no objection to his having Chancy, and if he is willing to give a fair price for Chancy and she is anxious to live with him, let him have her.

You said nothing in your letter about my rent corn for the year 1863. Write to me about it on receipt.

I would like to pay a short visit to Muhlenberg this winter if I thought the Guerillas would not overhaul me. I hope the country will soon be free of them.

Remember me to Mrs. Rachael Rhoads and all the family and accept for yourself and family my best wishes for your health, happiness and prosperity. Yours truly,

D. C. HUMPHREYS.

These two letters, it might be well to add, were found in the attic of an old two-story weatherboarded log house standing on a hill overlooking Browder. A few years ago a number of old papers, regarded as rubbish by the man who had rented the house, were burned after they had been removed from between two of the logs in the wall of this building. Evidently these two had slipped down behind the lower log when the other letters were removed. At any rate, they were there discovered by Miss Amy M. Longest, who recognized their value as documents bearing on local history.

On or about May 10, 1864, there took place what is known as the Fight at Sullivan's Barn. Captain Henry L. Vickers, a recruiting officer for the Southern army, whose home was near Paradise and who while a member of Company C, Ninth Kentucky Infantry, was wounded at Shiloh, was scouting in Ohio and McLean counties and had with him sixteen Confederates, most of whom were recruits. In their march through Ohio County this squad appropriated a horse belonging to Ashby Woodward. When Woodward discovered that his animal had been taken he declared he "would get his horse back or die in the attempt." He reported the robbery to his brother, Captain Steven Woodward, of the Twenty-sixth Kentucky Infantry, who was an officer of the Home Guards of McLean and Ohio counties, and who immediately organized a pursuing party of about thirty-two men.

In the meantime Captain Vickers and his squad rode toward Green River, crossed that stream at Point Pleasant, four miles below South Carrollton, and at about four o'clock in the evening arrived on the Raleigh Sullivan farm in Northern Muhlenberg, three miles west of Green River. Knowing that he had come to the home of a Southern sympathizer, Captain Vickers asked Sullivan for food for his men and forage for his horses, which request was readily complied with.

After feeding their animals in the barn all the men walked to the house, a distance of about one hundred yards, to eat the meal that had been prepared for them. They, however, failed to put out any sentries.

[illegible] Gross. Gross was then a young husband, and no doubt thought of his young wife and children who needed his assistance. If we had known that the raiders were coming back so soon we would have been properly prepared to give them a warm reception.

They did not remain long. On their return from Greenville my sister met them at the door as they came in, and in her good-natured way checked them from any molestation. She was shown the nice plunder they had gotten at Greenville and was offered some of it, but declined to accept any. After the robbers had been gone about half an hour, five neighbor men came riding up with guns. They had been hunting on Pond River. We told them of our experience. The crowd discussed the question of pursuit, but finally came to the conclusion that the "Twelve Raiders" could not be overtaken.

I remember that, on one occasion during 1864, Jake Bennett passed through the county and Greenville. He came in from the southern part of Muhlenberg, where he captured Jesse Taggart, who was a leader of the Home Guards and a very active Union man. Bennett shaved Taggart's head, then turned him loose, and came on to Greenville. He dashed into town one Sunday morning with about twenty men, greatly to the surprise of the people. Quite a crowd of negroes was on the streets at the time. Bennett's men began "shooting up" the town, and the negroes commenced running and scattered about like young partridges, some hallooing, "Oh, Lordy! Oh, Lordy!" After Bennett had cleared the street his men broke open the door of Hancock & Reno's store, went in and helped themselves, and then left town, going north. In about an hour a company of Federals came up in pursuit, but they did not overtake the Bennett band.

Jake Bennett made his last raid through Muhlenberg County in 1865. Bennett and Gentry, with parts of two companies, came down the Russellville Road the last Monday in March, 1865; it was county court day, and many people were in Greenville. It was Bennett's intention to pass through the town and raid the place, but when he heard that there was a company of Federal infantry then in Greenville he and his men turned out from the Russellville Road at a point about three miles south of town, and bore around east. All the people who had come to town and were returning home on the Russellville Road were stopped. Some were turned back, some captured; some were relieved of their money, and some were forced to swap or surrender horses. They kept picking up the natives, and soon had quite a crowd of prisoners on their hands.

They experienced some trouble with Alney Newman, who lived in that neighborhood near Pond Creek. A lieutenant under Gentry asked Newman what his politics were. Newman, being angry, answered in a stubborn manner that he was a Union man. He was then ordered to get off his horse; he refused, and they beat him over the head with their pistols. After he had been pretty badly bruised he got down. They next told him to take off his saddle, and when he refused to comply the lieutenant ordered the squad to cock their guns and level them at Newman. At this juncture

Members of the State Senate from Muhlenberg County are given by Collins as follows: "Wm. Worthington, 1814-26; Wm. C. McNary, 1846-50; Wiley S. Hay, 1853-57; Finis M. Allison, 1867-71. From Muhlenburg, Butler, and Ohio counties—Robert S. Russell, 1850." Colonel William Campbell was a member of the State Senate in 1800, representing what was then "Livingston, Henderson, Muhlenburg, and Ohio counties."

[6] Doctor Addison D. James was born in Butler County, February 27, 1849, moved to Muhlenberg at the age of twenty, and died at his home near Penrod June 7, 1910. He received his degree of medicine from the University of Louisville in 1869 and the same year began the practice of his profession at Penrod, in which he continued until about 1890, when he entered politics. In 1891 he represented Muhlenberg in the State Constitutional Convention. He was twice elected to the lower house of the Legislature, and also served as State Senator. In 1893 he was a Commissioner at the World's Fair, Chicago. In 1897 he was appointed United States Marshal, which office he filled for eight years. In 1906 he was elected a member of Congress from the Third District. He was the third man who, while living in Muhlenberg, became a member of Congress. Doctor James was an energetic man, kind and accommodating to all, regardless of their politics.

[7] Doctor A. D. James resigned January 21, 1893, and W. J. Cox, who was elected to fill his unexpired term, took his seat February 8, 1893.

[8] D. P. Taggart took the oath of office and served until February 14, 1906, when the contest between him and Doctor T. J. Slaton was decided. The House of Representatives ordered and adjudged that Doctor T. J. Slaton was on November 7, 1905, duly elected Representative from Muhlenberg County and entitled to his seat, and on February 15, 1906, he took the oath of office and his seat in the Legislature.

and is the eldest of two children born to Joseph and Ellen (Thomas) Haden, natives of Logan County, Ky., and Washington County, Md., respectively. Joseph Haden was the son of Capt. William Haden, who first married Jane Moman of Virginia, and who died about six months after marriage. He then married Nancy Johnson of Virginia; six boys and four girls were born to this union. William Haden and wife immigrated to Kentucky and settled near Lexington; in 1778, moved to Logan County, and settled on Black Lick Creek, where he entered and improved a farm and built the first brick house in Logan County. He died in 1819, after rearing one of the most interesting and influential families of Logan County. William Haden was a son of John Haden, who had four sons. John Haden was the son of Anthony Haden of England, who married Margaret Douglas of Scotland. Their sons were John, William, Joseph, Thomas and Zachariah. George W. Haden was reared on the farm. When but six months old, his mother carried him on horseback from Maryland to Logan County, Ky., where his parents lived until he was four years old, when they moved to Todd County, and lived three years. Then they went to Maryland where his father died in a short time. After a residence of four years in Maryland, George W. returned to Logan County, Ky., with his mother. In 1837, he moved to Muhlenberg County, where he owned about 500 acres of land and about thirty negroes at breaking out of the war. He was married April 29, 1850, to Lucy R. Slaughter, a native of Russellville, Logan County and a daughter of Clayton Slaughter and Amanda P. (Morton) Slaughter, born in Logan County, Ky., in 1808, and Virginia in 1809, respectively. Clayton Slaughter was the son of Thomas Slaughter, who was born in Kentucky. To Mr. and Mrs. Haden were born ten children, eight receiving names: Joseph C., Alice (deceased) Amanda M. (Bohannan), Nellie (deceased), Harriet (deceased), George (deceased), Kelley (deceased) and Roy. Mr. Haden cast his first vote for Martin Van Buren in 1836; voted the Whig ticket from 1840 to 1860. In 1864, commenced voting the Democratic ticket.

MARCELLUS C. HAY, a leading attorney of Greenville, was born January 17, 1839, in Muhlenburgh Co., Kentucky, four miles east of Greenville. He is the third of seven children born to Wiley S. and Isaphene (Robertson) Hay, natives of North Carolina and Muhlenburgh County respectively, and on the father's side of Scotch descent. Wiley S. Hay was the son of Kinnard Hay, who married Edith Moore, a native of North Carolina. Subject's mother was the daughter of David Robertson, who married Rachael Dennis, whose people were among the first settlers of Muhlenburgh County were here when the county was organized. Wiley S. Hay was a member of the Kentucky legislature two terms, one term in the senate. Marcellus C. was reared on a farm, and received a good English education. At the age of fourteen, he engaged as a clerk in the mercantile business, which business he continued for twenty years in Greenville. In 1874 he commenced the study of the law. From 1868 to 1883 he was master in chancery and —— of the circuit court of Muhlenburgh County. In June, 1882, he organized the Bank of Greenville, and became its president. In September, 1861, he enlisted in Company C, Ninth Kentucky, Confederate States army, under Capt. Mitchell, Thomas H. Hunt, colonel commanding; was engaged in the battle of Shiloh, where he was wounded in the right leg; was captured and taken to St. Louis; took a non combatant parole, in July, 1862; he was an orderly. He returned to his home where he has since remained. He was married December, 1864, to Sallie Brizendine, of Logan County, Ky., daughter of Bowler and Mary (Yost) Brizendine, natives of Logan County. To this union were born two children: Annie L. and Mary B. Mr. and Mrs. Hay are Presbyterians. He is a member of the K. of H.

GILBERT DENCH HEMENWAY, Muhlenburgh County, was born in the State of Massachusetts, on the 21st of September, 1826. He made his start in life when twelve years of age, worked in a wool factory for 33 cents a day, and boarded himself. This he continued for six years in the Simpson factory at Saxonville, Mass., after that was in a factory at Rock Bottom, Mass., for three years; then was superintendent of a carding factory at Fitchburg; afterward had charge of the cloth dressing department of the Coach-lace factory at Clinton, Mass., for two years, and for two years following had charge of the carding in a carpet factory at Assabett, Mass.; then went to Chattanooga, Tenn., and taught music for awhile, after which he operated a roll-card and flouring-mill at a point seventeen miles from Chattanooga, until 1866, from that time until 1872, he had charge of the carding and spinning in Medlock Mills, at Jeffersonville, Ind., after which he was for three years, in Princeton, Ky., and afterward in the confectionery trade in Marion, Ky., eighteen months; then six years in Logan County in charge of the Logan Mills on Red River, after which he removed to Skilesville, in Muhlenburgh County, and bought a carding factory on Green River, where he has since remained. Mr. Hemenway married, at the age of twenty-one, Mary Phillipps, whose parents were natives of Massachusetts, and residents of the town of Rock Bottom. Mrs. Hemenway died in 1870, aged thirty-five years. She left two children: Charles H. and Mary Estella. John, the youngest son, died in 1867. In September, 1883, Mr. Hemenway married Mrs. Mary T., widow of E. E. Rhodes, of Muhlenburgh County. Mr. and Mrs. Hemenway are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, politically Mr. Hemenway is a Democrat. His habits are systematic, and he is a thorough man of business. To the cause of temperance he gives his influence by example as well as precept.

JOSEPH P. HENDRICKS is a native of Muhlenburgh County, born June 6, 1827, and is the fourth of four boys and one girl, born to James A. and Susanna (Peters) Hendricks, natives of North Carolina and Virginia, respectively, and of Dutch descent. His grandfather, Jacob Hendricks, who married Frano Rollen, came to this county at a very early age, and settled near Bremen. The mother of our subject was a daughter of Christopher Peters, who married May Noffsinger; they were among the first settlers in the vicinity of Bremen. Joseph P. Hendricks was reared on a farm, received a common school education, and taught school in the county fourteen years. He lived with his parents until the age of twenty-two. In 1860 he was elected justice, which position he filled until 1870, when he resigned on account of a great railroad debt hanging over the county. In 1878 he was appointed deputy clerk, and served two years; was elected police judge of Bremen in 1881, which position he still holds; has settled up a great many estates during his life. Mr. Hendricks was married April, 1849, to Susan Shaver, of Muhlenburgh County, daughter of Andrew and Susan (Bowers) Shaver, natives of Virginia, and of Dutch descent. The Shaver family came to Kentucky about 1827, and settled near Bremen. To this marriage were born five children, three now living: Rufus L., Caroline (Bennett), James A. and Lanora A. (deceased), married R. L. Eads. Mr. Hendricks and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; he is a Mason, cast his first presidential vote for Gen. Taylor in 1848; in 1864, commenced voting the Democratic ticket. Mrs. Hendricks' grandfather, Martin Bowers, was married in Germany—supposed.

JESSE S. HILL was born March 14, 1841, in Muhlenburgh County, near Bremen, and is the first of four boys and two girls, born to Jacob and Nancy (Danner) Hill, both natives of Muhlenburgh County. Jacob Hill was a son of Thomas Hill. Thomas Hill was a native of Maryland, of English descent; came to this county about the year 1812, where he purchased and improved land; his wife, Nancy (Noffsinger) Hill, was a native of Virginia, of Dutch descent. The mother of our subject was a daughter of Samuel Danner, who married Catherine Noffsinger, natives of Virginia and of Dutch descent. They came to Muhlenburgh County about 1812, and settled near Bremen. Samuel Dannar was a Dunkard preacher. Jesse S. Hill was reared on a farm, received a common school education, and taught several terms. He lived with his parents until the breaking out of the war, when he enlisted in October, 1861, in Company H, Eleventh Kentucky Volunteer Infantry; was promoted second lieutenant in August, 1862, after the battle of Shiloh; resigned in October, 1862, on account of disability; returned home and engaged in farming and teaching till 1864, when he engaged as a salesman in South Carrollton; in a few months he went to Bremen, where, in 1867, he went into business for himself; in 1869 went into business at South Carrollton, where he was engaged, except one year at Bremen, until 1875, when he was appointed store-keeper for the government eighteen months; in 1877 went to Hanson, Hopkins County, and engaged in the mercantile business; in 1879 returned to South Carrollton, where he has since been successfully engaged in the mercantile business. He was married to Kate Nichols, of Muhlenburgh County, September 14, 1870; she is the daughter of James and Margaret (Lee) Nichols, who were born and reared in Muhlenburgh and Daviess Counties, and their parents were among the earliest settlers of the country. Mr. and Mrs. Hill are Baptists. Mr. Hill is a member of the K. of H.

JEREMIAH M. HOPE was born April 7, 1819, in Muhlenburgh County, Ky., near the sight of the present village of Penrod. His father, James J. Hope, was a native of Virginia, from which State he removed to Georgia when a young man, and there married Susannah Jago, whose father was a native of Maryland, and of Irish descent. James J. Hope, after his marriage, came to Kentucky and located in Muhlenburgh County, where he resided, and where he followed the vocacampaigns of Chattanooga and Atlanta; Hood's campaign of Tennessee; battles of Franklin and Nashville, and surrendered April, 1865, at Washington, Ga.; returned home and farmed one year, when he engaged in mercantile business, at Franklin, Tenn., for ten years. In 1876, he engaged in the manufacture of staves and lumber in Logan County, Ky. In 1880, he located in Muhlenburg County, at Briggsville, engaged in the stave and lumber trade aed also in the mercantile business. He and his brother, J. B. Briggs, own three or four thousand acres of timber land. Mr. Briggs was married November, 1870, to Tillie Harrison, of Williamson County, Tenn., a daughter of William and Mary (Hughes) Harrison, of English descent. To this union four children were born: Anna James, Willie May, Tillie and Bettie B. Mr. and Mrs. Briggs are members of the Methodist Church, and he is a member of the K. of P.

GEORGE W. BRIGGS, Muhlenburgh County, was born May 4, 1848, in Logan County, Ky., and is the second of six children born to David C. and Sarah (Whitescarver) Briggs, natives of Warren and Logan Counties, respectively, and of English origin. David C. was a son of George Briggs, a native of Virginia, and a farmer; came to Kentucky about 1820. G. W. Briggs was reared on a farm and received a common school education. He lived with his parents until he enlisted June 9, 1865, in Company G, Seventeenth Kentucky Cavalry, under Col. Sam Johnson; he participated in a few skirmishes and was discharged October 4, 1865; he returned home and engaged in farming in Muhlenburgh County, Ky. The parents of our subject moved to Wayne County, Ill., when the war broke out; later to Mt. Vernon, Ind., and were gone three years. George W. Briggs located in Muhlenburgh County, in 1867, where he has since resided; was deputy sheriff of Muhlenburgh County from 1879 to 1883; has since been engaged in the tobacco trade, and meets with good success. He was for a short time engaged in the mercantile business with Jones & Penrod; at present the firm name is James & Briggs. Mr. Briggs was married November 7, 1869, to Sarah J. Welborn, of Muhlenburgh County, a daughter of Henry and Elvira A. (Tigart) Welborn, natives of Muhlenburgh County, and of English descent, and who were some of the first settlers of the county. Her grandfather, James Tigart, came from New Hampshire. To Mr. and Mrs. Briggs were born five children: Addie C., Sarah F., Alma D., Eller B. and Anna L. Mrs. Briggs died April 27, 1884, a member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Briggs was formerly a member of the Grange.

SAMUEL BROWN was born January 4, 1856, in Muhlenburgh County, and is the fourth of six children, born to Samuel and Susan M. (McDonald) Brown, natives of Virginia and Kentucky, respectively, and of Irish descent. Subject's father was a son of Nathaniel Brown, was born and reared in Virginia; was a soldier in the war of 1812, was a teacher and farmer and came to Muhlenburgh County about 1830, and settled near Greenville, where he lived all his life. Our subject was reared on the farm and attended the common schools, when not engaged in the duties incident to farm life; he was but five years of age when his mother died and seven at the death of his father; he lived with an uncle until eighteen, when he worked by the month for one year. He then went to school for nearly two years, after which he engaged in the timber business. In 1877 he engaged as salesman with E. S. McManan at Central City, for three years; then engaged for two years in the hotel business; was for a short time at Kuttawa, on the Cumberland; then came to Central City, where he is now engaged in running the Commercial Hotel; in his business enterprises he has been very successful. He has lived in Muhlenburgh County all his life with the exception of three years, one in Missouri and two in McLean County. He was married July 10, 1883, to Catherine Williams, of Muhlenburgh County, daughter of John M. and Sarah A. (Anthoney) Williams, a native of Muhlenburgh County, and of Irish origin. One child blesses this union—Florence. Mr. Brown is a member of the K. of H.

J. G. CATES was born in Muhlenberg County, Ky., November 23, 1849, and is the sixth of eight children, three boys and five girls born to Wilson G. and Rebecca S. Cates. The eldest child, Margaret E., married P. B. Hale, of Texas; Samuel J., who served four years in the United States service, married Minerva Thrailkill, of Spencer County, Ind.; Joanna M. was married to Washington Singleton, of Indiana; Robert D., died while in the United States service in 1863; Julia A., married William M. Brisco, of Indiana; Sarah S. died in infancy; Mary A. married, S. Lacefield, of Grayson County, Ky. The father of our subject was a son of Robert D. Cates of Shelbyville, Tenn., and grandson of James F. Cates, of South Carolina, and great-grandson of Robert Cates, of England. He came to Muhlenberg County, Ky., in 1830, and in 1830 was married to though he seems to have lived on lot 24 in the second farm above the present stone church, Lieut. Thomas Shoemaker (who drew lot 12 on north side) and for Ensign Fredrik Starin. (Now since there was no other name on the Burnettsfield patent at this time to fit this one I assume that since the first name is shortened, that the last name is shortened also, and that this is Frederick Staring who drew lot 24 on the north side).

These four men were all located at German Flatts. If I am wrong in any of my comments I shall gladly be corrected. Now we will give the names of the men in the companies. The names are spelled as in the records, viz.

NORTH CAROLINA LAND GRANTS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

VOLUME I: TRYON COUNTY 1768-1773

INTRODUCTION

Tryon County was formed in 1768 from Mecklenburg County, but actually did not take effect until in April 1769. The border line between North and South Carolina was not extended beyond the Catawba River until June 4, 1772. Prior to that survey, Tryon County's southern boundary was left open. The western boundary was established by the Indian boundary of 1767, running from White Oak Mountain in present Polk County, N. C. to a point on the Reedy River, on the present Laurens County-Greenville County, S. C. line. The eastern boundary was the Catawba River. Therefore until the survey of June 4, 1772, Tryon County included all or part of the present S. C. counties of Greenville, Laurens, Spartanburg, Cherokee, Union, York and Chester. North and South Carolina had both been granting lands in this area since about 1752. The grants abstracted in this volume were determined to be in S. C. by deed references in the various S. C. counties, Land Memorials in the S. C. Archives, and by the locations described on the grants. There are probably other of these grants which fell into S. C. but were not recognized because of vague descriptions. As others are discovered, they will be included at the end of this volume or in an appendix to future similar volumes planned for Mecklenburg and Anson Counties.

Some explanation of the North Carolina land grants is necessary. Actual copies of grants were not kept by North Carolina, but "Minutes or Dockets" (abstracts). Plats and warrants are often not extant for these early grants. Some lands were entered, but for some reason grants were not issued. (All such lands are indicated by a file number beginning in "0".). Some have warrants extant, some plats, and even one has an original grant already made out. (See appendix.). Abstracts of all extant plats and warrants are contained in this volume. If no plat or warrant is extant, the grant was abstracted. Samples of each of the documents are in the appendix. Copies of any instrument are available from the Land Grant Clerk, Secretary of State, Raleigh, N. C. 27603, for $.50 each. The file and book numbers in parentheses are duplicate grants for the same tract. The abbrevations CB, SC Bear, etc., signify chain bearers and are important personages, as they are often close neighbors or relatives of the grantee.

Pursuant to the survey of 1772, the grantees of N. C. lands that fell into S. C. petitioned the King in order not to lose their lands. This petition appears in the Colonial Records of North Carolina, IX, 1260-1263 and XI, 250-254, but some signatures were mis-transcribed. A copy obtained from the British Public Records office was supplied to me by Mr. Elmer Parker of Columbia, S. C. I have transcribed the signatures from this copy, and they are contained in the appendix.

All names in this volume are included in the index except for the surveyors, governors, and persons named in documents in the appendix.

The following is the transcription of the signatures from the petition mentioned in the introduction. Page 1 is the first page containing signatures. The body of the petition in the Colonial Records of North Carolina is correct except for a few errors in capitalization and the rendering of sundry in the original as some. The petition is found in Volume IX, pp. 1260-1263. One oddity, called to my attention by Mr. Elmer Parker, is that the copy in the Colonial Records contains approximately 35 signatures which do not appear on the British Public Records Office copy. Perhaps a page has been lost. The last page has the following: "In Lieut. Gov Bull's (N° 90) of 15th May 1775."

Louisville Public Library, Louisville 3, Ky. has filed:" In Memoriam; John Douds Taggart of Louisville, Ky." - 37 page booklet - pp. 34 thru 37 are autobiographical - (abst.): "Autobiography of John Douds Taggart":"born in the county of Antrim, Ireland, about one mile from Ballymoney, on 7/11/1822. My parents were James William Taggart and Mary Douds. I attended school at the age of 5 and continued until past 12 yrs. of age.. my school teacher was Robert Fullerton, whose school was about a ½ mi. from my home.. my next teacher was James McAfee, whose school was located about 1½ miles from my residence, in the Township of Secon, on the turnpike leading from Ballymoney to Colerein.... My parents, in the winter of 1834, determined to come to America, and on Sunday 19th April 1835, the sailing ship "Sarah Sheafe" sailed from the port of Belfast. We landed in New York in 35 days as the voyage was favorable.. the following day we came on to Philadelphia & remained there eight days with my Uncle Robert Taggart.... we then proceeded to Kentucky, leaving Philadelphia on the rail road which ran to Harrisburg, then by canal boat to Pittsburg, where we took a steamboat to Louisville, Ky., landing on the 16th June 1835....thence by wagon to Bloomfield, Nelson Co., Ky....the first night we spent at Mr. Keller's, ten miles from Louisville, due to wet weather and the turnpike only extended that far.... we traveled for two days to reach Bloomfield, a distance of 29 miles. We spent the next night with Major Henry Russell, and the next morning after an early start, we arrived at our destination, which was five miles distant, in the edge of Spencer & Nelson Cos., on Ashes Creek....my time was spent on the farm, until the following March, when I was employed at Bardstown, at the general store of Robert & Samuel Bell....after 7 mos. returned to the farm & remained there till 1854....teaching school also.... went to Louisville also & was employed during this time by A.S. White & Co; and Hamilton, Ricketts & Co;.....married 4/6/1852 Mary Ann Russell, dau. of Captain Henry Russell.... & became a member of the firm of A.S. White of Shelby Co; Samuel P. Weisiger & William Hughes of Louisville....in Oct. 1854 my family moved to Louisville & I continued in same business till 1891 - in April 1875 firm name was changed to Hughes & Taggart Co;...in 1881, I was elected President of a Trust Co.; & at present am President of the Louisville & Ky. Mutual Insurance Co; President of Land & Cattle Co; Director in the L.& N. Railroad; Bank of Commerce; Bank of Shelbyville, Ky; Louisville Land & Cattle Co; & Texas-Ky. Mfg. Co.... my family consists of 4 daughters & 2 sons: my eldest daughter is married to Craig N. Ligget. Iron Merchant of Philadelphia; my youngest daughter is married to J.F. Butler, Wholesale Paper Merchant;Chicago; my oldest son John Jr., married Florence Long, second daughter of Dennis & Mary Long of this city; my 2 daughters Sallie D. & Mary Ella, together with my son W. R. Taggart, remain at home with me." - (abst)

Dear Mrs. Jordan,

Sorry to be so late - I thought this was lost but it turned up. Do hope there is something useful here - it is interesting & may give some leads.

I am also sending a copy of the letter Mrs Williams wrote to me. May be some ideas there too.

I am also sending this material to Iris Rohde.

Best Wishes

SAMUEL TAGART

Samuel Tagart, of Baltimore, a prominent lawyer during the 19th centuary, seems to have been the last of a branch of this family.

The earliest documentation thus far encountered for this branch is in Historic Houses - Prospect Hill folder (MHS) in which Grisel Tagart is identified as the wife of James Tagart, deceased. In the same file the death of Grissell (sic) Tagart, age 77, on 16 October 1816, is noted. (She may be the Mrs. Tagart listed in Cox' Baltimore Tax Records, 1783-1808.)

Massachusetts Historical Society

Grisel had two sons. William, who died about 1800, and John, of Baltimore County, b. 4 July 1761 (tombstone), died aged 84. (William Tagart appears in Cox' Baltimore Tax Records, 1799-1800, p. 443 and 1801-1803, p. 356.)

John married Mary Lyon Williamson (b. Baltimore County, 29 January 1759, daughter of Alexander Williamson and Elizabeth Lyon - MHM) on 11 October 1790. (See Baltimore Maryland City and County Marriage Licenses 1777-1790, Compiled by Rowent T. Obert, Peabody 929 .337256 023q., and Hayward Files 12 October 1790, Baltimore American where she is called Polly.)

John is reported to have been a successful merchant of Baltimore. (See Obit. of S.T.) In 1795 he purchased two mills on Jones's Falls. He cut new races and build larger plants. (In 1795, William, his brother, with George Legatt and operating as Legatt & Co., made purchases in this same area. (Cox, Tagart & Pennington, 1790-1800, p. 245; Assessment Book 1800, p. 200; 1801-1803, p. 285; 1804-1808, p.343.)

John and Mary had eight children. Their wedding and the births of seven of their children are listed in the records of the First Prebysterian Church of Baltimore. Both, were born near St. Thomas', Garrison Forest, and she apparently had been christened in this Episcopal Church. John's mother, Grisel, is listed as a communicant at the First Prebysterian Church.

b. 24 1761

John, as reported by the Baltimore Sun, died "on the 9th inst. (Jan. 1844) at his home in Baltimore County, in the 83rd year of his age." (Check against tombstone inscription.) Mary, consort of John Tagart, d. 3 May 1827, age 58.

John and Mary's first child, Elizabeth L., was born 15 August 1791. She died, a spinster, 2 November 1870.

The eldest son was William, birth date unknown. He married Ann G, birth date unknown. Several times William is referred to as Colonel. In MHS 15:221, 1920 the name of Col. Wm. Tagart is said to be on Alfred Jacob Miller's account book for $95.00, presumably for a portrait done in 1852. The name is spelled as Tagait. (A copy of the account book is said to be at the Walters.) William died 22 May 1866 and his wife, Ann, died 19 September 1855 (verify). (They lived in Rockland near Brooklandville on the Falls Road - S. T. obit.)

Mary, the second daughter, was born 15 January 1795 (or 94) and died, a spinster, 19 April 1829. Hayward files indicate her death to have been at the residence of Jas. B. Latimer on 3 May 1827.

Anne Caldwell was born 18 October 1796. (From Church records since she is not buried with rest of family.)

John Inglis, b. 17 March 1802. (From church records since he is not buried with the rest of the family.)

Cardiff(e), b. 25 September 1804. He was a bachelor lived east of Pikesville. (MHS 15:215, 221, 223, of 1920 lists various transactions.) He died 27 August 1881 in his 77th year. (American Sentinal, August 1881.)

John, Jr., was born 19 August 1808 (or 06). He is listed as M.D., and died in St. Louis on 28 October 1888. (SHT obit indicates that he owned an estate adjacent to that of his brother, Cardiss.)

"Mr. Saml. H.Tagart died early this morning (12:15, 19 March 1892) at his residence, 6 West Madison street, near Charles street. He was the oldest member of the Baltimore bar. (His father was for many years a prominent merchant of the city.) Mr. Tagart was born in 1811, in Baltimore County, about two miles north of the Garrison Forest Church, and was educated at the Garrison Forest Academy. He studied law at Staunton, Va., under General Baldwin. Mr. Tagart was a successful lawyer, and was associated with the late I. Nevitt Steele. (They dissolved partnership a few years previous to the death of Mr. Steele.) Mr. Steele early gained a high reputation for pleading cases, and Mr. Tagart was equally well known for his success in commercial law, while his strict integrity and promptness in securing settlements caused him to be especially sought as a trustee and executor. Some of thje largest estates in Baltimore passed through his hands, notably the Barnum property, upon which he administered twice, first as executor for David Barnum and then for his son Zenas Barnum. He was also executor for Mr. Henry Markin. In all the trusts committed to him there was never a blemish upon his integrity. Mr. Tagart was president of the Broadway and Locust Point Ferry and also of the Falls turnpike road, and until recently was president of the York Road Railway (Baltimore and Yorkstown Turnpike Railway Company?). He was at times in the City Council and the State Legislature. Mr. Tagart was one of the first trustees of the McDonogh (School - auth) and the president of the board. Through his watchfullness the endowment has been saved and increased. His interest in the boys personally was great both when they were in the school and when they had engaged in business. The boys felt him to be their friend. Another of his special interests was the Old St.

Thomas's Church, Garrison Forest, Baltimore County, in the graveyard of which his family lie buried. He was the sole survivor. (He had no children, and his brothers and sisters, all of whom are dead, were childless.) He had contributed about two years ago $6,000.00 to the enlargement and preservation of the old church, built 1741. Recently he contracted with John LaFarge, of New York, to place a handsome stained-glass window to the memory of his wife. The window is expected to be in place at Easter. Winter, as well as summer, Mr. Tagart would drive twelve miles to attend the services and was there only two or three weeks ago. Mr. Tagart was married to Miss Sallie Mullin Large, well known in society here, who was the daughter of James Large, of Philadelphia, and Elizabeth Pointney, of this city. Mrs. Tagart died in May last year." (The quoted obituary is from the Baltimore News American of 19 March 1893 and the parenthetical inserts are from the Baltimore American of the same date unless otherwise identified.)

Items to be checked

Samuel Tagart, L.M., is listed as a member of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of the State of Maryland in the volume containing the Act of Incorporation and Supplmentary Acts of 1848. (MD XR15 .M36 1848)

In his St. Paul's Parish Baltimore, page 123, Francis F. Bierne writes, "... of the attendance of Robert E. Lee at a service at St. Paul's. In the spring of 1869 the General came to Baltimore in the hope of raising funds for the Virginia Valley Railroad Company whose line was to run from Lexington north through the Shenandoah. Sunday, April 25, he accompanied his friend Samuel Tagart, a communicant of St. Paul's, to Morning Prayer. News quickly spread that he was there and when he left the Church at the conclusion of the service, a large crowd had assembled outside. All hats were off as Lee walked between two long lines of silent people come to pay him the respect and veneration his presence invariably inspired."

The newspapers of the time confirm Lee's visit but make no mention of a visit to St. Paul's. Samuel was not a communicant of that church. There is mention of Lee attending a reception at the Masonic Temple (next door to the church) with a large crowd in attendance. Lee stayed with Tagart for several days.

Samuel is also mentioned in Scharf's Chronicles of Baltimore pp. 516 and 535; also in Scharf's Baltimore City and Baltimore County pp. 189, 191, 494, 698, 831.

Dear Frances,

Your letter really puts a bee in my bonnet. Am enclosing a few pages I have. Maybe they'll be of interest to you.

My Samuel Sigert did name a son William. (Maybe after his brother ???) One story goes my Samuel was born or came to U.S.A. @ 1770 but by census records he states he was born @ 1790. So may have skipped a generation and my Samuel's father could have been a Samuel Sr. Am digging and digging but drawing some blanks.

The Baltimore, Maryland is, also, suspicious as Samuel supposedly lived there at one time. To many coincidences!

Do you have any idea if your William Mc Taggart could have been a loyalist?

three members of the pioneer Murry family, Mrs. Margaret Thurmond, (Pearl) Richey, and her two daughters, Miss Mary Miller Richey and Miss Elizabeth Agnew Richey. Mrs. Richey, the wife of E. R. Richey, Ripley druggist, is a daughter of Dr. John Y. Murry, who settled in this County with his father in 1834, two years before the county was organized. This section was at that time peopled largely by Red Man. In the dense forrests that covered the country deer, bear, wolves, and panthers abounded. So scarce were white people that during their first year in Tippah county they saw only five or six white people outside of the family. The life of John Young Mury was so rich and so varied, and his interests so broad that only a few points can be touched upon in this space. His meager "schooling", until he attended lectures and later graduated in Medicine, was had here in the county in such schools as the county afforded in his boyhood. His father Abel Vance Murry was a farmer and always lived in the country. Dr. Murry was born in McNairy county, Tenn., his father in North Carolina. The elder Murry, like the younger, took interest in public affairs, serving as a member, and at one time chairman, of the county court in McNairy county, and also chairman of the police, or county court. On his mother's side Dr. Murry was from the family from which came Zebulon D. Vance Governor of and U. S. Senator from North Carolina.

In addition to his active professional career Dr. Murry took an active interest in civic affairs. He served as county treasurer, a member of the legislature, sheriff, for ten years as chairman of the county executive committee, delegate to state and national Democratic conventions. He served as president of the county Sunday Shool Convention and of the state convention. He was a "tee-totaler" and was always found fighting on the "dry" side in temperance legislation contests. He opposed secession, but when the Southern states seceded, he enlisted and served as Captain of Co. A, 34th., Miss. Inf., under Gens. Beauregard and Bragg.

Miss Mary Richey, who makes her home in Ripley during vacation, is superintendent of primary education in the Natchez City Schools. Miss Elizabeth is primary supervisor in the county school system in Lafayette county, Miss. Their father, Enoch R. Richey, is a son of Luther A. Richey, who enlisted in the Confederate Army in Ripley. He was not a native of the county, but was a clerk in the Rogan & Thurmond

The Tigert Family

Aug. 30/34 January, 1934.

Samuel Tigert, (McTigert) of Scotch Irish parentage, emigrated from north Ireland to the U. S. about the year 1770. He lived for a time in Maryland, Virginia and Kentucky, finally settling in Tennessee, some time after the Revoluntionary war. He had one sister in Ireland named Peggie.

The year following Samuel's migration to the colonies, another brother followed and still later another brother came to the colonies where he held an office under the Crown. The latter brother having remained loyal to the Crown during the Revoluntion. Samuel and his other brother (John James) who had fought with the colonists and helped to establish the American government, dropped the "Mc" from their name and were henceforth known as Tigerts. Samuel, after removing to Tennessee, married a young lady whose surname was Bell, a sister to John Bell, prominent in Tennessee and nation politics being U. S. Senator from Tennessee for several terms and being nominated by his party for President in [illegible], at which time he was defeated by Abraham Lincoln.

To this union was born five boys and 6 girls as follows: Chesterfield, Thomas Bell, David Porter, William, and John Baker; the girls were, after marriage: Sarah Robinson, Susan Neely, Mary Burrows, Parmella Wallace, Annie McCord, and Jane Tubbs, the latter being alive in 1920 and residing near Oxford, Miss.

Of the above boys in order of their birth, their descendants are: Chesterfield had two sons, Burton and King, (who spelled the name Tigrett) the former a well to do planter and business man of Newbern, Tenn., but now deceased. He was also sheriff of his county at one time. Burton left one son (Parks. Rebecca, only daughter of Burton, died twenty years ago or more after her marriage leaving one child. King (Tigrett), was a Baptist minister and died about 30 years ago leaving two sons at Jackson, Tenn., Issac B. and Augustus K., the former being a prominent banker and business man as well as railroad president.

JAMES McTAGGART

According to Wallace R. Reeeman in New World Immigrants, 1979 (Pratt X) II, p. 219:

McTaggart, James, age 20, laborer, of Galloway shipped at Stranraer, on May 16, 1774, on the "Gale" of Whithaven, bound for New York. Henry Jefferson was master.

Cameron in Emigrants from Scotland to America, 1774-1775, has an entry for McTaggart, James, in the Passenger and Immigration Lists Index, 1982, II. (Pratt X)

(Galloway is a district in south-west Scotland including Wigtown and Kirkcudbright counties. Stranraer is a port on Loch Ryan.)

According to later accounts he was John James and settled in Pennysylvania. (Tigert, John James IV, M.A. Oxon, Encyclopedia of American Biography, (New York, American Historical Society, 1968, page 95, Vol.) See following entry.

TAGARD, TIGRITT, TIGRETT, TIGRETT, TIGRETT, TIGRETT, TIGRET, TIGRETT. ONE CAN CERTAINLY FIND HIS OR HER CHOICE FROM THE GENERAL FIELD ARRANGEMENT. OUR PARTICULAR BRANCH OF THE FAMILY, HAVE BECOME SO ACCUSTOMED TO SPELLING THE NAME; TIGRETT. THAT IT HAS BECOME HABITUAL WITH US. WE BEG YOUR INDULGENCE; AND WE WILL ALSO RECOGNIZE YOUR PREFERRED CHOICE.

THE YEAR FOLLOWING SAMUEL'S MIGRATION TO THE COLONIES, ANOTHER BROTHER CAME TO AMERICA, WHERE HE HELD AN OFFICE UNDER THE CROWN. THE LATTER WHOSE NAME WE DO NOT KNOW, REMAINED LOYAL TO THE CROWN DURING THE REVOLUTION. SAMUEL AND HIS OTHER BROTHER (JOHN JAMES) WHO HAD FOUGHT WITH THE COLONISTS AND HELPED TO ESTABLISH THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT. SAMUEL AFTER REMOVING TO TENNESSEE, MARRIED A YOUNG LADY WHOSE SURNAME WAS BELL, A SISTER TO JOHN BELL, PROMINANT IN TENNESSEE AND NATIONAL POLITICS, BEING ELECTED UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM TENNESSEE FOR SEVERAL TERMS; AND WAS ONCE NOMINATED BY HIS PARTY FOR THE PRESIDENCY IN 1860 AT WHICH TIME HE WAS DEFEATED BY ABRAHAM LINCOLN. FROM THE MARRIAGE OF SAMUEL TIGRETT AND MISS BELL, WE RECORD A GREAT AND WONDERFUL FAMILY OF DESCENDENTS.

WE WISH TO THANK OUR INFORMANTS, ONE AND ALL, WHO HAVE HELPED US WITH THE MATERIAL WHICH WE HAVE USED IN THE RECORD. IN FACT, EXCEPT FOR THE FAMILY OF HENRY DAVID TIGRETT; ALL OF THE MATERIAL WAS SUBMITTED TO US, LARGELY BY MR. WADE B TIGRE AS WE KNOW BUT FEW OF THOSE WHOM WE HAVE ENROLLED. AT THE PRESENT DATE, JUNE 1,1960. THERE ARE ONLY TWO OF THE ENTIRE FAMILIES WHOME WE HAVE ME PERSONALLY. THOSE TWO ARE MR JAMES TIGRETT, AND MRS. SADDIE DOWNING.

AMONG THOSE WE WISH TO THANK AS BEING ESPECIALLY INTERESTED AND HELPFUL ARE: MR. SOM STATISTICS WHICH MAY BE OF INTEREST TO THE FAMILY. OUR OLDEST MEMBER IS MR ELLIS A MURRAY, the prairie where their father lived. JAMES is dead.

1806.—In the year 1806, GEORGE WILSON and SAMUEL CROZIER, from Abbeville, South Carolina, arrived in the county. GEORGE WILSON settled on Plumb Creek near the forks. From there he went to the mouth of Dozar Creek, and remained until 1812, when he moved into the Fort. He lived in the Fort for some years after the settlers had returned to their homes. In 1827 he moved into Hitchcock Prairie, and lived there until his death in 1857. Mr. WILSON was a man in whom were blended all those noble traits of character which distinguished the early pioneers—high-minded, generous, brave. Through his long life he maintained a high position among his neighbors, and though he had reached the age of seventy-five when he died, his death was a loss felt by the community. His sons are JOHN A., GEORGE, WILLIAM L., JAMES and ANDREW. JOHN A. WILSON has filled the office of Sheriff of the county, and is now the Mayor of the city of Sparta. GEORGE lives upon the old place of his father. WILLIAM L. is a citizen of Chester. JAMES lives near the old place in the prairie.

1806.—SAMUEL CROZIER opened a farm on Nine Mile Creek, two miles south of the location of Evansville. He was a man of high intellectual abilities, sociable and benevolent. He rose to position and influence without an effort. In 1827 he was chosen a member of the Legislature. He died in 1834. His sons were JOHN, JAMES, ANDREW, ARCHIBALD and SAMUEL B. JOHN CROZIER settled upon the site of Red Bud in Horse Prairie, in 1824. He was the father of SAMUEL CROZIER who was one of the founders, and a highly esteemed citizen of Red Bud, and who died a few weeks ago; also JAMES, who is still living in that town, and

THOMAS. The brothers of JOHN CROZIER became citizens of the county, and lived in it until they died. The CROZIER family has always sustained a very respectable position in the community.

Mr. MANSKER, father of SAMUEL MANSKER, made a settlement on Liberty Island, in 1806, but the farm he made washed away in a few years, and he removed. SAMUEL MANSKER settled upon the farm where he now lives in the same year that his father located upon the Island. He has been a sturdy, persevering and respectable citizen.

1807.—JOHN CAMPBELL, from Abbeville, South Carolina, settled near the mouth of Nine Mile Creek, in 1807. He lived upon that place until 1820, when he moved to a place four miles east of Evansville, and died there in 1827. His life was that of an unassuming, retired and respectable citizen. His sons, JOHN, SAMUEL, ARCHIBALD and JAMES all settled in the neighborhood of their father.

1807.—During the year 1807, JOHN TAGGART, from South Carolina, came to the county. He remained for some time about Kaskaskia, finally joined the ranging service, and after receiving his discharge he settled upon the farm where he now resides, about nine miles north of Chester. AMOS TAGGART, who lives on the Chester and Sparta road, is a son of JOHN.

1807.—DANIEL TAGGART, brother of JOHN, came from South Carolina at the same time. He was also in the ranging service, and after the company was disbanded he located upon a farm near his brother. His sons are JOHN, WILLIAM, AMOS and DANIEL, all of whom are living in the neighborhood of their father.

1807.—JOHN STEELE, from Tennessee, came to the county in 1807. Possessing a remarkable degree of given without the prefix O, the suggestion that it is the Gaelic Ó Síonáin cannot be finally accepted without definite evidence. It is almost certainly of Norman origin. Bibl; MIF 176; SIF 142.

Synge In England, whence it came in the seventeenth century, this name is often written as it is pronounced—Sing. It is not identified with a particular place, but is notable in Ireland in the ecclesiastical and literary sphere. Bibl; SIF 143.

Synnott See Sinnott.

T

Taaffe, Taa Tath. This family of Welsh origin (meaning son of David) who came to Ireland in the thirteenth century, soon became one of the most influential in the country. A branch settled in Connacht. Bibl; IF 272; Map Louth, Sligo.

Tackaberry See Thackaberry.

Tackney This name is found in Cavan and some adjacent counties where it is a synonym of Sexton, not of Tagney or Taheny.

(O) Tagan, Teegan Ó Tadhgáin (probably from the forename Tadhg, Teigue). This name belongs to Cos. Kildare and Leix. The place-name Ballyteegan is near Mountmellick.

(Mac) Taggart See MacEntaggart.

Mac Taghlin Mac Giolla tSeachlainn (devotee of St. Seachlainn or Secundinus). Co. Donegal. See Houston.

Tagney A variant of Tangney.

Mac Tague See Mac Teigue.

(O) Taheny The name of a Co. Roscommon family. Possibly a variant of Ó Teitheacháin. See Teahan.

Tait See Tate.

Talbot Talbóid. Unique among Hiberno-Norman families in that the senior branch has been in continuous possession of the Malahide estate for almost 800 years. Talbots have played an important part in Irish history. The name is now mainly found in or near Dublin. Bibl; MIF 227; Map Dublin.

Tallant, Tallent This English name is in Cos. Carlow and Dublin since the sixteenth century. Authorities on British names differ as to its origin. In Ireland it may be a corruption of Tallon.

Tallon Talún. A Hiberno-Norman family formerly influential in the Pale. The name is seldom found outside Leinster. Tallonstown is in Co. Louth. MIF 228; Map Carlow.

(O) Tally Ó Taithligh (taithleach, peaceable). As the name of a Co. Fermanagh family it is now very rare. They were erenaghs of Devenish, formerly Mac Taichligh. Tally as an occasional synonym of Tully occurs in Co. Longford. SIF 143.

(O) Talty Ó Tuiltigh. The name of a west Clare sept which has no connection with the Ulster sept of Tally though the names are probably etymologically cognate. SIF 143.

(Mac) Taminy, Tamney See Timpany.

Tancred See Tankard.

Tandy A form of the Christian name Andrew. Tandy is in Ireland since the fourteenth century, mainly in Co. Meath. SIF 119.

(O) Tangney Ó Teangana. A well-known Kerry name, very rare elsewhere. Tradition connects it with the MacElligotts. Tangley is probably a variant. SIF 143

Tankard Numerous and prominent in Leinster in mediaeval times Tankard is now very rare. Tancred is used as a synonym, though often of different derivation: Tankard is maker of tankards, Tancred from Old-German tancrad (thought counsel). See Hankard.

Tanner An Anglo-Norman occupational name in Ireland since mediaeval times and now fairly numerous, but not closely associated with any particular area.

(O) Tannian Ó Tanaidheáin (probably from tanaidh, thin). A Co. Galway name seldom met elsewhere. SIF 143.

(Mac) Tansey Mac an Tánaiste (tanist or heir presumptive). Of Sligo and north Roscommon. The Irish synonym Ó Bliosdáin arose in modern times from a misconception. SIF 144.

Tarleton Coming to Ireland from Liverpool about the year 1600 the Tarleton family settled in Co. Offaly and have since become fairly numerous there. The name is very rare elsewhere in Ireland.

(O) Tarmey A Connacht form of Tormey.

(O) Tarpey Ó Tarpaigh (tarpach, sturdy). This sept originated in Co. Sligo and is now found also in other Connacht counties. Ó Tarpaigh is also a sept of Corca Laoidhe (west Cork) where it is anglicized Torpey. SIF 144; Map Sligo.

Tarrant An English name, used in Co. Cork with Thornton as the anglicized form of Ó Toráin. See Torrens.

Tarry A variant of Terry.

(O) Tarsnane Ó Tarsnáin. The origin of this west Clare name is obscure. SIF 144.

(Mac) Tarsney See Torsney.

Mac Ettigan See MacGettigan.

Eurell See Yourell.

Eustace Iústás (the Latin form Eustachius derives from a Greek word meaning fruitful). An Anglo–Norman family of the Pale, prominent in Irish history. Bibl: MIF 100; Map Kildare.

Mac Evaddy A form of MacAvaddy.

Mac Evanny Mac an Mhanaigh (manach, monk). Now usually called Monks except in Mayo. See also MacCavana.

Evans Usually a Welsh name; occasionally an anglicized form of the rare Ó hÉimhin of Ormond: this is derived from a word meaning swift.

(Mac) Evatt This name, often with the prefix Mac, is a variant of the Oriel name MacKevitt. Evatt and Evett are English too.

Mac Eveagh, -Eveigh Rare forms of MacVeagh found in Mayo.

Everard An important Anglo-Norman family settled in Meath and Tipperary. The name is derived from Old-German everhard, boar hard. Map Tipperary.

Everett A variant of Everard.

Evers Originally Norman d'Evere or d'Evers this name has been prominent in Co. Meath since the fourteenth century. It occurs frequently among those attainted for participation on the Irish side in the wars against Cromwell and William III. In Munster Evers is sometimes used synonymously with Ievers.

Mac Evey, -Evay See under Vahey.

Mac Evilly Mac an Mhilidh (milleadh, warrior or knight). An Irish patronymic assumed by the Stauntons of Mayo. MIF 101; Map Mayo.

Mac Evin A variant of MacGiven.

Mac Evinney, -Avinney Mac Aibhne. A branch of the O'Cahans of Derry with whom the forename Aibhne was frequent. Also an anglicized form of Mac Dhuibhne (MacGiveney) of Breffny. I am informed by Fr. Livingstone that in Fermanagh it is Mac Giolla Coimhne, erenaghs of Callow Hill.

Mac Evoy Mac Fhiodhbhuidhe (probably from fiodhbhadhach, woodman). One of the 'Seven Septs of Leix'. Sometimes MacEvoy is for Mac Giolla Bhuidhe, see MacElwee. Without the prefix Mac, Evoy is found in Co. Wexford. See also MacVeagh. IF 136; Map Leix.

Ewart App.

Mac Ewen See Ewing.

Ewing According to several Celtic scholars this name is ultimately derived from the Greek eugenes (well-born), cognate with the Irish eoghan (but Bergin disputes this). It is sometimes a synonym of MacEwen which is the Scottish form of the Irish Mac Eoghain. It is quite numerous throughout Ulster and appears frequently in the seventeenth-century hearth money rolls of that province. SIF 65.

Eyre An influential Cromwellian family in Co. Galway, where the place-names Eyrecourt and Eyreville perpetuate it. Codyre, found

COMPLIMENTS OF JOHN & DOROTHEA COTTER

Hughs, made his arrangements to surprise him, so when James started down the river with his cargo of salt, Mr. Pillars, taking two horses, besides the one he rode, cut across the country and met young Hughs at the falls, who, being thus surprised, inquired the reason of his unlooked-for presence, and was told by Mr. Pillars that, expecting a marriage, he had brought the horses so that he might ride with his wife to her new home. The party rode back together, camping out at night, their only bed being the blankets carried on horseback, and their food such as could be prepared by the way with the camp kettle.

James Hughs lived on his step-father's farm, which he obtained, until his death. He was in the United States ranging service in 1812. He left five sons, namely, James, John, Stace, Felix and Henry.

Returning to the history of Felix Hughs, we find he was born in Randolph Co., near the site of Ellis Grove in 1816.

Amos Taggart, living on section 5, is the son of Daniel C. and Margaret Taggart. Daniel C. was born in South Carolina and came to Randolph Co., the first time, about the year 1812. After a short sojourn he returned to South Carolina, and remaining a few years, emigrated with his family about the year 1825. He settled in this precinct. John Taggart a brother of Daniel C., who came to the county about the same time, took part in the Black Hawk war. Daniel C. Taggart had nine children, six sons and three daughters. John, David, William, Amos, Jane, Ellen, Margaret, Francis and Robert. All are dead but David, William, and Amos.

William Taggart, a brother of Amos, served in the Mexican war, in company C., of the 2d Ill. Vol. Inf., under Captain Crow. He was a participant in the battle of Buena Vista. Amos Taggart is a member of the old debating society, mentioned in the latter part of this chapter.

Alexander M. Wilson, living on sections 6 and 7, came from Duchess county, New York, in 1837. He first settled on Lively Prairie. He had to encounter but few of the vicissitudes connected with the first settlement of the county. He followed the business of farming until the breaking out of the late war, when he entered the service and attained the rank of captain in the 30th Ills. Vol. Inf. Toward the close of the war he was commissioned major, and appointed to duty in the Commissary Department. He continued in this department until after the surrender of General Joseph Johnson, in North Carolina, when he returned to the more peaceful pursuits of farm life. In 1842 Mr Wilson married Susan Young, a daughter of John Young, who came from Pennsylvania to Illinois among the early settlers. He served in the Black Hawk war. The father of Mr. Wilson was named Alexander Murray Wilson.

The following are some of the first land entries in Blair precinct. They are in township 6 N., range 6 W.

April 10th, 1815, Wm. Morrison entered south half, section 3, 320 acres. April 21st, 1815, John Pillars entered the S. E. quarter of section 4, 160 acres. Jan. 16th, 1818, David Lovney entered the E. half, N. W. quarter, section 3, 71 acres. Oct. 3d, 1818. Charles Glover entered the W. half, S. W. quarter, section 4, 80 acres.

BLAIR VILLAGE.

This little village lies almost due south from Sparta, and is located on sections 2, 3, 34, 35. It derived its name from Thomas C. Blair. On making an application for a post office at the place, there being no name designated, it was suggested that Mr. Blair's own name be given. And it was accordingly called Blair. He was appointed the first postmaster, and was also the first justice of the peace. He built the first house. It was a frame, and put up in the year 1859. Mr. Blair also opened and kept the first store. He came from county Antrim, Ireland, in the year 1842.

The village is on the Chester and Sparta road, and the buildings extend along the cross formed by the intersection of that by the township road running east and west. It has some neat frame dwellings. One very fine farm-house stands on the Chester road on the southern limit, that would grace any town. The population is about two hundred.

There are in this neat quiet village, two church edifices, O. S. Presbyterian and Southern Methodist. The former was erected a cost of $3,200. The latter, $2,400. Rev. A W. Wright was the first pastor of the Presbyterian, and Rev. L Duckworth of the Methodist church.

The first physician was Dr. Milton Hubbard, he was succeeded by Dr. J. F. White, and he by Dr. J. L. Mathews. The village has the following business, viz.:

Store for General Merchandise.—Owned by the Blair Brothers, nephews of Thomas C. Blair.

Post Office.—Postmaster, Robert J. Blair.

Justice of the Peace.—S. Boggs.

Blacksmith.—Fred. Hartley.

Wagon Maker.—James Hartley, also justice of peace.

Flour Mill.—Having a capacity for one hundred barrels daily, is owned by W. E. Brown. It gives employment to three hands.

Saw Mill.—Owned by the same, runs in connection with the grist mill.

There are two school houses near the village on sections two and thirty-five. There is a coal mine one and a quarter miles northeast of the village, owned by George Stanway. It gives employment to three men, and yields a fine quality of bitimmous coal, used mainly by the farmers in the neighborhood.

Dear Mrs Jordan;

I have been trying to gather information on my ancestors from the older family members but not many are left. This is what I have learned so far.

My father was born on FEB 20, 1889 in GILMERTON, LIBERTON in Scotland. His father was James, a SHALE MINER. His mother Catherine Reid and James, my grandfather, were married on NOV 24, 1882 in DALRY, AYRSHIRE. My father was raised in KILBIRNIE, SCOTLAND which is a little SW of Glasgow on a detailed map. He took a 5 years butchers apprenticeship for the Kilbirnie Co-operative Society completing it in 1909. In May of 1912 he became a Master Mason in Kilbirnie lodge # 399, The Royal Blues. He then came to the USA where he eventually met and married my Mother in Richmond,

Dear Miss Jordan,

I have been trying to gather information on my ancestors from the older family members but not many are left. This is what I have learned so far.

My father was born on
FEB 20, 1889 in GILMERTON
LIBERTON in Scotland. His father was James a SHALE MINER. His mother Catherine Reid and James' two grandfathers were married on Nov 24, 1882 in DALRY, ARYSHIRE.
My father was raised in KILBIRNIE SCOTLAND until he was a little SW of Glasgow on a detailed map. He took a great interest in athletics and for the Kilbirnie Co-operative Society competing in the 1909
May of 1915 he became a Master
Mason in Kilbirnie Lodge # 399 the Royal Blues. He then came to the USA where he eventually met and married my Mother in Richmond,

Missouri on APRIL 20, 1916. They received their naturalization papers on FEB 15, 1919 in Flint, Michigan where they lived most of their lives. My Dad had 2 brothers JOHN and DAVID and 2 sisters - Catherine and Jean.

My Mother was born on NOV 5, 1886 at some place we never could find on a map called 33 BUMFOOTHILL. Her father Andrew Blair was a IRON MINER. Her birth is registered in the Parish of DALMELLINGTON in AYR COUNTY. Her parents were married in Bloomington, Illinois, USA on 18 DEC 1869. Her folks made several trips back and forth from Scotland to the USA. Mom was the 9TH of 10 children. She had 1 sister (JESSE THE 1ST BORN) and 8 brothers. Nearly all the Blairs settled down in Richmond, Missouri.

This is all I have now. I will be interested if you can find out anything further. Sincerely,

Bob McT

THE TAGGART FAMILY

THE name Taggart is a modern form of the word Sagard, the Gaelic form of sacred, derived from sacerdos, which means a priest of sacrificial rank.

The ancient form of Sagard or Sagart appeared at the very dawn of Christianity in Ireland and Scotland, at that period when Ireland was for the most part still covered with pathless forests, with here and there a clearing where some attempt at agriculture was beginning to engage the attention of its inhabitants who, for the most part, were herders of cattle, lifting[1] that of their neighbors quite after the fashion of their Highland neighbors down to a century and a half ago.

The natives were impetuous and warlike, deeming it a lasting disgrace not to have dyed their daggers in the blood of an enemy. Upon one of their incursions into Britain they brought back as a captive a young lad, Patricus, and set him to tending sheep upon the Slemish Mountains. After seven years of servitude Patrick escaped to England and later journeyed into Gaul, where he prepared himself for missionary work. When thoroughly instructed, he returned to England and in a short time proceeded to Ireland, where he came with a view to converting its natives to Christianity. Here he preached with such brilliancy and success as to enthrone himself forever as the idol of the Irish people, becoming at last their patron saint.

In the sixth century Saint Columbo was the leading spirit in the Irish Church, under his influence the monasteries founded by Saint Patrick reached the zenith of their power and fame, a single monastery often accommodating thousands of monks.

Wherever a tribe or clan, inspired by religious enthusiasm, offered large tracts of land for a religious house, the clan itself by easy gradations became transformed into a religious community. A wall would then be thrown around the territory donated and the chief of the clan or a suitable member of his family would be appointed to the office of Abbot, an office which often became hereditary in the family, for in the Western Church[2] marriage among the clergy had not yet been for-bidden. Celibacy did not become established until the first half of the twelfth century.

The rites of the abbacy were performed by ordained priests of different rank, the highest of which was the sacrificial priest who, by virtue of his office, was called the Sacerdos (a word which in time became corrupted as above into Sacred, and in the Gaelic to Sagart and Tagart).

In the seventh century Saint Maelruba[1] of Beaunchair (Bangor), Ireland went into Scotland and established a great religious house at Applecrossen on the west coast of Ross-shire. The domains of this monastery were very great and, together with the office of Abbot, were hereditary in the family of O'Beollan.[2]

Fearcher O'Beollan, Abbot of Beaunchair,[3] died in the year 878.

Murchadh O'Beollan,[4] Airchimeach of Drumcliff, died in 1053.

Maelmaedhog O'Beollan, Coarb[5] of Columbkill, Drumcliff, was illustrious for hospitality and was honored and venerated alike by the English and the Irish. He died in 1252.

Maelfinnen O'Beollan, Coarb of Drumcliff, died in 1254.

More, daughter of O'Boyle and wife of Auliffe O'Beollan, died in 1223.

Auliffe O'Beollan, evenagh[6] of Drumcliff, was a wise and learned man.

O'Beollan, sometimes called Ua O'Beollan and O'Boland, was coarb of Drumcliff in 1362. O'Beollan, coarb of Drumcliff, died in 1423.

O'Beollan was the hierarch[7] of Applecrossen, Ross-shire in 1144.

O'Beollan was the sacrificial priest of Applecrossen in 1179 and by some authorities is thought to be the founder of the families of Taggart and McTaggart in Scotland. Indeed he is said to be the very Gille Andrias[8] himself whence the clan Ross got its name.

[1]Maelrubha, Abbot of Beaunchair, went to Alba (Scotland) and founded the church of Applecrossen in 671, where he died Apr. 21, 721, aged 80 years, 3 months.

[2]The O'Beollan's, a priestly house of Ireland, are said to be descendants of Milesius of Spain.

[8]Gille Anrias or Andrias means the servant or follower of Saint Andrew, who is the patron saint of the clan Ross as well as of Scotland.

The Christian religion was the piercing instrument that fashioned these people into civilized races and upon the priest, more than upon any other factor of this period, fell the burden of enlightening them, for he was not priest only but teacher and physician.

An old document[1] describing the priestly functions and customs of this period says the priests of sacrificial rank wore the hair tonsured from ear to ear with a long plait hanging down the back. Upon ordinary occasions they wore next to the body a white robe and over it a tunic of natural wool, but when performing sacrificial duties they donned vestments of fine linen embroidered with gold.

The O'Beollan said to be Gille Anrias himself, Abbot of Applecrossen, held lands in Ross-shire stretching from Loch Carron to Loch Broom.

"Fergus or Fearchard, the first Macant-sagart,[2] quelled an insurrection that broke out against the king of Scotland led by Donald Bane, the son of Mac-William, Keneth Macarth and the son of a certain king of Ireland who entered Moray with a great army of fearless outlaws for the purpose of deposing the king and setting up a sovereignty of their own."

Skene says these foes of the king were attacked by Makintagart and mightily overthrown; whereupon the king graced him with the honors of knighthood. The ceremony was probably performed in June, 1215,[3] when the title, Earl of Ross, was conferred upon him and his heirs, male and female.

Fearchard thus became the first Earl of Ross of the Makintagart line. It is said upon authority that Alexander also conferred upon him the hand of his sister in marriage.

The names of his children, as commonly given, omitting Malcolm who probably belonged to an earlier line, were:

Christian = Olaus, King of Man
Alexander
Andrew, councillor to Alexander II
Robert
John
William, the eldest son and second Earl of Ross of this line.
Euphemia = Walter de Moravia

The clan Ross was founded by Paul MacTire or Macintire in the twelfth century by uniting with the Rosses seven smaller

[1] See Skene's History of Scotland.

[2] Macant from "Macu or Mac," meaning the son of, and "Sagart," the priest. The name was shortened in time to MacTaggart and Taggart.

[3] Sir James Balfour Paul, Lord Lion King of Arms, in "The Scots Peerage, 1910," says Ross was not of the ancient earldoms of Scotland but was a part of Moray and as such was ruled by its jarls, and that Fearchard appeared as Earl of Ross in a Writ dated June, 1226.

clans or septs: namely, the Andrews, Andersons, Gillanders, MacTires, MacTears, MacTaggarts and Taggarts, the last two of which claim descent from Makintagart himself. In 1745 its numbers fell to five hundred, and two years later, when the Highlanders were forbidden to wear their native costume by an act of Parliament, many of its members went to the United States and Canada.

The pipe music of the clan is "Spaidsearchd Iarla Ros," its march the Earl of Rosses March and its badge the Juniper.

The ancient arms of Ross: Gu. three lions rampant, ar.

The crest: A hand holding a garland of laurel ppr.

The supporters: Two savages wreathed about the head and middle with laurel and holding clubs in their exterior hands, all ppr.

The motto: Spem successus alit.

Skene in his "Celtic Scotland" defines the meaning of clan as children or descendants, and the name implies that the members of it are or were supposed to be descended from a common ancestor or Eponymus, and distinguished from each other by their patronymics, the use of surnames being unknown among them.

After the acts of 1587, which were so inimicable to the interests of the clansmen, many spurious pedigrees and charters were compiled for the purpose of securing to them their ancient honors and estates. In these genealogies the clan generally chose for its progenitor a Norwegian, Dane, Norman or a member of a distinguished family who succeeded to the lands and titles through marriage with the daughter and heiress of the last of the old Celtic line, and the new form of the clan genealogy would more generally assume this feudal form of succession when the clan name was derived not from a personal name or patronymic but from a personal epithet of its founder; hence, so far as they profess to show the origin of the different clans, they are artificial and untrustworthy. But the older genealogies may be accepted as showing the descent of the clan from its eponymus and, within reasonable limits, for some generations beyond him, while the later spurious pedigrees must be rejected altogether. For instance, the clan Gregor from Gregory the Great is a clan, which, he says, sprang from Grip the Usurper.

As the line of descent is given in full under the family of Ross, we will give here the merest outline of the family down to the time of its intermarriage with the Hamilton family, one of the most powerful families in Scotland:

William, II Earl of Ross=Jean Comyn
William, III Earl=Euphemia and had, with five other children, Hugh Makintagart, IV Earl of Ross, who married twice:
1st Maude Bruce, sister of the King of Scotland
2nd Margaret, daughter of Sir David Graham
Hugh Makintagart, IV Earl of Ross, by his first marriage to Maude Bruce had:
2. John
3. Marjory
1. William, V Earl of Ross = Mary, daughter of Angus Og, Lord of The Isles, and had:
William, Master of Ross, who died unmarried before his father
Euphemia, Countess of Ross by the death of the Master of Ross, married 1st, 1366, Sir Walter de Leslie, who thus became Walter, VI Earl of Ross but I of the Leslie line
Johanna or Janet=Sir Alexander Fraser
Margaret=Sir David Hamilton,[1] son of Sir Walter and Mary Gordon, daughter of Sir Adam Gordon
Hugh Makintagart, IV Earl of Ross, by his second marriage to Margaret Graham had:
4. Hugh, I Laird of Balnagowan
5. Euphemia=1st John Randolph
2nd King Robert II, by whom she had:
David Stewart
Walter Stewart
Alexander Stewart, the Wolf of Badenach
John Stewart
Robert Stewart, Duke of Albany and Fife, who had:
John Stewart, Earl of Buchan, and a daughter=Alexander Leslie, who became, through her, the VII Earl of Ross
6. Janet
7. Lillias.

Through the intermarriage of Margaret with Sir David Hamilton and the affiliation of their descendants with the Clealand-Taggart line, the latter trace their descent in the female line to Makintagart, the first Earl of Ross.

The Hamilton family derived its name from the lordship and manor of Hambledon in Leicestershire, England. The original name was Bellomont, one of whom, Robert, called Blanchemaine, was the third Earl of Leicester. He died in 1190.

A branch of the Hamiltons settled in Scotland in the 13th century. Its representative was Walter de Hambledon or

[1]See the Scots peerage, vol. 4, page 343, which says that the Christian name of his wife has not been ascertained. See also Burke's Peerage.

Hamilton, sometimes called Walter Fitz-Gilbert (de Hamilton). In 1292 he swore fealty to Edward I of England and again in 1296. Edward gave him lands in Lanarkshire. He supported John Baliol in his claim to the Scottish crown and was rewarded by Edward II with the office of overlord of Scotland and governor of Bothwell Castle.

At the battle of Bannockburn he surrendered the castle to Robert Bruce and was granted lands in Clydesdale and West Lothian, and the Castle of Cadzow, the ancient royal residence of the kings of Scotland. The castle was dismantled during the Civil Wars in the reign of Mary, Queen of Scots, whom this branch of the Hamilton family supported with a generous zeal, suffering temporary obscurity and almost total ruin.

Sir Walter Hamilton continued faithful to the family of Bruce and for his services received the honors of knighthood as the first Lord Cadzow. He married Mary, daughter of Sir Adam de Gordon and left a son:

Sir David de Hamilton, second Lord Cadzow, also was faithful to Bruce. He followed King David in his incursions into the north of England, was captured at Durham in 1346, but was liberated upon payment of a ransom. He was one of the magnates of Scotia at Sconce in 1368, 1371 and 1373. He founded a chantry in the Cathedral of Glasgow.

He married, as above, Margaret, daughter of William, fifth Earl of Ross, who was fifth in descent from Ferchard Makintagart, first Earl of Ross.

Sir David and Margaret Ross Hamilton left three sons, the eldest of whom:

Sir David de Hamilton, third Lord Cadzow, received lands in Bothwell Muir from King Robert II of Scotland. He married Johanetta or Janet, third daughter and co-heiress of Sir William de Keith of Galston, and left one daughter and five sons, the eldest of whom:

Sir John Hamilton, fourth Lord Cadzow, married Janet, daughter of Sir James Douglas of Dalkieth, and left one daughter and three sons, the eldest of whom:

Sir James Hamilton, fifth Lord Cadzow, married Janet, daughter of Sir Alexander Livingston, and left five sons, the eldest of whom was:

Sir James Hamilton, sixth Lord Cadzow, who married the Princess Mary, daughter of James II of Scotland. He was created first Lord Hamilton, of whom hereafter.

Gavin Hamilton, his brother, was the fourth son of James, the fifth Lord Cadzow. He was educated for the church and was Bishop of Bothwell. He married Janet Muirhead who, for her great beauty, was called the Bonny Lass or Fair Maid of Lechbrunnach. She was of the ancient family of Hay of Yester,[1] blood relations of the Hamilton family. The Bishop of Bothwell's marriage[2] was not sanctioned by the church, but his children were later declared legitimate by an act of the crown. Gavin and Janet Muirhead Hamilton had five sons, two of whom:

John Hamilton, first Lord Orbiston and Alexander Hamilton of Haggs were the more immediate progenitors of the Clealand-Taggart family.

John Hamilton, the first Lord Orbiston, was the principal heir and successor to his father. He married Jean, daughter of Hamilton of Woodhall and left five sons and two daughters, the eldest of whom:

Gaven II, Lord Orbiston, was one of the heirs entail of James Hamilton, Duke of Chatelherault. He married Helen, daughter of Wallace of Cairnhill, by whom he had five sons, the eldest of whom was:

John Hamilton, third Lord Orbiston, who married his second cousin, Margaret, daughter of Alexander Hamilton of Haggs, likewise third in descent from Gavin, Bishop of Bothwell. They had several children of whom John Hamilton, fourth Lord Orbiston, was his heir and successor, and Mary or Margaret, his daughter, became the wife of Alexander Cleland of Knownoble Hill and left a son, William Cleland who married a sister of Walter Stewart, first Lord Blantyre and daughter of Sir John Stewart, who in turn left a son and heir, Alexander Cleland who married a daughter of Sir John Hamilton of Letterick and Bargeny and sister to John Hamilton, first Lord Bargeny. They left five sons:

Alexander, the heir, who sold the family estates
John, master of Laird Braes, Wigton
William, Andrew, Patrick } retired to Ireland and changed the spelling of their name to Clealand.

[1]In a civil calendar at Edinburgh, Andro Taggart was cautioned not to harm Lord Hay of Yester.

[2]The marriage was supposed to be within the bonds of consanguinity as recognized by the Church of Scotland, as not a few of the Hamilton marriages seemed to be. Perhaps no Scottish house of standing, save that of the royal line, had so many examples of intermarriage with its own kinsfolk.

I. Sir John Hamilton of Letterick and Bargeny, the acknowledged son of John Hamilton, first Marquis of Hamilton, was the devoted friend of Mary, Queen of Scots. It was to him that she gave her ring while on the scaffold. John was the son of Sir James Hamilton, third Lord Hamilton, second Earl of Arran, and first Duke of Chatelherault in France, and his wife Mary Douglas. Sir James Hamilton, seventh Lord Cadzow, second Lord Hamilton and first Earl of Arran by Janet Beatoun, niece of Carninal Beatoun. his third wife, was his father, who in turn was the son and heir of Sir James Hamilton, sixth Lord Cadzow and first Lord Hamilton and his wife the Princess Mary, daughter of James II of Scotland.[1]

THE KNEELAND FAMILY

THE Kneeland[1] or Cleland family was a very old one in Scotland. Its coat of arms was: Az-a hare saliant arg. with a hunting horn slipped vert garnished gu.

Supporters: two greyhounds ppr. is derived from their being hereditary foresters to the ancient Earls of Douglas.

The name is derived from the lands of Kneland in the Parish of Dalziel, Lanarkshire.

Their crest is a falcon standing upon a left hand glove ppr.

Their motto: "Non sibi," sometimes "For Sport" is over the crest. The motto to the arms is: "Je pense à qui pense plus."

Alexander Cleland, Prelate of Kilspendie in Lowrie, Scotland, the first of whom we have record, married Margaret,[2] daughter of Adam Wallace of Riccartown, and left a son:

James Cleland who joined his cousin, Sir William Wallace, the most illustrious hero of Scotland, in the defense of his country against the English in 1296.

Blind Harry, the Minstrel, in his History of Wallace, says:

"Kneland was yar, ner cusying to Wallace
Syne baid with hym in mony perelowse place."

And again, where Wallace says to Kneland:

"Kneland, cusyng, cum tak ze ster in hand
Her on ye wail ner by ye I sall stand."

After Wallace's death he supported Robert Bruce and received lands in Calder, West Lothian, now Lanarkshire. He was at Louden Hill in 1298 and at Bannockburn in 1314. He left a son:

John Cleland, the eldest son, who spelled his name Kneiland. He was wounded at Poitiers in 1356.

John Kneland of that Ilk was at Harlow[3] in 1412. As no one could occupy the property but the heir, and as the date is too late for the above John Kneland and as the sixth heir was

THE KNELAND FAMILY

William Kneland, it follows that this John was the eldest son of John of Poitiers.

William Kneland,[1] the sixth heir, was a man of education and given to hunting. He was a witness to a charter of the lands of Watson granted by James, Lord Hamilton, to Sir William Baillie of Hoprigg.

William Kneland, the seventh of that ilk. was married in 1462 to Jean Summerville, daughter of Sir William de Somerville, second Lord Somerville, and his wife Janet Mowatt, daughter of Sir John Mowatt of Stenhouse or Stannis. From this branch descended the various branches: Kneland of Faskine, Kneland of Monkland, Kneland of Cartness.

Alexander, the eighth of that ilk, a partisan of James IV of Scotland, killed at Flodden 1513. To a charter dated 1498 there was appended a seal of this Alexander upon which was a hare salient with a hunting horn about his neck, crest a falcon standing on a sinister hand ppr., supporters two greyhounds ppr., motto "Non Sibe." Under the Arms, "Je pense que pense plus."

James Kneland, the ninth of that ilk, was eminent in the time of King James V, whom he frequently attended at hunting. He married a daughter of Hepburn of Bonnytown who was a son of Patrick, Lord Halies, Earl of Bothwell. He was severely wounded at Solway Moss in 1542. He had several sons, among whom were Maj. William and Alexander the younger.

Maj. William Kneland, tenth of that ilk, was devoted to Queen Mary and suspected of being privy to the taking off of Darnley, as he and Arthur Kneland of Knownoblehill in the Parish of Shotts were accused in court as being connected with this affair, and, while the charge was unproven, it had a decided effect and influence upon the future of the family and may have been instrumental in splitting the family into fragmentary branches, each following its own ideas of spelling the family name.

Maj. William Kneland had several sons. Captain John,[2] a younger son, who received a coat of arms from Queen Mary adopted the sea as a profession.

William Cleland, eleventh of that ilk, and Alexander, his brother, sons of Maj. William, changed the spelling of the name and henceforth the Knelands of Kneland became the Clelands of Cleland.

[1]Burke probably confounds him with his son William.

William Cleland, a loyal friend of Queen Mary, bore the original arms typifying a warrior and forester. S. F. Kneeland says he married a sister of Walter Stewart, first Lord Blantyre, daughter of Sir John Stewart and Margaret, daughter of James Stewart.

Burke in his Landed Gentry of Ireland says it was Alexander Cleland, a son of James, the ninth of that ilk, who was devoted to the cause of Queen Mary. He married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Hamilton, third Lord Orbiston, and his wife Margaret, daughter of Alexander Hamilton of Haggs, and left a son William, eleventh of that ilk.

William Cleland, eleventh of that ilk, married a daughter of Sir John Stewart and the sister of Walter Stewart, first Lord Blantyre. They left a son:

Alexander Cleland, twelfth of that ilk, who married Margaret, sister of Sir John Hamilton, first Lord Bargeny and daughter of Sir John Hamilton of Letterick and Bargeny and his wife Margaret Campbell, daughter of the Rev. Alexander Campbell, Bishop of Brechin, a descendant of the Duke of Argyle. By her he had several sons and daughters. The eldest son, Alexander, thirteenth of that ilk, sold the estates of Cleland or Kneland to a cousin of his own name, thereby alienating his family. The other sons, John, master of Laird Braes, Zeswalt, Wigton, born April, 1623, William, Andrew, and Patrick, together with Alexander, all changed their name to Clealand and the three last retired to Ireland.

From here Burke takes up John Clealand of Laird Braes, the ancestor of the Rose-Cleland branch of Rath Gael House, Bangor, County Down, Ireland. But we will follow Patrick Clealand. Patrick, who came to Ireland with the Hamiltons, settled at Ballymagee, County Down. He married Janet, daughter of John Blackwood,[1] Esq., and his wife, Ann Wauchope of Bangor. Patrick Clealand died in 1682, leaving a son:

John Clealand,[2] born 1665–6, who succeeded his grandfather Blackwood as provost of Bangor. He married Mary Taggart, daughter of John and Jannette Taggart of Glenwherry, County Antrim, and died in 1714, leaving a son and two daughters,

[1]John Blackwood, Esq., ancestor of James Stevenson Blackwood, first Lord Dufferin and Claneboye.

[2]To a deed dated 1700 is appended a seal of this John Clealand: a hare salient with a hunting horn in dexter chief, the crest a hare courant.

Patrick, who added greatly to the possessions of the family died without heirs of the body, bequeathing his entire landed estates to a distant cousin of the Wigton branch upon condition of his assuming the name of Cleland, thus founding the Rose-Cleland branch of the family.

His sisters were married, one to Mr. Henderson and the second to her first cousin, John Taggart of Glenwherry, son of Andrew Taggart, thus founding the Taggart-Clealand branch of the family in Antrim.

John Taggart had several children:

John Taggart, killed 1791
James Taggart
William Taggart
Mary Taggart
Joseph Taggart
Jane Taggart
Thomas Taggart.

The period at which the Antrim branch of the Taggart family came to Ireland is not definitely known. It may have come with the McDonalds, with which it was connected, or with the McDonnells when Donald Ballock[1] retired there after

[1]These families were affiliated by ties of blood and marriage.

John Mor, the Tanister or Thane, called Big John, was the second son of the Good John of Isla or The Isles and his second wife Margaret Stewart, daughter of King Robert II of Scotland (see Chart No. 17 on opposite page).

His grandfather, Angus Olg or Og, was the son of Angus Mor who died in 1292, and he in turn was the son of Donald, the son of Reginald, the son of Somerled, Lord of The Isles and King of Man. (Christina Makintagart married Olaus, King of Man, as his third wife.)

John Mor or Big John married Marjory, daughter of John Byset or Bisset of Ireland. He was killed in 1427. It was to his mother's, Marjory Byset's estates in Antrim, that Sir Ronald or Donald, commonly called Donald Ballock, retired as above. Donald married the daughter of Con O'Neill and died in 1476, leaving a son called Big John who married Sabina O'Neill, daughter of Felim, Earl of Tyrone, and in turn left a son, Sir John Maclan* the Cathenac (so called because he was fostered by the O'Cathans in Ulster), who, with four of his sons, was executed in Edinburgh. Maclan's wife, Sheila Savage, and two remaining sons, Alexander Maclan and Angus Ilach, fled to Ireland after an insurrection in which they were implicated. The king granted a pardon and in 1532 sent Angus with eight thousand fighting men to assist the Scots in Ireland against the English.

Sorlie Boy, a brother of James, was appointed by him Lord of the Route and the Glens in Antrim and, marrying Mary, daughter of Con O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, had a son Randal MacSorlie, first Earl of Antrim who had a grant of the Route and the Glens in 1603.

In the eighth century Somerled or Somhairle, a descendant of Colla Vais, King of Ireland, wrested Argyle, the Western Isles and Man from Norsemen who had seized them. The house of Somerled survives in two main branches: Macdonald of the Isles, of whom Alexander was raised to the peerage in 1776, and the Macdonnells, Earls of Antrim.

Angus Olg or Og was the great, great grandson of Somerled, King of Man. His daughter married William, the fifth Earl of Ross of the Makintagart line, and their daughter Margaret married Sir David Hamilton thus becoming the progenitor of the Hamilton-Clealand family and of the Clealand-Taggart family in Ireland.

This line of descent together with that of Hamilton, Clealand, Taggart are all compiled from pedigrees taken from Burke's Peerage, and that of Sir James Balfour Paul, Lion King of Arms edited in 1910 and the Cambridge Modern History, Vol. XIII, edited in 1911 which are among the best-known authorities extant.

*The king summoned Sir John Maclan the Cathenac to court under an Act of Parliament which reads: "Gif it like the King he may ger sumonde all and sindry his rebaud at lauchfull day and place to schame that chartis," under which act he was proclaimed a rebel and his title and estates confiscated.

conquering The Isles, or it may have come with Alexander MacIan and Angus Ilach, or later still with Randal MacSorlie, first Earl of Antrim, when he settled the Routes and the Glens.

Several members of the Taggart family of County Antrim, Ireland settled in the New England states.

William Taggart of Newport, R. I., was appointed on a Committee with Christopher Ellery, William Channing and Solomon Southwick of that place to wait upon General Washington in Mar. 6, 1781 and present him, on behalf of the inhabitants, with congratulations upon his victory.

The Rev. Samuel Taggart, born at Londonderry, N. H., Mar. 24, 1754, graduated from Dartmouth College in 1774. He was elected to Congress in 1803 and served fourteen years. Parson Taggart, as he was called, published pamphlets, and a volume entitled, "A View of Evidences of Christianity" and "Inspiration of the Scriptures," in 1811. He had seventeen children, one of whom, Betsy, the sixth child, married Oct. 25, 1808, Calvin Wells, born at Greenfield. Mass., Apr. 22, 1787. They removed to Genesee Co., N. Y. and later to Byron where he was justice of the peace, deacon in the Congregational Church and later elder in the Presbyterian Church. Among their children was Calvin Wells, Jr., born Dec. 26, 1827 at Byron. He attended the Western University in Pittsburgh from 1847–9, and in the latter year became bookkeeper for the Wholesale Dry Goods House of Benjamin Glyde. In 1850 he formed associations with Dr. Curtis Hussey which finally became Hussey, Wells & Co., Crucible Steel. In 1876 he became president of the Pittsburgh Forge and Iron Company. In 1877 he purchased the Philadelphia Press. In 1899 he was elected U. S. Senator. (Excerpts from "Descendants of Col. Daniel Wells of Greenfield, Mass.," prepared by Samuel Calvin Wells.) Another son of Calvin and Betsy Taggart Wells, Daniel Newton Wells, married Elizabeth Rachel Taggart, born Apr. 14, 1815.

A Rev. Samuel Taggart who was licensed to preach in Antrim, Ireland in 1775 became a resident of Boston, Mass.

Another branch of the Antrim family settled in Northumberland Co., Pa. about 1750, and from here spread over eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland.

The Philadelphia Times was owned and edited by three generations of the Taggart family. It was the only newspaper in the state known to have been operated by three generations of one family. It was recently purchased by the Frank Leslie interests.

Robert Taggart of Northumberland Co. removed to Philadelphia, where he was a well-known merchant.

Patrick Taggart, sergeant of a Philadelphia Company died Nov. 15, 1825. He was pensioned Mar. 4, 1789.

Arthur Taggart, a Revolutionary soldier, died in Northumberland Co.

Charles Taggart was captain of the First Battalion of Bedford Co. Militia and performed a Tour of Duty from July 26, 1782 to Sept. 27, 1782. He belonged to the Flying Camp Rangers.

Capt. Charles Taggart[1] was an officer in the Revolutionary War and the Indian Wars. He removed to Fulton Co., Pa., and is buried in the old Seceder Graveyard, now abandoned, in the Cove below McConnellsburg, Pa. He was one of the trustees of the Presbyterian Meeting House at McConnellsburg in 1799. He married Mary Patterson and had several children:

John
Charles, Jr.
Thomas of Peoria, Ill., 1839
Jane Rebeckah
Mary, married Thomas Logan
Robert
Andrew

His will was probated at Bedford, Nov. 29, 1831, dated Aug. 23, 1824.

Joseph Taggart[2] of Philadelphia, president of the Mechanics Bank of Philadelphia, had a daughter Sarah, who married the Hon. Charles Stratton of South Hall, governor of New Jersey. His parents, Dr. Jas. Stratton and Mary Creighton lived at Stratton Hall, near Swedesborough, Gloucester Co., N. J.

Thomas Taggart, a brother of Robert of Northumberland Co. and of Philadelphia, was born in County Antrim, Ireland, May 10, 1728. He came to Philadelphia and settled in Northumberland Co., Pa. He married Mary Vanderbilt, and had twelve children:

Elizabeth Taggart, married William Bonham
John Taggart, born June 30, 1750, died July 21, 1750
Christiana Taggart, born May 17, 1755, of whom hereafter (see Porter page 89)

William Taggart, born since, Aug. 6, 1773, died 1853
James Taggart, born Jan. 1, 1780.

David Taggart, the fifth son, was a prominent politician and held several local offices. He married Mary McCalla, and had four children:

James, who died in 1855, leaving:
Grantham I. Taggart of Savannah, Ga.
Dr. John Taggart of Salt Lake City, Utah
Sarah, who married Samuel McCombs
Mary, who married Alexander Colts
John, president of the Northumberland Bank of Pennsylvania.

John Taggart, son of David Taggart, resigned as canal commissioner of Pennsylvania and was succeeded by Thaddeus Stephens. He married Hannah Huston[1] of Philadelphia, and had six children:

A. David, born May 28, 1822, an attorney and president of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society. He married May 5, 1848, Annie, daughter of Col. John H. Corrden. He was speaker of the house at Harrisburg and a paymaster during the Civil War. He died June 30, 1888.

B. Matthew H. Taggart, born Feb. 18, 1829, an attorney-at-law at the state treasurer's office in Harrisburg. He removed to Philadelphia in 1884, but returned to Northumberland Co. in 1890 to manage the Taggart Nail Mills. He married, first, Rebecca McCurley and had six children; secondly, Eliza McCurley and had two children; and, thirdly, Ella G. Royer.

C. Capt. James Taggart was born Feb. 4, 1827. He was a merchant of Northumberland Co., enlisted in the Civil War and was killed at Charles City Cross Roads while engaged in action. He married Sarah Cowden, and had four children.

D. Huston.

E. One child, name unknown.

[1]Matthew Huston, father of Hannah Huston, was born in 1757-8. He was a Revolutionary soldier serving at White Plains, Trenton, Princeton, Brandywine, Germantown and was six times elected clerk of the house, and representative of Philadelphia Co. He was editor of the "Argus." Mr. Huston died Aug. 10, 1809, aged 51 years.

F. John K. Taggart, secretary and clerk to his brother David Taggart in the Paymaster's Department of the Federal Army. He married Hannah, daughter of Dr. John Priestly.

G. Frank A. Taggart of the Pennsylvania Railroad lived at Philadelphia. He married, and had four children:

John Taggart
William Taggart
Joseph Taggart
Anna Taggart, married Mr. Christy.

Antrim, essentially Scottish, was settled alike by Highlanders and Lowlanders, and it is said "that about Ballymena the Irish language was never spoken." Kintyre, the nearest point to Ireland, is just thirteen miles from the Antrim coast.

Members of the old Ross and Taggart stock came down from time to time into the lowlands of Scotland, and William, the Earl of Ross of the Makintagart line, settled many in Galloway in 1292 when the king granted him the Sheriffdom[1] of Skye in Argyle.

The affiliations of the Taggart family with the lowland Scots give color to the claim that it had sojourned in Galloway[2] for some generations before returning to Ireland. Perhaps five hundred years had passed before the family returned to Ireland, whence it came. Here it spread over Antrim, giving names to several localities and towns. Taggartsland is a division of a county called a townland. It corresponds, although somewhat smaller in dimensions, with our township and includes several parishes.

A part of Donegore and Kilbride parishes, the ancient burial places of the Taggart family, is in Taggartsland. There is a Taggartstown near Randalstown and another[3] between Belfast and Antrim.

The first member of this branch of the Taggart family of whom we have record in Antrim was Thomas Taggart of the valley of the Six Mile Water, a stream that enters Lough Neagh near the town of Antrim. It pursues the same general course as the Wherry that, traversing the Glen or Glenwherry about ten miles distant, enters the Bann at Kells. Between these two streams lie the parishes of Rashee, Kilbride, Donegore, Templepatrick and Ballyclare, of which Donegore and Kilbride lie partially within the division called Taggartsland.

[1]The Sheriffdom of Skye, together with the Lordships of Knapsdale and Kintyre, remained in the Makintagart line until 1478.

[2]On a farm at Plunton, where his ancestors had lived before him, there was born in 1799 John McTaggart, "known to all who belong to Galloway from old standing as the author of the Galloway Encyclopedia," published in 1824.

[3]The Rev. Bruce Taggart while traveling in Ireland on his wedding trip, tells of meeting a patriarch of his name living in an old stone mansion house at Taggartstown between Belfast and Antrim.

Thomas Taggart is said to have fled to Ireland on account of religious persecution for it was a common thing for nonconformists to have their houses seized and their goods inventoried for the king's use and for refusing to pay any part of "the teynd victuall of the personnage and viccarage assignt to them in stipend" for the established church.

He had two sons; Andrew Taggart (333) of Donegore Parish, Taggartsland, Six Mile Water, and Thomas Taggart of Templepatrick, Six Mile Water, County Antrim.

333. Andrew Taggart was conspicuous in the time of Cromwell. He was an ardent covenanter and the warm friend of Josiah Welch[1] of Oldstone and Templepatrick, called by his parishioners "Cock of the Conscience."

Politically Andrew Taggart belonged to the faction that opposed Cromwell. He advocated the government of the country under a mixed rule of kings, lords and commons and not by the Rump Parliament alone and was threatened with banishment. In 1653 he was summoned with John Wilson of Rashee, John Cathcart, Captain Fergueson, Mr. Shaw, Thomas Crauford and the ministers of Down and Antrim to appear before the court and defend himself.

Reid in his History of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland says: "Cromwell designed to remove all the popular Scots of influence and station out of Ulster and to this end confined a number of them in Carrickfergus Castle where they were to remain until transports could be secured to carry them to the south and west of Ireland."

Just as Andrew Taggart and his friends were about to board the ships for deportation to County Connaught news reached them that Cromwell had raised the parliament, dissolved the commonwealth and declared himself lord-protector, "whereupon the officers dismissed the prisoners with unexpected kindness."

The property of these men had been confiscated and given to friends of the commonwealth by the great Commoner so that it was necessary for them to make new connections and in many instances in new territory. Andrew Taggart retired to his eldest son's home at Glenwherry.

The extravagant joy to which he and his late companions gave expression when King Charles was restored to the throne was soon tempered by the news that the King would enforce the obnoxious Uniformity Act in Ulster with great severity.

Public worship in Ireland was interrupted for a period of ten years by the Act of the King and the Covenanters were almost disfranchised. They could hold neither a civil nor a military office, and their marriage rites were declared invalid. Had not the King been persuaded by wise advisers to modify his conduct and grant more liberal statutes to the non-conformists the passion for emigration would have swept the north of Ireland clean at this period and bereft Ulster of her most enlightened and progressive population.

Andrew Taggart was a leader of the opposition resisting the atrocious Act of the King and stirring up the inhabitants of the Wherry and the Six Mile Water valleys. He lived to see the Act annulled but he remained a marked man in Ulster and a martyr to his civil and religious principals.

Of his several sons, John Taggart of Glenwherry was the most conspicuous. He was born in Donegore Parish, Taggartsland, County Antrim about 1630 and settled in the valley of the Wherry when he came of age. He lived through two terrible massacres; one in his youth, at which time he escaped with his parents to Carrickfergus Castle, and the other in 1688, when all his movable goods were carried away and his dwelling house and offices destroyed by bands of insurgents who swept through the valley, leaving it desolate and carrying into deadly effect their threat "to despoil and starve all those protestants who had escaped hanging."

The misfortunes that overtook the family of Taggart through several generations never quite submerged it, although its material prosperity, like that of many others in the north of Ireland, was brought low.

333–334. John Taggart of Glenwherry married Jannette, daughter of Patrick Allan of Ballyeaston, County Antrim, and died in 1706. Jannette Taggart died July 17, 1715. They are both buried in Donegore Churchyard near Donegore Moat, where the inscriptions on their gravestones were still legible in 1903.

334. John and Jannette Taggart left several children:

335. John Taggart II, gentleman, d. s. p. 1698
Mungo Taggart
William Taggart of Donegore Parish, d. s. p. 1740

336. Mary Taggart, who married the above John Clealand of Bangor, County Down

337. Andrew Taggart of Glenwherrie who married Agnes Jane (——) and left several children, one of whom was:

337-338. John Taggart III of Glenwherrie, born about 1701, married his first cousin, Mary, daughter of John Clealand,[1] provost of Bangor and his wife, Mary Taggart of Glenwherry. John, who was the principal heir to his Uncle William's holdings in Donegore Parish, removed to that parish and took up his residence at Tobergill Farmstead in 174– and in this way became the owner of the homestead occupied by Andrew Taggart, Sr., at the time of Cromwell.

Tobergill Farmstead[2] in Donegore Parish, Taggartsland is beautifully situated, overlooking Lough Neagh. The old house is a substantial two-storied stone dwelling with center hall and an open stairway to the sleeping rooms on the second floor. The left wing, as one approaches it through a gateway flanked by two stone pillars now covered with plaster, is in reality the animal house. It remains as originally built and has a single opening towards the front. The house stands on the crest of a hill overlooking the lake and Shane's Castle, the Manor house of the O'Neills, the Earls of Antrim. The beauty of the old house has been marred in the opinion of the compiler, who visited it in 1903, by the insertion of four modern windows on the ground floor and five on the sleeping floor, and by the coating of plaster.

Distant about one mile is Donegore Moat, the old stone tavern, and the parish church and graveyard where John and Jannette Allan Taggart and other members of this old family lie buried.

338. John Taggart III of Tobergill House was a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church and sat in the Synod of [1]John Clealand, son of Patrick Clealand, provost of Bangor, was born at Ballymagee in 1625. His wife Janet, daughter of John Blackwood, Esq., was of a distinguished family in Ulster. John Clealand died at Bangor in 1714. To a deed dated Nov. 2, 1700 his seal is affixed, bearing a hare salient with a hunting horn in dexter chief and a rose on the sinister base. The crest is a hare courant.

[2]Tobergill Farmstead was occupied in 1903 by Alexander Lowther and his family. William Taggart, an octogenarian, from whose place at Ballyno the old house could be seen through an opening in the trees, remembered John Taggart, Sr., of Pittsburgh very well and had talked with him upon two occasions when John returned from the United States to visit his birthplace. Tobergill. Shane's Castle can still be seen from the lawn, although not so distinctly as formerly as a disasterous fire destroyed part of the castle and the old tower in 1815.

Ballymena in 1733. He died in 1791, leaving, with other children, two sons:

339. John Taggart IV of this name, born about 1730, killed 1798
340. James Taggart.

We will turn for a moment from the Tobergill branch of the Antrim Rural family to that of Joseph Taggart of Antrim Urban, sixth in descent from Thomas Taggart, the first, of Templepatrick.

349. Joseph Taggart had, with other children, two sons, William of Thornhill and John of Antrim.

1349. William Taggart married, and had:

Dr. William John Taggart[1] of Thornhill, Antrim
Miss Taggart, who married Mr. Brown of Belfast, and had children.
Campbell Taggart, who married, and has a daughter, Rose Taggart who married Capt. Frederick Buick West of the Royal Fusilers, Johannesburg, South Africa, son of the Rev. Thomas V. West of Antrim Mary Taggart, who married her cousin, Joseph Taggart, and had:
William Taggart of 80 Englantine Road, Belfast
Mary Taggart, who married Robert Russell of the Ulster Bank, Belfast.

1350. John Taggart, the second son of Joseph Taggart, born about 1790, was a woolen cloth merchant of Antrim. He was clerk of the Millrow Presbyterian Church for a number of years, and was the correspondent of the Irish branch of the family and the custodian of all communications sent by the Pittsburgh branch to the Taggarts of Antrim Rural. He had at least three sons:

Joseph Taggart who married his cousin Mary, sister of Dr. William John Taggart of Thornhill
Henry Taggart, engaged with his brother Joseph in the woolen business in Antrim
Dr. John Taggart of Antrim, died before 1867.

To return to the Glenwherrie branch:

338–339. John Taggart IV, son of John and Mary Clealand Taggart, was born in Glenwherry about 1730. He removed with his parents in 174– to Donegore Parish, Taggartsland, when his father was served an heir portioner of his Uncle William's lands at that place.

He was a loyalist and an officer in the Yeomanry Guard as well as a personal friend of its commanding officer. During the agrarian riots in 1779 he came into bad repute with the disaffected Irish, who ultimately revenged themselves upon him in a singularly cruel manner.

[1]Of whom Mrs. Donaldson of Whin Park speaks in a letter to John Taggart of Pittsburgh announcing the death of her mother in 1835. Dr. William John Taggart was very helpful to the compiler in directing her to the birthplace of John Taggart of Pittsburgh and in furnishing her with pamphlets containing references to the religious activities of the family in Antrim.

A band of insurgents surrounded his home, Tobergill House in Donegore Parish, one night and compelled him upon threats of violence and pillage to come out. They hurried him to a rendezvous of their confederates at the old Moat Tavern and there insulted and maltreated him, but he, being still a vigorous man, escaped from their hands and sought refuge in the parish church close by. But they, pursuing, entered the church and subjected him to fresh indignities, not designing to take his life but hoping by intimidations and coercion to force him to leave the country. In the scuffle that followed he recognized a neighbor whose disguise had become disarranged and inadvertently called out his name, whereupon he was immediately trampled to death by the affrighted mob.

He married Agnes Eliza (——), and left eight children:

341. John Taggart V married Mary Bell Carnahan
342. Eliza Agnes, married John Wilson of Rashee
343. William, married Rachel Johnson
344. Francis
345. Mary, married (——) Montgomery
346. James
347. Joseph
348. Andrew, married Sarah Wilson, sister of John Wilson of Rashee.

1330. James Taggart
1331. John Taggart
1332. Samuel Taggart.

1330. James Taggart, the eldest son, remained in Canada and became a manufacturer of shoes at Montreal.

The widow came to Allegheny Co., settling near the line of Butler Co., where Andrew Taggart's family had settled earlier in the year.

1331. John Taggart, the second son, was a bank clerk in Pittsburgh, where his mother afterwards joined him. Later in life he, too, became a manufacturer of shoes. He married Margaret Orr, and had four children:

1351. Maj. Robert Taggart of Tidioute, Warren Co., Pa.
1352. Mary Taggart
1353. William T. Taggart
1354. Elizabeth Taggart, who married Mr. Miller.

1332. The youngest son, Samuel Taggart, was born near Lisburn, County Antrim, Mar. 26, 1803, and came with his mother and brother John to Pittsburgh. He took his degree at the Western University, now the University of Pittsburgh, in 1831 and studied theology at Allegheny Seminary.

He served as pastor of the West Middletown Presbyterian Church in Washington Co. from 1835 to 1855 when he went to the United Presbyterian Church at Harmony, but returned the following year to West Middletown, where he remained until September, 1884.

He married Margaret McAyeal[1] and had three children:

1356. Mary E. Taggart, who married J. Verner Clark of Washington, Pa.

1357. The Rev. Samuel Taggart, was born at West Middletown, Washington Co., Pa., Oct. 2, 1844. He took his degree at Westminster College in 1865, studied theology at Xenia Seminary and was licensed to preach May 12, 1868. In 1868 he was pastor at Spring Hill, Ind. and at Turtle Creek, Pa. in 1870-1. In 1871 he joined the Presbyterian Church. He was one of the founders of the Y. M. C. A. of America, of which organization he was state secretary for seventeen years. He was also appointed secretary of the International Association.

He married Susan Watt Patterson, daughter of the Rev. James Patterson,[2] D.D., president of Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., and died Apr. 14, 1904, leaving four children:

1396. Mary Jane Taggart of Pittsburgh.

339–343. William Taggart, who married Rachel Johnson, had several children:

1334. Andrew Taggart

1335. William Taggart

1336. Sarah Taggart

1337. Rachel Taggart

1338. Betty Taggart

[1]Robert McAyeal, D.D., born in Washington Co., Pa., Jan. 23, 1825, was chaplain in the Army during the Civil War. He was moderator of the Associate Reformed General Assembly in 1871.

[2]The Rev. James Patterson, D.D., was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., July 15, 1812, graduated at Jefferson College in 1830, studied theology at Canonsburg and was licensed to preach by Chartiers Presbytery in 1834. He was the first president of Westminster College and president of Ohio Central College in 1867. Besides Susan, he had a son David J. Patterson of Washington, Pa., and two daughters Mrs. Joseph Lowry and Mrs. Robert J. Fleming.

1339. Mary Taggart, who was twice married: first to Mr. Clark and had, with other children:

1358. Robert Clark of Woodville, Pa.

Mary Taggart Clark married, secondly, Mr. Jackson Curry, and had an only daughter:

1362. Annie Curry, who died unmarried at the South Hall Farm, Woodville, Allegheny Co., Pa. in 1914.

339–348. Andrew Taggart, son of John IV and Agnes Eliza Taggart, was born at Tobergill House, Donegore Parish, Taggartsland, Mar. 15, 1762.

Like his father, he was a loyalist and was active in helping to quell the insurrections of 1779 and 1798. He was severely injured at Donegore Hill, where the rebels rallied in 1798 and drove the yeomanry back, and was at the markethouse riots in Antrim when Lord Antrim was killed.

He was a high officer in the Masonic Order and a member of the Orangemen's Association. As the officers were leaving their headquarters at Ballymena one night in 1801 the United Irishmen attacked the place and he was wounded by a blow from the butt of a gun which rendered him partially deaf during the rest of his life.

He was the first member of the Taggart family to leave the Presbyterian Church to affiliate with the Seceders. He was one of those who prayed relief from the government from the common form of taking an oath by kissing the Bible.

Shortly after John Taggart was trampled to death, Andrew removed with his family to Port Lea beyond Randalstown in the Barony of Lower Antrim, where he carried on the linen business. He was the owner of extensive linen greens, one of which near the Londonderry line was under the management of Wm. Moore,[1] a foreman who often accompanied him to the markets of Ballymena and Belfast.

In 1818 he sold his property at Port Lea to Mr. Russell and came with his family to Pennsylvania. He entered America by the port of Montreal and thence proceeded, mainly by water, to Pittsburgh, Pa., the family building its own flatboats. He purchased a farm in Deer Township, Allegheny Co., near the Butler Co. line from Richard Wilson, a near relative of his wife's who had previously settled there. He was engaged in farming until 1835 when he retired to Pittsburgh. Apropos of the family's settlement in the United States, Andrew Taggart often related the following story: One day on the bleaching greens at Port Lea he came unexpectedly upon his son John standing with his hand shading his eyes, and looking longingly towards the setting sun. To his question, "What troubles you, my boy?" John replied, "Father, I want to go to America."

[1]William Moore and his wife, Lydia Findley, came to the United States about 1800, settled in Wilkinsburg but later on Squirrel Hill. Their daughter Jane married Isaac Harris, whose sister Margaret through marriage with Elijah Trovillo became the forebear of the Coleman-Carnegie, the John Bradley, and the Thomas M. Miller connection.

After some discussion as to the impossibility of immediately carrying out such a plan his father promised him if he would content himself for two years he would dispose of his bleaching greens and their home at Port Lea and the entire family would accompany him.

Andrew died at the Taggart homestead on Irwin Ave., Pittsburgh, North Side, Jan. 9, 1849 and his wife, Sarah Wilson Taggart, died Mar. 8, 1855. They are buried in the family plot in Uniondale Cemetery, of which their son John Taggart was one of the incorporators.

Andrew and Sarah Wilson Taggart lived to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They had nine children; some born at Tobergill House and some at Port Lea.

1340. Joseph Taggart, who died in Ireland
1341. Elizabeth Taggart married Francis Hare of Antrim and Pittsburgh
1342. Agnes Eliza Taggart, first married Joseph Shaw; secondly, married Hugh Dalzell
1343. Matthew Taggart of Cincinnati
1344. Mary Taggart, married William Hare
1345. Margaret Taggart, married Alexander Hare, brother to William 1346. Andrew Taggart, married Nancy Hare, sister to William 1347. Sarah Taggart, married Alexander Glasgow

No. 1348–661.[1] John Taggart, married first, Anna Hare, sister to Francis, who died at the birth of her son in 1824, and with him was buried in Oak Alley Cemetery, Pittsburgh, Pa.

John Taggart married, secondly, Jane Porter of West Deer Township, Allegheny Co., Pa. (see under Porter, page 88; also under Taggart, page 176).

348–1341. Elizabeth Taggart, born at Tobergill House, Donegore Parish, Taggartsland, County Antrim, Ireland, March, 1796, married Francis Hare and came to Pittsburgh, Pa. in 1818–9, where Mr. Hare was engaged in the produce business in the Diamond under the firm name of John Taggart and Company. Mrs. Hare died Mar. 30, 1876. They had ten children:

1363. Agnes Mary, born Mar. 19, 1820, married Thomas Kelly
1364. Mary Ann, born Feb. 18, 1822, married Hugh M. Bole
724.[1] Andrew, born July 23, 1824, married Eliza J. Clendenning 1365. Sarah J., born Nov. 13, 1827, married Robert Bole, brother of Hugh M. (see page 164)
1366. William, born July 13, 1829, married Jane Taylor
1367. Margaret, born Feb. 28, 1832, married William Marshall 1368. Elizabeth, born Oct. 12, 1834, died young 1369. John, born Jan. 18, 1837, killed in the Civil War
1370. Francis Alex., born Oct. 8, 1839, married Catherine Chapman
1371. Elizabeth, born May 15, 1841.

1341–1364. Mary Ann Hare, born in Pittsburgh, Feb. 18, 1822, married in 1848, Hugh M. Bole.

Mr. Bole was born in 1845 at Bolesburg,[2] County Down, Ireland. He came to Pittsburgh and entered the employ of Knapp, Totten and Company. In 1857 he formed a partnership with Hugh M. Graham in the Foundry business under the firm name of Graham, Bole and Company. In 1860 Mr. Bole withdrew from the firm and formed a new company, The Bole Foundry and Machine Company, in Duquesne Way. During the Civil War he manufactured guns and cannon for the United States Government.

Hugh M. Bole died at his residence, Bellevue, Pa., July 21, 1900. They had nine children:

1397. John Bole
1398. Francis Hare Bole
1399. Sarah Elizabeth Bole
1400. William Andrew Bole
1401. George McClelland Bole
1402. Mary Bole, who died young 1403. Robert Bole, who died young 1404. Robert Bole, born later
1405. Margaret Hanna Bole.

1364–1397. John Bole, the eldest son of Hugh Miller and Mary Ann Hare Bole, was born Dec. 12, 1848 in Congress St., Pittsburgh, Pa. He attended Duff's Business College and while still in his teens entered the machine shops of his father. He soon became interested in the oil business as an operator in northwestern Pennsylvania where his knowledge of mechanics and an inventive turn of mind led him to become an inventor of oil well tools and supplies. He patented a number of inventions, mainly drilling and fishing tools that are now in general use in the oil well industry throughout the country.

Do you have materials you'd like to share?

We'll market them for you and pay you a royalty on all copies sold.

If you have any kind of genealogical materials, family groupsheets, miscellaneous papers, GEDCOM files, whatever, we'd like to market them for you.

Hundreds of people are asking every week what's available on their particular name. We act as a clearing house between you and the folks that are interested in your information. You set your own prices, and we'll either produce the materials from your masters and pay you a royalty or refer the customers to you and let you fill the order.

Here's our guidelines. You're free to set your own prices.

GEDCOM files.

Up to 500 names at 10 ¢ per name.
500 to 2500 names at 5¢ per name
2500 or more names at 3¢ per name

We'll maintain a copy of your file and fill the orders for you. You'll receive a royalty of 50% on all orders. Additionally you'll receive via e-mail a listing of all inquiries regarding your file. Payments are made the first of each month for orders received the previous month.

Family Group Sheets

25 ¢ to 45 ¢ per page

Misc. Family Papers

25 ¢ to 45 ¢ per page

Even if we already have a folder on your surname, we always welcome new materials. We'll do the copying and shipping for you and pay you a 33% royalty.

Working together we can make the path easier for those who follow. We look forward to receiving your materials and adding them to our collection here at Your Genealogy Super Store.

Esther Taggart Bergen (ca. 1800 - ??)

LAWRENCE BERGEN and ESTHER TAGGART were both born in Ireland around 1800. Only known child is Richard BERGEN b. ca 1830 in Ireland, m. Mary MURRAY b. 1833 in Ireland d. 1900-01 in Chicago. Children were Richard, Henry, John, Lawrence, Thomas, Hugh, Peter, Frances and Mary Loretto.

REF: RayBergen@aol.com

Hannah Taggart (ca. 1840 - ??)

Margaret Jameson, wife of Samuel Glasgow, was the daughter of Thomas & 2d wife Hannah Taggart. My ancestor was her youngest sister, Rhoda, who came to Davis Co., IA, in 1860 or so.

According to "Pioneer families of Franklin County" by Marshall Wingfield, Margaret Jameson was indeed the child of Thomas Jameson and Hannah Taggart. This was Thomas' 2nd marriage. John Jameson was a son by Thomas' marrage to Jane Dickey.

I don't know if what I have will help you. My Taggart line ended up settling in Knoxville, Tn. From what I can understand out of of the papers my grandmother gave me to me, ours starts with Jane Emery.

Jane Emery; d 1893. She was m twice.
1st. John McCollum of Castledeg, Ire. (farmer) d 1828.
2nd. John Hindman, Knoxville, IA (farmer) d 1869.
Children from 1st. husband: Sarah McCollum, (d 1950 , m Geo. W. Schmitt (farmer) d 1900.Under Sarah and James I have children and cousins listed. 2nd. husband: James McCollum, Knoxville, IA (farmer) d 1886. James m twice. 1. Mary Coats, d 1863. 2. Rebecca Taggart, d 1917.
Jane Emery 2nd. husband James Hindman, of Knoxville, IA (farmer) d 1869. I believe James had 4 or 5 children: Mary, d 1929, Jane, d 1910, Elizabeth, d 1922, Barbara, d (No Date).
My Taggart's start with Jane Hindman. James Taggart m, (have no date). I only have James birth date 11-15-1831, and that he lived in Allegheny Co. PA, and that when he was 4 years of age . He and his parents moved to Ohio, and then moved to Iowa in 1858 and settled in Marion Co. I have been told that there was another group of Taggart's that settled in the Knoxville, IA area and I understand their name was McTaggart and then it was changed to Taggart.As of June 12-1860.Age.

Subj: TAGGART of PA
From: MUDCHUCKER

Hi, I am looking for ancestors of George William Taggart, M.D. I believe he was born or worked in Philadelphia, PA. I think his father and mother came over to the USA from Ireland in the early 1900s. George William Taggart married Dorothy Webster (from DuBois, PA) I think. He moved to Hazleton, PA where he had one son George Webster Taggart, M.D. I am looking for any and all information on the Taggart family. Thank you.

Pia D. Taggart-Boyd

From: RogLA

My great-great-great grandmother was Mary Taggart Mills, daughter of Archilbald Taggart who immigrated abt. 1738 from Ireland. Her husband, William Mills was b. abt 1790 I believe in Paris, NY. They settled in Lenox, Madison County, NY and are buried in Lenox at a site now unknown. Their sons were, Cyrus Taggart Mills b.1819 (went on to found Mills College), David Mills b. 1814 was my great-great-grandfather and Giles Mills b.?

The boys were apparently orphaned with the death of William and Mary, and were raised with the help of a Rev. Alvah Day.

PURE KENTUCKY

PLEASE DRIVE SAFELY

Speed Limit — The speed limit is 65 mph on rural sections of Kentucky's interstates and on most parkways.

Child Restraints — A Kentucky law requires that all children less than 40 inches tall be placed in an approved child restraint seat when traveling in an automobile.

Motorcycles — No person shall operate or ride as a passenger on a motorcycle unless that person wears approved protective headgear and eye protection.

Turning — Kentucky has a permissive "right turn on red" law, unless a sign forbidding such turns is posted at the intersection.

Driving Under the Influence — Our goal in Kentucky is to save lives, not to arrest and penalize people. If you are convicted of D.U.I. for the first time, you will receive a six-month license suspension, be fined a minimum of $200 (maximum $500), and you could face imprisonment for not less than 48 hours nor more than 30 days in jail. Further sanctions are applied for second and subsequent convictions. Don't drink and drive!

Accidents — If you are involved in an accident, notify the nearest State Police post or use the emergency number listed below. Accidents involving personal injury, or total damage of $200 or more, not investigated by a law enforcement agency, must be reported by the individual within 10 days to the Department of Transportation on an official form which may be obtained from any police station or State Police officer.

Emergency Toll Free Number — Call 1-800-222-5555 to report accidents, crimes or drunk drivers. Kentucky troopers stand ready to assist you at any time.

KENTUCKY IS CLOSE-BY

Kentucky is located in the south central United States along the west side of the Appalachian Mountains, and is bordered by seven states. The Ohio River, running along the state's northern border, separates Kentucky from Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana. West Virginia borders Kentucky to the northeast along the Big Sandy River, and Virginia borders Kentucky to the southeast. Tennessee borders Kentucky to the south, and Missouri is across the Mississippi River at the extreme western edge of the state.

Kentucky's Welcome Centers are located at major entry points into the state. The five centers indicated below are open seven days a week from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Travel information specialists are on hand to answer questions, give directions and provide you with all the vacation information you'll need.

THE BLUEGRASS STATE

The Kentucky Flag

Kentucky is known as the "Bluegrass State" because of the abundant growth of bluegrass on its rich limestone soil. No one really knows where Kentucky bluegrass originated, but reports say that early pioneers found it growing in the state when they crossed the Allegheny Mountains. Traders began to ask for the seed of the "blue grass from Kentucky" and the name stuck. Bluegrass is not really blue — it's green. But in the spring, bluegrass produces bluish-purple buds that, when seen in large fields, give a rich blue cast to the grass.

"My Old Kentucky Home, Good-Night"
State Song

By Stephen Collins Foster - 1853

The sun shines bright in the old Kentucky Home,
'Tis summer, the people are gay;
The corn top's ripe and the meadow's in the bloom
While the birds make music all the day.
The young folks roll on the little cabin floor,
All merry, all happy and bright:
By'n'by Hard Times comes a-knocking at the door,
Then, my old Kentucky Home, good-night!

Chorus

Weep no more, my lady, Oh! weep no more today!
We will sing one song for the old Kentucky Home, for the old Kentucky Home, far away.

HISTORY

Kentucky's colorful past, which helped shape the character of America, is preserved at many exciting events, sites and museums throughout the state. Did you know that on February 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln was born in a small cabin near Hodgenville in central Kentucky? That cabin remains, as does the natural spring where the family drew water, at Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historic Site. A few more than a hundred miles away, in southwestern Kentucky, is the birthplace of Jefferson Davis, who became Lincoln's primary adversary as President of the Confederacy during the Civil War. Davis' birthplace is also marked by a public monument at Fairview.

Take time to visit a real Kentucky showplace, My Old Kentucky Home at Bardstown, and the picturesque Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill. Look through the Cumberland Gap from Pinnacle Mountain to understand why Daniel Boone had to find out where it led, and reflect on the hardships of pioneer life at Fort Boonesborough and Old Fort Harrod. Use our Traveller's Guide to Kentucky for a complete listing of Kentucky's many historic sites and attractions.

HORSES

Every year on the first Saturday in May, Kentucky hosts the most famous horse race in the world, the Kentucky Derby. Held at Louisville's Churchill Downs, the Derby is undoubtedly the "most exciting two minutes in sports." Even if you can't be with us on Derby day, you can enjoy the thrill of this famous race year round at the Kentucky Derby Museum at Churchill Downs. In Kentucky, horses are racing somewhere almost every day of the year at the many beautiful race courses across the state for thoroughbreds, harness horses and quarter horses.

Central Kentucky is known throughout the world as the famous Bluegrass Region. It is here that the future champions of the horse world are bred, born and raised. At the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington, you can learn almost everything about every breed of horse. Marvel at the exhibits in the International Museum of the Horse and the American Saddle Horse Museum, take a carriage ride, go horseback riding, watch the Parade of Breeds show, and see three of racing's all-time greats — Forego, John Henry and Rambling Willie. The park also features a full schedule of events such as horse shows, steeplechase racing, three-day eventing and polo. Kentucky's world of horses comes alive at the only park of its kind anywhere.

HAPPENINGS

Kentuckians never miss an opportunity to get together for celebration and fun. There's a good chance on any given weekend you'll have to choose which fair or festival around the state you want to attend! Wherever you choose to go, you can be assured that the food will be homemade, the entertainment lively and the phrase "Southern hospitality" will take on new meaning. The finest handcrafts made in America today will be displayed by artisans whose methods are as old as the hills where their techniques originated. You'll hear the best Bluegrass music anywhere and marvel at the stamina of the cloggers and square dancers.

Of course every event has a theme . . . here are just a few of ours — Strange Music Weekend, Tater Day, Black Gold Festival, Lincoln Days, the Egyptian Event, Frontier Christmas and the spectacular Kentucky Derby Festival. Sound like fun?

Kentuckians are also proud of the fine performing and visual arts programs offered throughout the year. Use our Calendar of Events to discover the wide range of activities not to be missed during your stay in Kentucky.

When the pioneers crossed the Cumberland Gap into Kentucky, they found a land of unique beauty and diversity. 200 years later, people are still discovering Kentucky.

We Kentuckians feel a great sense of pride in our state that is inspired by the beauty of the land, the diversity of our culture, and the rich traditions of our heritage. Most of all, we like sharing our unique state with the many people who visit us every year.

Please stop at one of our Welcome Centers before you continue your travel on Kentucky's highways. You will receive your first sample of our famous Kentucky hospitality, as well as all the information you need to make your trip more memorable and enjoyable.

Whether you are here for business or vacation, I know that you will enjoy the charm of Kentucky and the warmth of Kentuckians.

On behalf of the people of Kentucky, welcome to the Bluegrass State.

NATIONAL SITES

Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historic Site, Hodgenville. A granite and marble shrine is now located on what was the Sinking Spring farm when Thomas Lincoln moved his family there in 1808. Abraham Lincoln was born here one year later in a one-room log cabin near the spring. Today, the cabin is enclosed in the shrine, and the spring where the family drew water still flows.

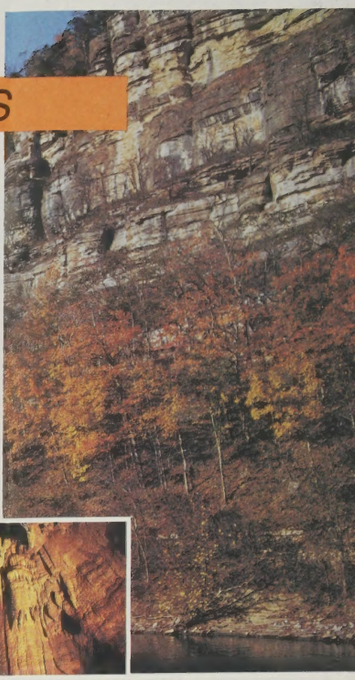
Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area, South Central Kentucky. Preserves over 100,000 acres of river and backcountry in Kentucky and Tennessee. This is an excellent area for hiking, horseback riding, camping, fishing, canoeing and white water rafting amidst nature's rugged unspoiled beauty.

Cumberland Gap National Historical Park, Middlesboro. With over 20,000 acres, this is the second largest historical park in the national park system. When Daniel Boone came through the gap in 1775 and cleared the Wilderness Trail, the migration to Kentucky began. Features Pinnacle Mountain which overlooks Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee.

Daniel Boone National Forest, Eastern Kentucky. The forest covers portions of 21 Kentucky counties and over 672,000 acres. Special attractions include: Red River Gorge Geological Area, Cave Run Lake, Sheltowee Trace National Recreation Trail, Laurel River Lake, Natural Arch Scenic Area, Pioneer Weapons Hunting Area and Beaver Creek Wilderness. Outdoor recreational opportunities abound.

Land Between the Lakes, Western Kentucky. TVA's 170,000-acre outdoor recreation and environmental education area is situated between Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake in western Kentucky and Tennessee. Features four major activity centers, miles of hiking trails, camping sites and an unlimited range of water-related activities. There are no commercial establishments on the peninsula which makes LBL the perfect back-to-nature getaway vacation spot.

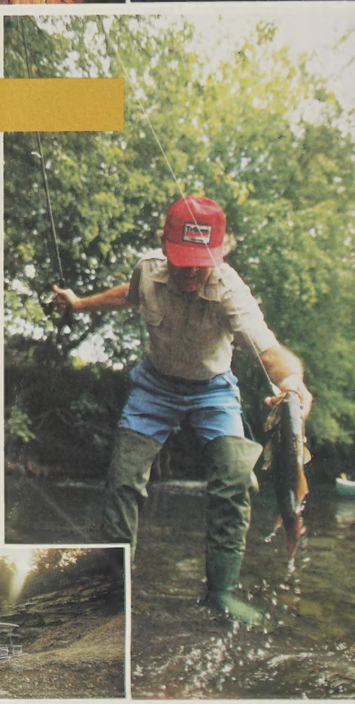
Mammoth Cave National Park, Mammoth Cave. Unique in all the world, this park covers 52,000 acres in south central Kentucky and is underlaid by the world's longest cave system. Mammoth Cave is a World Heritage Site and has over 300 miles of mapped passageways on five levels. Guided cave tours provide an unforgettable experience below ground with camping and hiking "top-side."



OUTDOORS

In Kentucky, the outdoors comes to life, whether you enjoy it from a fishing boat or a mountaintop. You can fish for bass or crappie, trout or muskie, or a variety of other fish. And you'll be fishing in waters that have yielded their share of record catches — including a world record 11-pound, 15-ounce smallmouth bass. Of course, that's only natural for a state that has over 200,000 surface acres of impounded water and offers more miles of running water than any other state except Alaska.

Not a fisherman? Don't worry about it. There's plenty of room for everybody on Kentucky's waters. You can go sailing across a sunlit lake, relax on a comfortable houseboat, or water-ski in one of many glassy coves. Try maneuvering a canoe or raft through a boulder-lined shoot of white water or drift down a smooth stream canopied by aging sycamore and maple trees. Hikers and bicyclists will find Kentucky's backcountry offers some of the most beautiful vistas in the mideastern United States. And campers will delight in any of the 200 campgrounds across the state as well as the various wilderness areas. Use our Outdoor Directory for more information on Kentucky's outdoor recreational facilities.



STATE PARKS

It's a pretty big claim to call yourself the finest in the nation, but that's exactly what Kentucky's state park system has called itself for years. And with good reason. The 44 resorts, recreational parks and historic sites are located at some of the most scenic spots in the state. And each one offers a multitude of recreational opportunities for every member of the family. Use our Traveller's Guide to Kentucky to find the perfect park for your vacation.

[A4] Anna, b 1750(?); d 21 Aug 1829; another daughter of John and Polly, married 3 Oct 1782 PECoVA Revolutionary Tommie, Thomas CARSON, b 18 Feb 1760 in Bedford Co VA or Ireland; d 18 Jan 1840/2 BCoKY; he m2 Mary. Served in 5th VA Rgmt and with Col Daniel Morgan along with [A1] William PORTER. See Declaration of 9 July 1832. It will be remembered that on Page - it is stated that William PORTER, married Susan CARSON. This Thomas CARSON who married Anna PORTER, was brother to Susan or "Sukey".-- See below and Descendants of Henry Hines, Sr.:.31. See connection of third sibling Isabella CARSON and almost certain one of the mother in Note I below.

Revolutionary Tommie Thomas CARSON and Anna his wife raised a family in Butler County partly, and partly in Virginia. They lived near Little Muddy Church, where Thos. E. Puckett now lives. This Thomas CARSON father must not be confounded with another Thomas CARSON, Saddler Tommie, who was Uncle to my father, and brother to my grand mother PORTER.

The family of Thomas and Anna CARSON, as I am informed consisted of:

[A41] John P*orter* CARSON, b 28 Nov 1783; d 3 Dec 1854 BCoKY, who married 16/20 Oct or 1 Dec 1807 coz [A71] Mary Polly PORTER, John and Polly CARSON my aunt raised a family of five daughters

NO. 101-Owner, City of Louisville-A private Corporation, This land was donated in 1800 for a Cemetery by 6 Methodist laymen. Three were members of the Methodist church and three from Old Broadway Brook St. Methodist Church. Today, (1966) one-halfthe profits go into an endowment, and one-fourth to each of these Mthodist Churches. Here is the only crematory in the state of KEntucky, located where Broadway meets Baxter Ave., on spot east side of street. Approximately 3000 graves. It's name is Eastern Cemetery. The sexton of the Chapel tells me there are Rev. War Soldiers buried here but the dates, etc. are perhaps too dim. Only eldest and largest taken.

and down for any of the lots adjoining the Court House: this last lot is the town. (The boy laid out the town.)
In 1778, I went with a company of men to the Big Meadows over to Canada Creek. We hired (Archy) Gray some men who had settled on an Indian-grass hill. In the year 1781, I went down with 40 or 50 men, under Capt. Zimmerman, to supply the Stations in Cherry Valley. We passed on our way one Gregg, on Seneca, a branch of the North fork of the S. Br. anch. 2 or 3 days before we came along, the old man G.
was out hunting his horses, the Indians came to the house, and shot Gregg's wife, at the door, through the window. They then in and took & marked Gregg's little daughter, that was spelling for him. While this was doing, another daughter (Peter Gregg's wife.) and the only other person at home, came in, shut the door, and stood by the fire: as if stunned with af-fright. When she saw what was doing, she went out again, and ran over to Paul Kretzer's. Found. When old Mr.
went by the Indians - in the jam,
G. came to the house, from the back of the plantation, & saw the house, set on fire - and the Indians with the knockers out in the yard, (calling, as he halloaed out to us) them - for &c.
When they got there from Paul Kretzer's, the little girl was scalped, and crawling away from the fire. She died in consequence of the heat of the fire before she could be gotten to the house.
There were out 4 parts in the valley - Wilson's, Westfall's, Cassaday's - and the 1st I forget. 2 days before we got there, within a 1/2 m. of Westfall's - they had found the body of

In 1782, I went with a company of men to the Big Meadows to found Lilbon. We hired (under) Jay some men who had videcovered an idiang-glass hill.

(Tygarts Valley. 1781.)

In the year 1781, I went down with 40 or 50 men, under Capt. Livingston, to Supply the Stations in Tygarts Valley. He passed on our way, one Griggs, on Seneca, a branch of the North fork of the S. Br anch. 2 or 3 days before we came along. His old man G. was out hunting his horses, the indns: came to the house, and shot Griggs in arms, at the door, through the window. They came in and tomahawked Griggs little daughter, that was quilling for him. While this was doing, another daughter (Jesse Griggs wife.) and the only other person at home, came in, shut the door, and stood by the fire: as if stunned with af-fright. When she saw what was doing, she went out again, and ran over to Paul Kesterly's. Dead. When old Mr.
went by the indns: - in the jam,
G. came to the house, from the back of the plantation, & saw the house, set on fire - and the indns: with the tomahawks out in the yard, calling, as he (he hallooed out to us) them - for &c.
When they got there from Paul Kesterly's, the little girl was scalped, and crawling away from the fire. She died in consequence of the heat of the fire before she could be gotten to his house.

There were but 4 forts in the valley by the time Westfall's, Cassady's - and the 1st I forget. 2 days before, we got there, within a 1/2 m. of Westfall's - my company lay the body of Capt. Adam Stonemaker. Had on an Officer's coat and Maccaroni-hat. In the evening of the day before, they went to Wilson's fort, and were on their return, when the indns: shot him right in the small of the back: missing his friend, who got into the fort, and gave the alarm. His horse gave 3 jumps before he (Westfall's) fell off.
We crossed Cheat 9 times before we got to Wilson's & Westfall's. We went in March to Westfall's - staid about half the time at Cassady's, and returned back in August.
We were not interrupted any after we got to the Stations.

(Wilson's S.) (Westfall's S.) (Cassady's S.) (Capt. Adam (Stonemaker))

In March 1783 - 14 men of us, with 2 negro boys, started from (1783.)
the Monongahela, some of them surveyors; to lay pre-emptions in the indn: country. Congress had forbid such entries, and when we got to Louisville, Martin Elliott, & came up to Harrods burgh, by McAffee's station, alone, unhurt. We started on the 1st of March, and I got home on the 35th day of July. 5 of us came through the Wilderness together. About a days travel from Crab-orchard, we met an old man alone, on foot, his head whitened with age. He had left his family in Powell's valley, and was on his way to make provision for them in Ky. We gave him (provision) to carry him through. (a supply.)

(the old man on the Wilderness (road.))

On Cumberland, perhaps, about a m. from some fort was one (Bingamans.) Bingaman, his wife, her father, and a young man. The indns: got into the house, and one of them was endeavouring to tomahawk her father, an old man, that lay in the bed down stairs. Every time he went to strike, Mrs B. would catch his arm, so that he couldn't effect his purpose; till at last B. - broke him a blow, which killed him, with his shoe-hammer. The indns: then had him all up on their shoulders, Sometimes. He scuffled and fought with them until he had killed 7. The young man staid up during all the time of the fight. Mrs Bingaman was shot through about the nipple of the right breast, and out on the same side of the back. Manona had a silk handkerchief drawn through

TYGRET FAMILY

Jan. 10, 1978

1760+1787- A John Taggart collected for selling rum to U.S. (Philadelphia)

In the 1790 Federal Census (Virginia's is a tax list) I find;

Hampshire County, Va. 1790
Francis Tygart-3 white souls
1 dwelling
2 other bldgs

Salisbury District- Rowan County, North Carolina-1790
John Tygart-2 free white males 16 yrs. & upward
4 free white males under 16 yrs.
6 free white females

1800 Kentucky Census (also a tax list) Warren County

Sam'l Tygert-(with two young sons, probably John, who married Eleanor Hays & our James)
Isabella Tigert

1840 Warren County, Kentucky (see charts)
James Tighet
Jno Tigret
?bby Tigret (Illegible, probably Isabella)

1850 Warren County, Kentucky (see charts)
This is where, we pick up our Samuel T. Tiger

In researching my own line, the Flanagans of Va., I stumbled on these records;

Washington County, Va. marriage of John Tygart & Isabella Trimble
m 28 Jan 1800 by Edward Crawford

James Tygart & Jean Trimble
m 1 Nov 1796 by Edward Crawford
Two brothers married two sisters.

It would appear that we have a father and 3 sons (one dying before 1810 Census) or 4 brothers.

In 1830 Census, Warren County, Ky. Sam'l Tygert is listed and next door is William Hays who is listed later, (on a marriage bond) as the Guardian of James Tygret or probably all three of the Tygret Children.

In 1840 Census, Warren County, Ky., James & John Tigrit are listed. James with his first born Samuel T., as a 1 year old. _____bby(?) Tigret is listed, but it was impossible to read. If it is Isabella,(she didn't die until 1846), the age for her is not right.(Ages on census records vary a great deal-we have no way of knowing just who gave the census enumerator the info.)

The rest of the census charts, I believe, are self-explanatory. In the brackets are things that I have written in... sometimes a maiden name, a marriage date or something.

With the profusion of James, Johns and Samuels...trying to replace and place them in the right family etc. has been very trying to say the least!!

I'm hoping to find the immigrant and locate just exactly where he came from and then I'm really not interested in going any further. Some day, perhaps I'll get to spend some time in Bowling Green, Kentucky.

March 14, 1808
No date

Debts to be paid by my executors, my beloved wife Jean Tigert and my other executor to be hereinafter named. After rearing my children that they may have a reasonable education so far as opportunity may serve, and that my wife and other executor may keep as much of the stock and the farm for that purpose, together with all the household furnishings and farming utensils during her widowhood. Should she marry, I leave her one third of the plantation during her natural life and one third of the stock and household furniture, then to return to the use of my sons, namely John and William to be equally divided betwixt them, reserving this ..... to my daughter Hannah Tigert, that my two sons John and William pay her 1/5 of the value of the land should they both live. If not then my daughter Hannah to have one third, and in case of their refusal to comply, then all the stock and household furniture remaining at the death of my wife be equally divided between my three children, namely: John, William and Hannah. Executors, beloved wife Jean Tigert and my brother John Tigert. Witt: James Hall, Sr., John Hammon, James Furgison.

Dear Vivian,

First I would like to know why you are asking? Bob was my cousin and a good man. His accidental death was a tragic event in our community. I will tell you he was the Chief of the Forest Township Fire Department and a Vietnam Veteran. Please understand my reluctance to say more until I know why.

Best wishes,

COURT OF APPEALS
DEED BOOKS
A-G
Volume I

INTRODUCTION

In March, 1783, Kentucky was formed into one district as a part of Virginia, and a District Court was established, known as the Supreme Court for the District of Kentucky, Commonwealth of Virginia. On July 26, 1790, the Ninth Convention assembled and accepted the terms of Virginia for Kentucky becoming a separate state, with June 1, 1792 designated as the date this would become effective, and on February 4, 1791, the Congress of the United States agreed to admit Kentucky as a state; the first contitution of Kentucky was drafted April 3, 1792.

Under the constitution, it was directed that the judicial powers of the Commonwealth of Kentucky were to be vested in a Supreme Court, known as the Kentucky Court of Appeals. This court had both appellate jurisdiction, and jurisdiction as a court of record.

As a court of record, Deed Books were commenced in 1796, the first twenty-six record books designated as Book "A" through "Book Z", with recording dates from 1796 to 1835. However, throughout the period of these record books, many deeds and other documents were recorded that had earlier dates (as early as 1775), each pertaining in some way to Kentucky. Here will be found hundreds of documents pertaining to residents of other states (particularly Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Louisiana, and New Jersey) and even some originating in foreign countries. The first three Books deal almost entirely with matters prior to 1796, and there are many deeds and documents in later Books which are of early date. Book "J", for example, although a small Book in comparison, contains all Wills and Inventories for the period 1780-88.

Here are found Deeds (in which either the grantor, or grantee, or both, were residents of another state, or for land which was in Kentucky), Wills, Powers-of-Attorney, most with very detailed accounts of the matter being recorded. These books are a wealth of information for genealogists and researchers. It is interesting to note that among those named either as principals or witnesses were Thomas Jefferson, George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, and Aaron Burr, as well as the early Governors of Kentucky, and others both rich and poor. These Books are unfamiliar to most genealogical researchers, yet here will be found evidences of the first land ownership of many persons, and details of their families.

This series of four volumes contains lengthy and complete abstracts of (1) the first twenty-six records books known as the Kentucky Court of Appeals Deed Books, and (2) Books "A", "B", and "B2" of the Supreme Court (of the District of Ky for 1783-1789.

Deed Bk Book E 1796-1803

p.31, Indenture, November 18, 1799, William Cranmer Ellis of Cecil County, Maryland, Gent., to Engelhard Yeiser of Baltimore City and County, Maryland, merchant, for 5 shillings, all the right, title and interest in and to 92,000 acres of land in Fayette County, Kentucky on Licking River, surveyed for Richard Ellis July 14, 1785. Witnessed by Robert Long and Robert Allin. Recorded Baltimore County, Maryland, December 1, 1799, and June 27, 1800 by the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

p.32, Indenture, January 4, 1800, Thomas Bale Randall of the city and county of Baltimore, Maryland, attorney at law, to John Bordley of Maryland, Gent. Whereas by patent dated December 23, 1796, Kentucky granted to a certain James Colquhoun, assignee of John Fox, a certain tract of land containing 14,500 acres by surveyy made December 5, 1795, being in Madison County, Kentucky on both sides of the Kentucky River, beginning on the river bank on the upper side of Rockhouse fork at the mouth, thence north. And whereas Kentucky did grant another tract by patent the same date to James Colquhoun, being 711 acres surveyed December 8, 1795, in Madison County on the Kentucky River, beginning on the east side of the said river, on the lower side of a branch, thence north. Also a tract of 1,000 acres surveyed December 2, 1795 in Madison County on the waters of the Kentucky River, beginning at the mouth of Rockhouse Fork on the upper side of the fork, thence north. And whereas the said James Colquhoun did by deed dated May 8, 1799, sell the said tracts to Thomas Bale Randall, now this Indenture witnesses that Thomas Bale Randall, for 1,000 Pounds, conveys the same lands. Witnessed by Larkin Randall and John Tiggett. Recorded Baltimore County, Maryland on January 4, 1800, and by the Kentucky Court of Appeals June 27, 1800.

p.36, Indenture, November 22, 1798, Jordan Flournoy of Powhatan County, Virginia, by John Fore, his attorney in fact, and Samuel Harris and the aforesaid John Fore of Chesterfield County, Virginia, to Thomas Sthreshley of Fayette County, Kentucky and William Sthreshley of Woodford County, Kentucky, for 200 Pounds, a tract of land in Christian County, Kentucky, beginning on the bank of the Ohio River at the upper corner of George F. Norton's survey, thence north up the river, containing by survey dated May 2, 1785, 666 2/3 acres, said tract being patented July 5, 1786. Witnessed by Edwin Upshaw, William L. Poindexter, George Francisco, and Thomas Davis. Recorded Kentucky Court of Appeals on August 7, 1799.

structed for the conveyance of the canoes and the heavy supplies, and it was pulled by the men over an almost impassable route. Two weeks' time was consumed in this arduous passage of eighteen miles. Crossing from the Missouri to the Columbia watershed was accomplished with horses which they secured from the Shoshone Indians. Boats had to be used again in the descent of the Columbia, and three or four times the party had to construct its own boats, either skin-covered or dugout canoes.

The scarcity of food was perhaps the greatest handicap. Supplies of "parch meal," cornmeal, hulled corn, flour, biscuit, port, coffee, beans, peas, lard, seven barrels of salt and maple sugar made at the Wood River camp were carried at the start. In the lower Missouri country game, particularly fowl and deer, could be secured, and corn and dried squash were purchased from the Indians. In the upper Missouri country buffalo gave a welcome source of nutritious food, but in the mountain region and the Columbia valley great hardships and privation occurred. Indians of these regions subsisted largely on roots, but this diet sickened the whites. Elk was found in limited amount, but the members of the party considered horse flesh and dog more palatable as well as more nourishing.

The accomplishments of the expedition were of inestimable value. The charts and maps, the information concerning the flora and especially the fauna were the most obvious contributions. The dreary months spent at the mouth of the Columbia were busy ones for the leaders, for careful studies were made of the Indians in the neighborhood. The detailed description by Lewis of the Great Falls country and the charts made by Clark are still authoritative data for that area.

On the return of the expedition each member received a soldier's pay for the time of his absence, and a 300-acre tract of land. The officers received double pay. Clark was granted 1000 acres of land and Lewis 1500 acres. Lewis was appointed governor of the Louisiana Territory, but his career was cut short by a violent death in 1807. Clark was appointed to the same position in 1813 and held the post until Missouri was organized as a state. Clark was also appointed superintendent of Indian affairs in St. Louis in 1822 and continued to hold the position until his death. A commentator has said, "Probably no official of the government ever made his personal influence more widely felt. . . . His word became Indian law from the Mississippi to the Pacific."

An account of the Lewis and Clark expedition would be incomplete without mention of Sacajawea. While wintering at Camp Mandan a French-Canadian voyageur and trapper, Charbonneau, and his Indian wife, Sacajawea, were added to the party. The Indian woman had been captured several years before by a hostile tribe and carried far from her early home in the Rocky Mountains. Charbonneau was of no particular value as a guide or an interpreter, but Sacajawea rendered a definite aid in the difficult Rocky Mountain section of the trip. After crossing the divide the party found themselves, late in August, 3000 miles from St. Louis and out of provisions. With some effort they contacted the local Indian group, the Shoshones, and the leader of the tribe proved to be the brother of Sacajawea. The white men were kindly received, fed, and equipped for the next stage of their journey with thirty-two pack horses and a guide.

April 1951

The books I got at the Library had no mention of Tygarts in Edgefield Co.S.Car.That does not mean they were'nt there-just not mentioned in this book.I had a letter from a man in Conn.who was raised at Mingo Co.W.Va.who gave me his mother's name at Roanoke,Va.I have written to her asking for any information she might have.I have also written a woman at S.C.asking her for information on the Smith's.I thought possibly if I could find out who John &Eliz.Smith-parents of Jemima & Caroline who married William&Elihu(in S.C.)-this might lead me back to the parents of William & Elihu-which SHOULD get me back to John,David or etcThere has GOT to be some record of them-thereas they married there,their children were born there and they with the kids, Silas-my husband's grandfather-the widow Smith and her unmarried children ALL moved from S.C.to Berrien CO.Ga.Somewhere there has got to be some record of Elihu(William's brother)for his(Civil)war record as he is buried in Ohio-prisoner of war but I cannot find out how to find it.In "our"family they keep naming kids,Wm.Rob't,Caroling,Rebcca,Silas,Anne etc.one neice even named HER daughter Anne Tygart Broadway.You would faint at some of the OLD names I have run acroos-the worst one to me is SOPHRONIA and there were several of those.Possibly that name you are looking for is Tabitha.They also named kids things and wrote down something else(ie)America Peeples Tygart who was called & buried as Mackie-on my husband's birth certificate the Co. clerk spelled his father(Wyna)name WINER.I am certain that is the reason @ all the variations.I have copied you off several things,of no special importance, except that you might enjoy them and they might lead you to other ideas.Unfortunately when I was living at Atlanta I was too busy to look up anything.Now that I have time I don't have the facilities-it gets frustrating

My husband-the son of Carrie&Silas' 12th child-grew up with his(alive)grandparents(B.1851)who died(C-1928/S.1933)but was never interested in"old tales".

The reason this Southwest Point-thing-interests me so much is I feel sure the"tygarts"were there-all the names involved are married into the Tygart family.Here are various notes:Tax Notice:John Tygert(soldier in Old Va.Reg't)and Joshua Perkins-Roan CO.N.C.@S.Fork of the Broad River(Tyger's Shoals)1773-1780 John George Tyger(Dec.14,1772)& "a"Major Lea-Claiborn Co.Tenn.J.G.T.married-1.Eliz.Herndon2.Sally Farley:CHILDREN:Abner,Wm.John &Sarah LEA/1790 Census-JAmes Tagert:1 slave,unmarried,no children/Simeon Tygar:Revolutionary War @ Warrenton Co.N.C/List of Public Official-Mecklenberg Co.N.C.Capt.James Tygert 1782-1785/John D.Tagart-Louisville,Ky.born:Ballymony,Co.Antrim,Ireland son of James Taggart & Mary Douds/Member Scotch/Irish Assn.Wm.Taggart M.D.Wooster,OH/ James Taggart/Tigert-Cabarrus Co,N.Y.(from McLenberg)1792/Wm.Byrd owned the Great Dismal Swamp-and in 1828 they were ALL surveying it/From Knox CO.Tenn. marriage records-Wm.Blount Gov.of Territory ~~xxxxx~~ of U.S.south of Ohio married Amos Byrd/Anne Gillespie-Jan.21,1794 &Stephen Byrd/Polly Gillespie,April1,1794 Caroline Rebecca(Byrd)married Silas T.Tygart(born at S.C.)1851 at Berrien Co.1871-THAT is my husband's grandparents.and the whole family is riddled with Byrd's Leas,Smith's,Peeples'-all marrying sisters etc.-Mackie&S.T.,Jr.were cousins. (Both mothers were Byrds) In Nasville,Ga.were Reb was born-raised you would have been hard pressed to find somebody NOT intermarried into/from the Tygart family as at one time they owned most all of what is now 2 counties.How I wish I knew why Elihu left a wife and young child-so late in life-to go to the Civil War(and be killed-UGH)

TURNER, JOSEPH ALEXANDER 1815-1885 IRWIN

Joseph A. Turner was born 1815, in Laurens County, a son of Alexander Turner. He was married in Laurens County March 8, 1835, to Sarah Tucker, born 1829 there, daughter of Elisha Tucker (Vol.IV). They had eight children:

1. Marinza	b. 1837, m. Hezekiah Hunter, Oct. 23, 1859.
2. Dennis W.	b. 1839, m. Juda Ann Byrd, Jan. 4, 1869.
3. Elias E.	b. 1841, never m.
4. Sarah M.	b. 1843, m. Elijah Pickren, Oct. 18, 1865.
5. Zilpha	b. 1847, m. William Turner (cousin), Aug. 23, 1865.
6. Joseph A. Jr.	b. 1849, m. Mary Floyd, Oct. 24, 1876.
7. John J.	b. 1853, m. Sarah C. Goff, Dec. 20, 1876.
8. Lucinda	b. 1857, m. Francis W. Key, Feb. 8, 1877.

Soon after the birth of the last child above, Mrs. Sarah Turner died, and Mr. Turner then married Mrs. Rachel Johnson, the widowed daughter of John Pickren (Vol.IV); she had first married William M. Johnson, Aug. 23, 1849, but had no issue by him. Born to Joseph A. and Rachel Turner were the following children:

9. Allison J.	b. 1863, m. Alice Hogan.
10. Arnold	b. 1865, m. Winnifred Dunn.
11. Sena	b. 1868, m. M. A. Kinard (son of James D.).
12. Nancy	b. 1870, m. J. W. Paulk.
13. Ruth	b. 1872, m. E. G. M. Fletcher.
14. Josie Neal	b. 1874, m. Smith Statum.
15. Mary	b. 1876, m. John McDuffie.

Joseph A. Turner in early life was one of the state surveyors who surveyed the land into lots in Northwest Georgia. He moved to Irwin County about 1840, and lived in the 3rd land district where he owned land and farmed. He served as Justice of Peace in the 901st district, Irwin County, 1841-1848 and again 1851-1865. His death occurred about 1885.

TURNER, WILLIAM M. 1824-1864 TIFT

William M. Turner was born in Tattnall County, a son of James Turner and wife Anna. He was brought in his childhood by his parents to Irwin County when they moved there, and grew up there. He married Mary Hall, born 1824, S. C., a daughter of Jacob Hall of Irwin. They had the following children:

1. Polly Ann	b. 1850, m. Dempsey R. Willis, Dec. 26, 1867.
2. Caroline	b. 1852, m. J. B. Taylor.

3. Sarah Ann	b. 1853, m. Wm. S. Bussey, Nov. 5, 1873.
4. Ardelia M.	b. 1854, m. William H. Coursey.
5. Elvira B.	b. 1855, m. I. H. Elliott, Apr. 27, 1878.
6. William Jackson	b. 1857, prob. died single.
7. James Berry	b. 1860, m. (unknown).
8. Nathan L.	b. 1862, m. (unknown).
9. Ella	b. 1863, m. (unknown).

Soon after marriage Wm. M. Turner acquired lots of land 317 and 328 in the 6th district of Irwin County, and he lived on lot 328. He was cut into Berrien out of Irwin in 1856 when Berrien was formed out of Lowndes and Irwin counties. He enlisted in Co. "E", 49th Georgia Infantry Regiment, a Wilcox county company, March 4, 1862, and died in Confederate hospital in 1864 (date and place not shown by company roll.)

The Wm. M. Turner estate was administered by his father. At the May Term, 1866, of Berrien Superior Court, a dowry was granted the widow out of the estate lands, and she was given the homeplace portion consisting of 170 acres of lot 328. On Dec. 30, 1879, she and the children (who were all of age) deeded this property to her son-in-law and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott (deed book "F", p.210, Berrien Co.). The deed was signed by her and W. H. Coursey and wife Ardelia, W. S. Bussey and wife Sarah Ann, Miss Ella Turner, D. R. Willis and wife Polly, J. B. Taylor and wife Carrie, J. B. Turner and Nathan L. Turner.

TURNER, JOSEPH ALEXANDER 1818-1885 IRWIN

Joseph A. Turner was born 1818, in Laurens County, a son of Alexander Turner. He was married in Laurens County March 4, 1838, to Sarah Tucker, born 1820 there, daughter of Elisha Tucker (Vol.IV). They had eight children:

1. Martha — b. 1837, m. Beverley Hunter, Oct 22, 1855.
2. Benona W. — b. 1839, m. Julia Ann Byrd, Jan 4, 1860.
3. Elias K. — b. 1841, never m.
4. Sarah M. — b. 1843, m. Elijah Pearce, Oct 14, 1863.
5. Alpha — b. 1847, m. William Turner (cousin), Aug 22, 1865.
6. Joseph A. Jr. — b. 1849, m. Mary Floyd, Oct 24, 1876.
7. John L. — b. 1852, m. Sarah D. Dent, Dec 20, 1876.
8. Lucinda — b. 1854, m. Francis W. Kelly, Feb 6, 1871.

Soon after the birth of the last child above, Mrs. Sarah Turner died, and Mr. Turner then married Mrs. Rachel Johnson, (he widowed daughter of John Pelkton (Vol.IV); she had first married William M. Johnson, Aug. 29, 1843, but had no issue by him. Born to Joseph A. and Rachel Turner were the following children:

9. Allison L. — b. 1863, m. Alice Hogan.
10. Arnold — b. 1865, m. Winnifred Dunn.
11. Nona — b. 1868, m. M. A. Kinard (son of James D.).
12. Nancy — b. 1870, m. J. W. Faulk.
13. Ruth — b. 1872, m. E. C. M. Fletcher.
14. Josie Neal — b. 1874, m. Smith Statum.
15. Mary — b. 1878, m. John McDuffie.

Joseph A. Turner in early life was one of the state surveyors who surveyed the land into lots in Northwest Georgia. He moved to Irwin County about 1840, and lived in the 3rd land district where he owned land and farmed. He served as Justice of Peace in the 301st district, Irwin County, 1841-1848 and again 1851-1855. His death occurred about 1885.

4. Amelia M. — b. 1846, m. William H. Conway.
5. Louisa D. — b. 1848, m. A. H. Elliott, Apr. 27, 1870.
6. William Jackson — b. 1850, never married.
7. James Berry — b. 1852, m. (unknown).
8. Nathan L. — b. 1854, m. (unknown).
9. Ella — b. 1857, m. (unknown).

Soon after marriage Wm. M. Turner acquired lots of land 317 and 332 in the 8th district of Irwin County, and he lived on lot 332. He was cut into Berrien out of Irwin in 1856 when Berrien was formed out of Lowndes and Irwin counties. He enlisted in Co. 4. Alice — ? — b. 1857, m. W. D. Nesmith, Nov. 8, 1883.

Elihu Tygart and family and his brother, William Tygart and family, and their wives' widowed mother (they having married sisters), and her two single daughters and son, all moved to present Berrien County. Elihu Tygart bought a farm three miles south of the present town of Alapaha, on the old Coffee Road, and made his home there.

Mr. Tygart enlisted in 1861 as a private in Co. "G", 29th Georgia Infantry Regiment, C. S. Army, and was captured at or near Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 16, 1864. The company rolls show that after being captured he was kept in a Federal military prison at Louisville, Ky., two weeks, then sent to Camp Chase, Ohio, Jan. 4, 1865. Five days later he died of pneumonia, Jan. 9, 1865, and was buried there. The widow was granted a dower out of the estate, by Berrien Superior Court, Nov. Term, 1866.

TYGART, WILLIAM 1813-1873 BERRIEN

William Tygart was born in Newberry District, S. C., in 1813. He married Jemima Smith, born 1818 in Newberry District, daughter of John and Elizabeth Smith. To them were born three children, viz:

1816

1. John L.	b. 1848, died in his youth, single.
2. Silas	b. 1851, m. Caroline Byrd, June 2, 1872, dau. of Nathan W.
3. Ada	b. 1853, m. Martin J. Griner.

In 1852, William Tygart and family and his brother Elihu and family and their wives' widowed mother and two sisters and a brother, all moved to present Berrien County. Two years later William Tygart bought a farm from William Gaskins 1½ miles north of the present town of Nashville, and located there, and lived there until he died Jan. 22, 1873. His widow died there Nov. 27, 1907. They were buried in the Peeples Cemetery in the suburbs of Nashville.

VALENTINE, DARLEY 1810-1850 ECHOLS

Darley Valentine was born in Barnwell District, S. C., 1810, a son of John Valentine. He came to Lowndes County a young single man in company with Jacob Hughes and other families who came from the same section of Barnwell, and after coming to Georgia he married Lucretia Hughes, born 1814, daughter of Jacob Hughes (Vol.I). They had four sons and no daughters, viz:

1. John	b. 1840, died single in C.S. Army.
2. Jacob	b. 1841, died in his youth.
3. Henry J.	b. 1843, m. Elizabeth Zeigler, dau. of John D.
4. Lewis	b. 1845, m. (unknown).

After marriage Darley Valentine settled in the section of Lowndes county lying east of the Alapaha River, which was the portion cut into Clinch county in its formation in 1850. He died there January 25, 1850, and was buried at Wayfare Church. Mrs. Valentine died 1888, and also buried there.

Mr. and Mrs. Valentine were members of Union Primitive Baptist Church. He united with the church Dec. 8, 1838, by letter from Bethsaida Church in Barnwell District, S. C. His wife just before her marriage, and her parents and her brother, William, all united with Union Church at the same time by letter from the same Bethsaida Church. Shortly after, Darley Valentine and Lucretia Hughes were married. The church records are silent as to how their membership was terminated, whether by death or transfer or otherwise. They joined at the "arm" of Union Church at Mathis meeting House which later became Wayfare Church.

The son, John Valentine, enlisted Sept. 26, 1863, as a private in Co. "I", 12th Georgia Regiment, C.S.A. The company roll shows last entry anent him, as being present at roll call, Dec. 31, 1863; but survivors of the war said that he died in 1864 in the service.

VARNADOE, SAMUEL M. 1816-1870 LOWNDES

Samuel McWhir Varnadoe was born in Liberty County, Aug 3, 1816, a son of Nathaniel and Ann Jones Varnadoe. He married Dec. 13, 1837, Caroline Bradwell Law, born Jan. 25, 1815, daughter of Samuel S. Law, prominent Liberty county planter. They had the following children:

1. Ellen Montgomery	b. Sept. 12, 1838, died Nov. 17, 1840.
2. Matilda Law	b. Oct. 13, 1840, m. Aaron Smith, Aug. 27, 1869.

but his sons, whom he advised regarding the fertile lands of the South Branch of the Potomac, were not to be the first white men to establish a home in what is now West Virginia.

While there is evidence that settlers were near the site of present Shepherdstown as early as 1719, Morgan ap Morgan is credited with being the first white man to build a permanent home in this State. Having received Virginia patents to 1,000 acres of land in western Virginia, he took possession in 1726–7, building a log cabin in the vicinity of Bunker Hill, on Mill Creek, in what is now Berkeley County. However he does not seem to have taken up permanent residence there, with his family, until 1730. Morgan (born 1688), a native of Wales, came as a young man to Penn's province, settling in the Lower counties (Delaware) at Christiana as a merchant. In 1727 he was a magistrate of New Castle County, Delaware, and seven years later a 'Gentleman Justice' of Orange County, Virginia.

The stubbornness of two men in a lawsuit contributed more to the westward movement than Spotswood's advertising. Joist Hite and 15 other families cut their way through the wilderness from York, Pennsylvania, in 1732 and, crossing the Potomac two miles above Harpers Ferry, proceeded to the vicinity of Winchester. Hite became involved in a lawsuit with Lord Fairfax (1736), which rendered the validity of land titles in the lower Shenandoah Valley so doubtful that many families moved farther west into the New, Greenbrier, and Kanawha Valleys. The suit was settled after both men were dead.

Threatened with confinement to a thin strip along the Atlantic Coast, the English attempted to open the territory to the west, to halt encroachment on the land which the French claimed all the way to the Mississippi. In 1722 the Iroquois had relinquished their claims to the lands between the Alleghenies and the Blue Ridge, and settlement was thus made safer.

It is known that frugal, homeseeking Germans, driven from Pennsylvania by dissension with William Penn's heirs, followed the valleys down into the Eastern Panhandle after 1730; one of their settlements grew into a village called Mecklenburg—later Shepherdstown. In 1735 the first settlement in the South Branch Valley started in Hampshire County, and by 1748 the population of the valley totaled 200.

Pendleton County's first settlers located about a mile below the site of Brandywine in 1745. Others came in 1747, and six years later newcomers of Dutch, German, Scotch, Irish, and English descent had swelled the region's population to 200, equally divided between the Upper Tract and the South Branch. With the growth of the latter region, it became evident that a local seat of government was needed. Hampshire County, the oldest county in West Virginia, was formed from parts of Frederick and Augusta Counties in 1753. The first presiding justice, Thomas Bryan Martin, a nephew of Lord Fairfax, began his court at Romney. In 1762 the Virginia General Assembly passed an act incorporating several towns, among them Romney and Mecklenburg, in what is now West Virginia.

Direct incentive for the venturing of settlers into the New River region was possibly the glowing accounts Christopher Gist gave of the country after he returned from his Ohio exploring trip in 1750. Those who had been fretting in the settlements of the Shenandoah crossed the mountains into the Greenbrier and New River Valleys.

Perhaps the first recorded settlement west of the Alleghenies was made by two New Englanders, Jacob Marlin and Stephen Sewell, in Pocahontas County in 1749. The two had a difference of opinion over religion and Sewell went to live in a near-by tree, although it is said they remained good friends. They were found there in 1751 by General Andrew Lewis, agent of the Greenbrier Land Company, which had obtained a grant of land to be sold for settlement.

In 1753 Andrew Culbertson settled on Crumps Bottom in what is now Summers County. Settlers continued to pour into the region. They came from the north by way of the Shenandoah and the South Branch of the Potomac, and from the coast by way of the James River.

In 1747–8 young George Washington stopped at 'ye famed Warm Springs at Bath' (Berkeley Springs). In 1756 Lord Fairfax gave to Virginia the land and springs at Bath so that 'these healing waters might be forever free to the publick, for the welfare of suffering humanity' (see Berkeley Springs).

Among the first white settlements made in the New River Valley was Draper's Meadows, founded by the Draper and Ingles families in 1748, near what is now Blacksburg, Montgomery County, Virginia.

On Sunday, July 8, 1755, this settlement was surprised by a band of marauding Shawnee from beyond the Ohio and most of the settlers were killed or captured. William Ingles was in the woods near by at the time and managed to make his escape, but his wife, Mary Ingles, was captured. She was carried away by the raiders, who moved down to Bluestone, up the Bluestone River to the head of Paint Creek, thence to Campbells Creek and across the Ohio. On this journey Mary Ingles was forced to make salt for her Indian captors, the first made by a families came to the South Branch and made the first permanent settlement in what is now Hampshire County, West Virginia. By 1747, pioneers had crept up the South Branch into present Pendleton County, West Virginia, where settlements were made.

Contrary to accepted traditions the Van Metre, or Van Meter, brothers, John and Isaac, were not among the very first settlers of present West Virginia. It was not until 1744 that Isaac established himself permanently at Old Fields, an Indian village near present Moorefield, where he was visited by George Washington four years later, and killed in 1757 by Indians. About the same time, probably a little earlier, "John Van Metre first of Berkeley" made a permanent settlement in that county, and Henry Van Meter, eldest son of Isaac of Old Fields, settled on South Branch River in present Hardy County, near the Trough, where he, too, was visited by Washington in 1748.

Though the Scotch-Irish lived among the Germans, many of them made settlements farther up the Valley, in what are now Augusta and Rockbridge counties, Virginia.[11] In 1732, John Lewis, a pioneer among these adventurers, settled near the present site of Staunton. Four years later, Benjamin Borden secured from Governor Gooch a grant of five hundred thousand acres in the same region on condition that he settle one hundred families on it in ten years. To comply with this condition, Borden brought many immigrants to Virginia, among them being the Pattons, McDowells, Telfords, Whitleys, Alexanders, Moores, Archers, Stuarts, and Mulhollons.

Of those going west from this central settlement, the Harman, Ingles, and Draper families were pioneers. In 1748, they made a settlement in Drapers Meadows, near the present site of Blacksburg, Virginia, which was destroyed by Shawnees in 1755. The inhabitants were either murdered or carried into captivity.

The following year, 1749, the first recorded settlement west of the Alleghenies in what is now West Virginia was made near the present site of Marlinton by Jacob Marlin and Stephen Sewell. The best of friends in other respects, they could not agree on the subject of religion and, on that account, are said to have found it desirable "to live apart." Sewell took up his abode in a hollow sycamore tree that stood near their cabin. Here they were found in 1751 by Andrew Lewis, who had entered the region on a surveying expedition for the Greenbrier Company. Two years later, Andrew Culbertson made a settlement still farther west on Crumps Bottom, in Summers County, West Virginia. There were already several families living along streams flowing into Greenbrier River.

About the same time, settlers began to push over the Alleghenies from the South Branch and the Potomac valleys. Among them were Robert Files and David Tygart, who, in 1753, built cabins within three miles of each other near the present town of Beverly, West Virginia. The first mentioned gave his name to Files Creek, the second to Tygart River. As these settlements were in exposed positions on or near the Seneca Trail, they did not become permanent. Files was murdered by Indians, but Tygart made his escape into the South Branch Valley.

A year later, the Eckarly brothers established themselves in Dunkard Bottom, in present Preston County, but they too were discovered by the ever-vigilant savage. Two were killed, and the third escaped only because of his absence from home when his cabin was attacked.

NEW COUNTIES

The frontier advance in Virginia called for accommodations in the form of local government. Land claims were to be proved and established; taxes were to be collected; and the need for an adequate and organized defense was ever present. In 1734, "Orange County" was created. It included all the lands of Virginia west of the Blue Ridge Mountains to the "uttermost limits" which embraced all of what is now West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and a large part of Virginia.

Four years later, that part of Orange County west of the Blue Ridge was set apart and divided into the "District of Augusta" and the "District of Frederick," each of which was to become a county equal in power with the other counties of Virginia, when its population justified the appointment of justices of the peace and other officers. In keeping with this arrangement, "Frederick County" was created in 1743, with its seat of government at Winchester; and, two years later, Augusta became a county, with Staunton as its seat of government and, like Frederick, with a definite and restricted boundary.[12]

This left a large unorganized area, a sort of Indian country, which in time came to be called the "District of West Augusta." Before ten years had elapsed, however, it became necessary to reduce this district. In 1754, a new county, Hampshire, was created, which included most of the settlements on the South Branch River. No other counties were formed from the District of West Augusta until 1776, when it was further divided in a manner and for reasons to be noted later.

Occupying a rolling 60-acre campus of native woodland and landscaped grounds in the northeastern part of town, once the estates of Senator Davis and Senator Elkins, is DAVIS AND ELKINS COLLEGE, a Presbyterian coeducational institution, with an enrollment of 450 students, granting degrees of bachelor of arts and of science. HALLIHURST, formerly the Elkins home, a women's dormitory, is a gray frame structure designed like an English castle; it stands on the crest of a lofty ridge and overlooks the surrounding countryside, with Rich Mountain (R) and Cheat Mountain (L). The social center of college life, the mansion has large comfortable rooms and a splendid dining service. LIBERAL ARTS HALL, a large brick structure, contains the library, classrooms, and the offices of the president, treasurer, and registrar. The library on the second floor has a large and well-lighted reading room adjoining the stacks, which contain 17,500 volumes. SCIENCE HALL, of stone and brick, houses laboratories and the Music Department and has an auditorium seating 500. The KELLY OBSERVATORY, built in the spring of 1928 by the Chi Beta Phi Scientific Fraternity of the College, occupies the crest of a hill adjoining the campus. Walls 8 feet high support a revolving dome 5 feet high, with a 3-foot aperture. The telescope is of the Newtonian reflecting type, with a focal length of 90 inches and a 10-inch mirror, and is mounted on a 5-foot pedestal with equatorial mounting; it is clock-driven.

GRACELAND, a pink sandstone structure of Norman design, occupies a spacious maple-shaded lawn adjoining the north edge of the campus; it was erected in 1892 by Senator Davis and named for his daughter, Grace.

The front campus, a grassy carpet of 10 acres overlooking Elkins, is the scene of the Mountain State Forest Festival held annually during the first week of October, which attracts thousands of visitors. The principal events are the crowning of Queen Silvia, the reception of 'forest princesses' representing the congressional districts of the State, the Queen's Ball, and an elaborate parade of floats. The program includes contests in tilting at rings on horseback, in wood-chopping, and in marksmanship with muzzle-loading rifles by mountaineers 60 years of age or over.

Elkins is at the junction with US 33 (see Tour 7a).

Section b. ELKINS to LEWISBURG, 107 m. US 219.

US 219 ascends gradually along the course of the Tygarts Valley past the sites of the first settlements in this wooded and mountainous region. It parallels the western boundary of the Monongahela National Forest for a short distance and then enters the forest. Passing over mountainous terrain, it descends to the limestone hills and fertile meadows of the lower Greenbrier Valley, the 'country of the Big Levels.' On the large stock farms here the leisurely life and traditions the strenuous struggle for existence on the small rough farms that appear to hang on the mountain sides along other parts of the route.

South of ELKINS, 0 m., US 250 (see Tour 22a) is united with US 219 for 17.5 miles.

HARPER FIELD (R), 2 m., is the Elkins municipal airport, a regular stop for American Airlines planes.

A monument (R) indicates the approximate SITE OF WILSON'S FORT, erected in 1774 by Captain Benjamin Wilson, who accompanied Braddock on his disastrous campaign against the French and Indians; after the Revolution, Wilson was given command of all military forces in northwestern Virginia. A cornerstone of the vanished fort tops the monument.

BEVERLY, 5.6 m. (1,973 alt., 431 pop.), the oldest town in Tygarts Valley, was settled by Robert Files and his family in 1753. A few months after the family's arrival, the Indians massacred all but one boy, who escaped to Virginia with relatives from the neighboring settlement. After the massacre no settlement was attempted until 1774, when six Westfall brothers constructed a fort at the mouth of Files Creek.

Beverly wears the garment of its past with dignity. Houses built in the last decade of the eighteenth century stand side by side with modern structures along its shady streets. Townfolk point with pride to the old white houses, many of which hide original log structures of pioneer days under a shell of frame siding. Deeply recessed windows indicate the thickness of the walls in the old log buildings.

In the public square a boulder brought from the Rich Mountain Battlefield (see below) bears a bronze plaque listing Beverly's historic sites and presenting a brief summary of the Battle of Rich Mountain. On a knoll in MOUNT ISER CEMETERY stands a slender shaft erected by the United Daughters of the Confederacy in memory of the Confederate dead buried here under the grassy remains of Union trenches.

Right from Beverly on an unimproved road, once part of the Staunton-Parkersburg Turnpike, now known as the Crozet Memorial Road, named in honor of Colonel Claudius Crozet, who as chief engineer of Virginia directed its construction (1824–47) and also that of the Northwestern Turnpike, now US 50. An officer under Napoleon, Crozet fled to America after the emperor's downfall, taught in the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, and was one of the founders of the Virginia Military Institute.

The Tygarts Valley River is spanned by a COVERED BRIDGE, 0.1 m., one of many built by Lemuel Chenoweth of Beverly. The present bridge was built in 1873 to replace an earlier Chenoweth structure burned during the War between the States. Although records in Richmond credit Lewis Wernwag with having designed the wooden-arch type of covered bridge, a story current in West Virginia relates that Chenoweth, a cabinet-maker by trade and a student of mathematics, arrived in Richmond in 1850 with a model of his bridge packed in his saddle bags. Before the Board of Public Works of the Commonwealth of Virginia, then considering bids for the construction of bridges on the Staunton-Parkersburg Turnpike, Chenoweth assembled his model, 'made of poplar, and nary a nail in 'er.' He suspended the frail-looking toy between two chairs, stood upon it, and challenged his competitors to put their models to the test. That he won the contract through this test has been disputed, but he did build many covered bridges in West Virginia between 1851 and his death in 1884. Modern concrete and steel structures have replaced some, rerouting of highways has relegated others to secondary roads; but almost all lasted through three-quarters of a century of constant service, and those still standing remain sound.

RICH MOUNTAIN BATTLEFIELD, 5 m., was the scene of a decisive battle on July 11, 1861, when Union troops under General George B. McClellan made a flank attack on a fortification here and routed the Confederates with heavy losses. General Robert Garnett, who commanded this force and a larger one at Laurel Hill, had been ordered to stop McClellan's advance, but after this defeat he withdrew both forces, leaving the State, as far as the crest of the Alleghenies, open to Federal troops. The battlefield is now a boulder-strewn hillside; an apple orchard surrounds the gray and sagging ruin of the HART HOUSE, built by Joseph Hart, son of a Signer of the Declaration of Independence, and used as an emergency hospital during the battle that raged around it. The weathered walls are bullet-scarred, and the massive hewn timbers of the ruined barn near by have been marked by souvenir hunters digging leaden slugs from the heavy poplar beams. On one of the boulders is a rough and almost obliterated inscription reputedly left by a wounded soldier in memory of a friend: 'Clay Jackson, shot and killed, 1861.'

A small stone marker, 8.3 m., indicates the SITE OF THE DAVID TYGART CABIN, the first in the valley, built in 1753 when Tygart crossed the mountains with Robert Files, a brother-in-law, who settled on the site of Beverly (see above). The little clearing about the cabin on the river bank later became a burial ground and is now known as HORNBECK CEMETERY, for Benjamin Hornbeck, Revolutionary War soldier, who is buried here with scores of pioneer settlers.

TYGARTS VALLEY HOMESTEADS (L), 11.4 m. (1,957 alt., 900 pop.), one of the three homestead projects undertaken in West Virginia by the Federal Government, was established in 1933 on a 2,883-acre tract. Shutdowns in the lumber mills had impoverished many families engaged in this and allied industries. The project, designed to give these stranded families the security of homes and employment, provides 195 family dwelling units, each with one to three acres of ground. The houses are grouped on three separate tracts surrounded by farm land. Eight types of frame houses have been built and a few brick houses of four, five, and six rooms. Each house has modern plumbing and electricity and a combination garage, vegetable cellar, poultry house, and feed room. Gas and telephone have been installed in some of the units. Fire protection is provided by a volunteer fire department, two new fire engines, and numerous fire hydrants. The trade center has a general store, a craft shop displaying woven articles, a health center, and playgrounds; a community center has been constructed to serve as a public school. The National Youth Administration operates weaving and woodwork shops, and the Work Projects Administration conducts a nursery school. Homesteaders attend religious services at near-by churches.

At present (1941) the homesteaders occupy their houses under a temporary rental agreement, paying from $11.80 to $13.50 monthly against the final purchase price. They derived their income at first from the construction and development of the project. As the site was settled, homesteaders organized the Tygarts Valley Association, which has charge of all industrial enterprises. Chief among these is the dimension-stock lumber mill, designed to employ 90 men and to cut 10,000,000 feet of timber a year, half the annual output of the Monongahela National Forest and of private sources in the region. Another important enterprise is the co-operative farm, on which livestock, feed crops, potatoes, the principal cash crop, are raised. Other co-operative enterprises include a rock and lime quarry employing 30 men, a large potato warehouse, a general store, filling station and garage, restaurant, beauty shop, and barber shop. Homesteaders grow their own vegetables and fruits in individual gardens.

The homesteaders have formed numerous clubs and social organizations; two of these provide recreation and study for adult women; there are two 4-H clubs for boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 18, health and burial associations, a recreational and music organization, which sent a group to the National Folk Festival, and a Fair association, which sponsored the first annual Tygarts Valley Fair in September 1938.

MILL CREEK, 16.5 m. (2,013 alt., 723 pop.), occupies the SITE OF FORT CURRENCE, built in 1774 by William Currence, who operated a gristmill here. The stockade stood a short distance southeast of the present railroad station (R). Currence was killed by Indians at Elkhart (see below) in 1790 while on his way to Fort Hadden.

In HUTTONSVILLE, 17 m. (2,030 alt., 303 pop.), an agricultural village near the head of Tygarts Valley, a ROADSIDE FIRST AID STATION stands at the junction with US 250 (see Tour 22a).

South of Huttonsville, US 219 continues to follow the narrowing Tygarts River Valley.

ELKWATER, 22.8 m. (2,150 alt., 305 pop.), occupies the site of a fort erected about 1774 by the Hadden family. Brisk fighting took place here during the War between the States. A Federal trench, which appears at first glance to be an ordinary drainage ditch, intersects the road near the center of the village; near by (R) is a granite MONUMENT TO COLONEL JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON, aide-de-camp to General Robert E. Lee and grandnephew of George Washington, who was shot from his horse and killed here on September 13, 1861.

At VALLEY HEAD, 31 m. R., is a graveled dirt road to Kumbrabow State Forest (2,400 alt., 91 pop.), headquarters for many fishermen and hunters seeking sport in the Monongahela National Forest.

In the hamlet a ROADSIDE FIRST AID STATION marks the junction with State 15 (see Tour 9).

MINGO, 35.6 m. (2,650 alt., 300 pop.), named for the Mingo Indians who once had a village here, is a widely scattered community with cabins and small houses straggling along the road and back into the hollow between the mountains.

On CHEAT MOUNTAIN (3,478 alt.), 40.8 m., the highway passes through a choppy wilderness of second-growth timber, with the view

The names of many of the Scotch-Irish of this region appear in the history of Otzinachison (the name of the west branch valley) and in Meginises Biographical Annals. Among them are the Armstrongs, Antes, Allens, Bradys, Brysons, Bairds, Crawfords, Campbells, Camerons, Davidsons, Dougals, Elliotts, Fricks, Flemings, Griers, Gambles, Grenoughs, Irwins, Jourdans, McClays, McCormicks, Stewarts, Taggarts, and others.

Crossing the Alleghany mountains and Laurel Hill, the Scotch-Irish spread over Westmoreland, Washington, Fayette, and Allegheny counties; and when the counties west of the Allegheny river were laid off in 1800, they were found already settled there from Beaver to Erie. Even when west of the mountains and dwelling in the valleys running toward the Monongahela and Alleghany rivers, these brave men were still compelled to face the hardships of the wilderness, and the cruel visitations of the Indians. So late as 1782, the valley of Turtle creek was not safe from their barbarous incursions. In Neville B. Craig's "Olden Time," of 1846, is given the narrative of his captivity by James Lyon, then living, and long an honored citizen of Beaver. Taken with his brother when quite young on his father's farm, lying five or six miles from Turtle creek, where the Pittsburg and Greensburg turnpike afterward crossed, his father and sister having been killed and scalped, they were carried into Ohio to a town on White Womans creek, and there compelled to live until restored by the Indians at Fort McIntosh (now Beaver), and then taken home. A slit in an ear was a memento of his captivity.

In Westmoreland and Allegheny many became eminent, such as Alexander Addison, H. H. Breckenridge, James Ross, John Wood, Colonel Gibson, James O'Hara and others. If any one would see the Scotch-Irish in form and feature let him view them in the portraits of their descendants as seen in the history of Washington county. For example, the portraits of William McLain, Robert Stewart, S. N. Proudfit, Walter Craig, William Smith, Parker Reed, John S. Barr, William Lee, and Samuel Barnard. Personally they were hard visaged, angular, square shouldered, stalwart, and generally large men; rough in exterior, strong minded, religious and even severe in disposition.

Warren county, on the New York state line, also furnished a large contingent, who settled on the Conewango and Brokenstraw as early as 1795. Here we discover the names of Miles, Russell, Frew, Marsh, and Jones. Then James Morrison, followed by Barnett, Faulkner, Wilson, Smith, and others. When came the McKenzies, Andrews, Kirks, Kinnear, and Quay.

The event which brought the Scotch-Irish in western Pennsylvania into greatest notoriety was the Whisky Insurrection of 1794. [illegible] all had known from experience or tradition the hardships of the excise duty. Among Irishmen of all persuasions, the killing of an exciseman was considered as scarcely a crime. Even the assembly of Pennsylvania, by a resolution of June 22, 1791, declared the collection of revenue by excise duty subversive of peace, liberty, and the rights of the citizen, and a violation of the fundamental rights of the government. At that early day whisky was the only article commanding cash. The person who may be said to have been the leader in this so-called "rebellion" was David Bradford, a lawyer of Washington, Pennsylvania. He was finally compelled to flee at the coming of Washington, Hamilton, and the militia, leaving his papers in the hands of James Allison, Esquire, who afterward settled in Beaver, and became its leading and honored lawyer.

At his death his descendants thought no benefit would arise from their publication, and the contents of the unopened box remain unknown. Perhaps much valuable matter has thus failed to see the light; yet, on the other hand, much unnecessary harm has been saved.

Judge H. H. Breckenridge attended the meetings of the insurgents, but for the purpose, as was alleged, of preventing extreme measures. He was however strongly opposed to the excise law, and expressed the opinion that the danger lay in the western men swarming over the Susquehanna instead of being repressed. This is seen in his letter to Tench Cox, Esquire, of August 8, 1794. Secretary Hamilton however, excused him, on the plea suggested by Mr. Ross, of his properly intended purpose.

Among the memorable events of the insurrection was the burning of the house of General John Nevelle, the United States inspector and collector of the revenue for western Pennsylvania.

This insurrection, not justified, but in some measure extenuated by the severity of the excise law, is a striking evidence of the indomitable character of the Scotch-Irish, and of their courage when any measure, believed by them to be hostile to liberty and good government, is attempted to be forced upon them. Indeed, it required the militia of three states, Pennsylvania, Virginia and New Jersey, under the command of President Washington in person, accompanied by Secretary Hamilton, to subdue their determined opposition. My grandfather, Major Richard Howell, then governor of New Jersey, commanded the contingent of that state, camping at McNairs, near the present town of Wilkinsburg.

To this race the state owes much of its progress in the West to wealth, civilization, and republican institutions. It was only in the Irish of that day. Among them, George Calhoun, [illegible] Galloway, Andreas Lycon, David Huddleson, James and Thomas Parker, Owen McKeeb, William White, John McClure, Richard Kirkpatrick, James Murray, John Scott, John Cowan, Simon Girtee, John Killough, James Blair, Moses Moore, Andrew and Arthur Dunlap, Andrew and Alexander McCartie, David Lewis, Felix Doyle, Robert Baker, John Armstrong and John Potts. At Big Cove were found Andrew Donaldson, John McClelland, Charles Stewart, James Downey, John McMean, Robert Kendall, Samuel Brown, Roger Murphy, Robert Smith, William Dickey, William Milliron, William Cowall, James Campbell, William Carroll, John Martin, John Morrison, John McCallin, James and John Wilson. These names strike me forcibly, as many are names (christian and surname) of persons I knew in my early practice in Beaver county. Doubtless these were descendants. In the proceedings against the Irish many cabins were burned. Hence the name of the "Burnt Cabins" a locality formerly well known. These troubles led to the treaty of 1754 at Albany, which however was disputed by the Indians and gave no satisfaction, and Juniata valley, especially its upper portion, became the scene of many Indian incursions and barbarities.

Among the early settlers of the valley was George Woods, once captured and given to an old Indian, who was unable to control him, and finally consented to let him go. He became a surveyor, finally settling in Bedford. In 1784, he laid out Pittsburg, on one of the manors retained by the Penns, under the order of Tench Francis, their agent and attorney. His son John Woods, became one of Pittsburg's most eminent lawyers, and a daughter married James Ross, also eminent, and a senator of the United States.

Aughwick, a valley looking out upon the Juniata, between 1750 and 1755, brought into notice a remarkable character, Captain Jack, known as the "Black Rifle," or "wild hunter of the Juniata," a giant in stature and strength, active, skillful, brave and familiar with the woods.

Late in an evening of the summer of 1752, returning to his cabin on the Juniata he found it in ruins, and his wife and two children victims of the tomahawk and scalping knife. Prostrated at first, soon desolation gave place to revenge, and raising a small band he pursued the savage marauders of the valley from time to time, like a hound on the panther's track. Many a warrior, overtaken by his merciless and unflagging pursuit, fell before his unerring rifle, and the scalp-lock hung from his girdle. Many whites, too, were saved by him from a dreadful death. The offered services of himself and his band were refused by the foolhardy Braddock, whose disaster followed his ill-timed rejection [illegible] (whose real name seems to be unknown) was the foundation of a historical tale intensely interesting, told by a Pittsburger, the late Charles McKnight. Its leading scenes revolve around Fort Duquesne and the head of the Ohio.

Another man of mark of Scotch-Irish descent came into public view from the same valley, Colonel George Croghan, Indian trader and agent, often employed by the proprietaries. His conferences with the Indians at Logstown in 1751, Fort Pitt in 1759, and Redstone in 1768, and his journals of these events remain as lasting memorials of his strong character and attachment to the province.

Probably the most beautiful valley lying on the Juniata, looking out upon Lewistown and extending many miles westward, is the Kishicoquillas. A varied scene of sun and shade, prairie and stream, carpeted with grass and flowers, intermingled with trees and shrubs, it was the favorite haunt of the Redmen until reached by the Scotch-Irish, who soon dispossessed its early owners and made it their own. It is celebrated as the early home of Logan, the Mingo chief and white man's friend, but who was afterward found on the Ohio, where all his kindred were murdered by the whites, making him an enemy; and whose speech was made famous by Jefferson, telling the world of his wrongs, and that not a drop of his blood ran in the veins of a single human being.

Among the early Scotch-Irish settlers about Lewistown and westward, were the McClays, McNitts, Milliken, Larkins, Wilson, Bratton, and Stockpole. Farther on and nearer Standing Stone (now Huntington), were Elliott, Hayne, Cluggage, McMurtrie, Anderson, McGuire, McElevey, McCormick, Donnelly and others. Still westward were the Caldwells, Tussey, Ricketts, Bell, Travis, Dean, Donaldson, Mitchell and many others.

Besides those on the Juniata, many Scotch-Irish ascended the Susquehanna, and were found in Northumberland county, some around Fort Augusta (now Sunbury). Then, ascending the west branch, they made their way westward and northward, facing the hardships of those regions, which were many and cruel. Others found their way into the present counties of Clinton and Centre, and spread over Lycoming. All this region was infested by the northern Indians of the Six Nations, under the influence of the French and then of the English, who came down bringing desolation upon the unprotected settlers, many of whom became victims of the rifle and scalping knife. Especially numerous were these descents during the Revolutionary war. The principal incursion was that of 1778 (known as the "great run away,") when all the settlers of that region fled.

unseen wings. May it be a great incentive to noble endeavor and useful achievement."

A sycamore tree has been planted to the rear of the monument. The exactness of the site of the original tree is verified by a tradition in the Wynne family.

Quaint Wynne Home Near the Marker

A visit to the quaint Wynne homestead was one of the delightful features of the day, and here the guests were welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. George Wynne. The century-old house is of sturdy oak and ash logs, with an L extension, and the typical office nearby, built of cedar logs. The quaint stairway in the enclosed central porch and the woodwork are attractive features, and the furniture includes beautiful old specimens which would delight a collector.

The spacious house was first erected by a stock company as an inn, and a year or so later it became the residence of Col. Alfred R. Wynne, one of the original owners. Colonel Wynne married Almira Winchester, daughter of Gen. James Winchester, Revolutionary soldier and soldier in the War of 1812, close friend of Andrew Jackson, and this pioneer family included fourteen children. The property remains today in the possession of the Wynne family.

In the yard the stately trees include a hickory which was planted by Colonel Wynne on the day of the death of Andrew Jackson to commemorate the great soldier President.

SOUTHWEST POINT, KINGSTON, TENNESSEE

Some historical facts gleaned from the following sources:

1. G. F. Mellen, miscellaneous papers, Vol. 2, page 73.
2. Wells, Roane County.
3. Williams. Early Travels in the Tennessee Country.
4. The Knoxville Gazette.

In 1791-1793 Gen. John Sevier established a fort on the Clinch River at the present site of Kingston. The main fort was near the famous Clark Springs which now supplies the town with water. General Sevier called the military post Southwest Point.

A detachment of United States soldiers, under command of Capt. Abraham McClellan, was stationed there to protect the settlers and travelers from the Indians. Thomas Brown was the first quartermaster; Dr. Daniel Rather was the surgeon.

The troops were stationed there until 1817. It was an important place on the frontier. Those who went from Knoxville and Knox County to the Cumberland settlements were accompanied by a detachment of soldiers from *Southwest Point. All that country was then a wilderness and was Indian territory.

* Rob thinks this is now Ft. Duquesne - I don't know.

In 1792 Capt. Samuel Hadley, at the head of his soldiers, went forth from Southwest Point and was captured and imprisoned by Indians but later returned.

William Lea was captured but escaped August, 1802. Abraham Byrd was wounded. Samuel Russell, bearing dispatches from the Cumberland settlements to William Blount at Knoxville was wounded by the Indians at Southwest Point; the surgeon, Dr. Daniel Rather, dressed his wounds.

In 1794 Thomas Sharp Spencer started from Southwest Point to Nashville with money and other valuables and was murdered on the Cumberland road at Spencers Hill.

On March 6, 1796, Andrew Michaux, botanist and agent of Genet, stopped at Southwest Point on his way to Knoxville.

In 1797 Capt. John Wade was commandent.

In 1797 Louis Phillippe, Duke of Orleans, afterwards King of France, and his brother, passed through and were entertained at Southwest Point. The commandant had bread baked for them.

In 1799 Capt. Thomas Butler was in command at Southwest Point.

In 1799 the Tennessee legislature passed an act to establish a town at Southwest Point upon the land of Robert King. The town was to be called Kingston. At this time Davis' school for Cherokee Indians was in operation at Southwest Point.

In 1801 Roane County was created.

September 21, 1807, the General Assembly of Tennessee met at Kingston. Thus Kingston, formerly Southwest Point, was for a time the capital of the state.

John Riley was chief of the Cherokee Indians in this territory; he is buried in an unmarked grave by the side of Highway No. 58. This highway runs through the old Hiawassee Purchase and was Cherokee country.

Kingston was a trading post and was on a beaten trail from New York and Washington to Texas.

ROBERSON CEMETERY

This family cemetery, in Warren County, Kentucky, is on the Cemetery Road, near Hardcastle, and is directly opposite the "Church of God". This has been a large cemetery with many fieldstones, several bases for monuments with no stones. You can also see that two crypts have been here, but are now gone. The graveyard is now being used as a dumping ground, and they have taken bricks (probably from the crypts) and fieldstones, and fixed a place to burn trash right in the middle of the cemetery.

THE RUSSELL MAP OF KENTUCKY

This map, originally produced in 1794, was the first good map of Kentucky and the adjoining territories. It shows seven subdivisions of the three original Kentucky counties—Lincoln, Fayette and Jefferson. The Russell map was republished in 1795 with slight revision by John Reed in New York, but without author's name.

Preface

Gillmore--Carter and Allied Families

By

Helen Gilmore Smith Thomas and Dolly Reed Gilmore Barmann

One of the cherished memories of our early childhood is that of the family gathered around an open wood fire; mother busy with a bit of knitting or mending and father peering over the top of the current newspaper, telling tales of 19th century life in Kentucky.

The cold winter nights in that old farmhouse in Allen county, Ky., were made warm as four of us younger children (there were nine of us) popped corn over tongues of flame that licked at a hickory backlog in the huge chimney.

From these tales we learned our parents were 16 and 20 years of age on their wedding day in 1884. On that day our mother, Lula Carter, a brunette was clad in a blue silk hooped dress, containing 16 yards, with a curl down her back and our father, James Howard Gillmore, wore a little waxed moustache, a pair of red leather boots and a derby on his blonde head. After getting the consent of both parents they decided to elope. Accompanied by Clara White and Porter Davidson, they drove in horse drawn buggies from Warren Co., Ky. to Suga Grove, Tenn., where they were married by Rev. Fisk. They spent their wedding night in Scottsville, Kentucky, arriving at the Gilmore home next day where an "Infair" (reception) was held for them.

We feel sure they were chivareed, an old custom in Kentucky, consisting of much ringing of bells and other noise making devices which lasts for an hour or so, when the revelers are brought into the house for refreshments-otherwise the groom is ridden around the countryside on a fence rail.

They built on a hill a short distance from the Gillmore place in Warren county, Ky. The site was known as the "Gilmore farm" chosen because of a natural source of water--an absolute necessity then--a large spring which ran into Barren River.

The Carter family, lived some three miles away. Mother's father gave her a young mare when she married. She often forded raging Barren river riding the mare, Dinah, on a side saddle, which is no mean feat in itself, with a child on her lap and another on a pillion behind her. Once I was telling this story to a friend who rudely brought me up with--"Was she trying to drown some of you?" She crossed that river in every conceivable manner; swimming her mare across; wading it barefoot at low ebb; walking across on ice and paddling across in a canoe.

We still remember the home spun remedies she used in our childhood and are still thankful that she didn't make us wear a string around our necks with a lump of asafetida tied to it to ward off colds. Mullin and vinegar poultices were plastered to sprained ankles; soot from the chimney was dabbed onto cuts to stop bleeding; mutton tallow was applied for chapped skin and abrasions; sassafras tea thinned the blood in the springtime; sulphur and molasses was used for the same reason. Nightshade mashed in thick cream killed poison ivy, which works as well today. Catnip tea was given to the babies for hives.

After the large timber and underbrush were cleared from the building site the bride with the help of "Uncle Tite," the son of Mammy Charity, an old slave--selected sugar maple trees from the woods and planted them in the yard. Nellie, Lester, Myrtle and Paul were born here. The first complete sentence that Lester made concerned these maple trees--"When can we shake the sugar down?" he inquired of his startled mother.

Several of these trees are standing today, as well as a row of black walnut trees marking the boundary of the original Gillmore farm. This row of trees was planted by Andrew Jackson Gillmore (our grandfather), who himself is "Planted" in Ravenna, Texas, Fannin County.

Our small Irish daddy, much loved by his doting sisters and mother, told this story. One day he tried in vain to get his sisters to carry the lunch basket to school, which they always did. Rebecca said that it was time he carried the basket. "That's all right Becky," he told her, "none of you love me anymore so I'll hang myself." Taking a long wild grapevine growing by the roadside he began looping it around his neck. Rebecca burst into tears and ran to pull the grapevine from his neck. Of course, she took the basket and he was never asked to carry it again.

The spelling of the name Gillmore has long caused confusion. Some of the old wills spelled it Gillmore and Gilmore in the same will. Our father preferred two l's, our youngest brother spelled his name with two, our oldest brother and most of us use only one. We must confess that we are rugged individualists. Some of us are fighting Democrats and some suffering Republicans. We come by it rightly. Our mother's father was a lieutenant in the Union Army and our father's father sent a slave as his substitute to the Confederate Army.

Our calm wise mother taught us love of every living thing and fear of nothing. She would smile and say "We Carters never had an argument over spelling our name. It is too simple." We wonder what she would think of her Carter name in an old English record spelled "Jocius Caretarius, County Oxford, 1273 A.D." Or does she know!

After father's mother died he became restless and moved to a farm in Allen county on Trammel Fork Creek where our brother, Charlie, was born. The family lived in Allen henceforth except the year of 1896, when they went to Warren County long enough for the sixth child, Helen, to be born in a little log cabin. Helen was a child given to surprises, when she was less than a year old, she arose to her feet and never crawled again. Since that time, or a trifle later perhaps she has been "rising and doing good" for Allen and Warren county. Our daddy had nicknames for most of us. He dubbed Myrtle "Razor edge", Helen he called "Bear," Lottie "my pretty girl," and Dolly "Splinters" who got into everything, or was accused of everything she didn't. After Helen was born, the family moved back to Allen county and Lottie was born in "the house in the woods", Dolly was born " on a bluff overlooking Trammel Fork Creek" and Lee, a beautiful baby boy, was born making the ninth child. The book "Cheaper by the Dozen," hadn't been written at that time.

Our father's fondest hope was that he and mother could celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, which they did in 1934. Relatives from all over the country came, as well as friends. Conveyances ranging from a DC-3 to a bob-tail mule hitched to a buckboard brought them to Allen County, Kentucky, to the oak clustered farm house on Route three, West of Scottsville. They brought food to

Of the ancestry of Patrick Gillmore we know nothing certain. Dr. Georg West Diehl, genealogical authority for the central valley of Virginia, and author o numerous articles on local history of Rockbridge County, Virginia, offers the following:

"Thinking of the Gilmore clan, I offer the data that the home of the Gilmores was Craigmiller Castle in Scotland. Before the siege of Londonberry. the family had migrated to Ireland in time to have a part in that historical event About 1730, a James Gilmore came to America, settled in Pennsylvania for about seven years, and then migrated with his family to Augusta County, Virginia. He and his wife, the former Martha Denniston, were the parents of eleven children, viz: James, Thomas, John, Samuel, Mary, Margaret, Joseph, Isabella, Agnes, Eleanor and William.

James and Martha Gilmore are buried in the cemetery of High Bridge Church, near Natural Bridge, Virginia.

I cite this because it could be possible for your Patrick Gilmore to be a son of one of the above named sons of James." We are working on this theory presently, but have come to no conclusion at this time. (Dec., 1961) Foot Note: One William Gillmore died in 1818 Montgomery County, Kentucky. His wife's name was Martha.

Patrick himself

The first account we have of Patrick Gillmore is that he was born 1753 in Augusta County, Va. His wife was named Martha.

He served in the Illinois Regiment of the American Revolution from Virginia. "From Illinois Papers in State Archives in Virginia. A Payroll for Captain John Kennedy's company of Militia for Kentucky county under command of Col. George Rogers Clark, ordered into service by Col. John Bowman from the 6th day of July to the 20th of Aug. 1780; Patrick Gilmore, amount of pay 3 pounds, 1 sh. 4 pence, 46½ days. William Moore, Lieut. sworn to before John Bowman, --I do certify that I gave orders for Captain John Kennedy to march under the command of Col. Benjamin Logan to join Col. Clark on an expedition against the Indians. John Bowman, Lieut. of Kentucky County." (The Illinois Papers refer to the muster rolls of the Militia and regular of the Illinois Department of Virginia when Illinois was a county of Virginia) and are in the Virginia State Library at Richmond.

A record of Patrick Gillmore's military service, state of North Carolina, Department of Archives and History. "For sundries furnished and cash paid the Militia of North Carolina, Virginia, and South Carolina, as allowed by a Committee of Claims at Halifax, N.C. October 1779, R. 23. 329 to Patrick Gilmore for Bounty due him P Voucher 409, 52-16-0. "From accounts of United States with N.C. War of Revolution, page 13 , Book A. Raleigh, N. Carolina.

Patrick Gilmore bought land in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina in 1793 from Joseph Wilson, on Duck Creek; deed recorded in Deed Book 14, 1791-1794, page 396. N.C. records show Patrick Gillmore living in District #7, in the N/W corner of Mecklenburg County, directly sought of Iredell County, N.C.. The 1790 census shows Patrick Gillmore here with seven sons. The 1800 census lists him with four sons in Mecklenburg County, N.C., with William Gillmore living next place.

Patrick paid taxes in Warren Co., Ky., in 1809; the same year that his son, Andrew H. Gillmore paid taxes in Warren County, Ky. Patrick Gillmore and his old negro servant were exempt from tax paying Oct., 6, 1818 in Warren Co.,Ky. and in 1822 Patrick Gilmore Sr., was Excluded from working on the Road in Warren county, Kentucky.

Patrick Gillmore died Feb., 2, 1824, (Order Book # E. Warren county, Ky.) and is buried in Gilmore cemetery South of Barren River about eight miles from Bowling Green, Ky. Patrick's wife, Martha, was living with son Joseph Gilmore, census of 1830 Warren Co., Ky. The 1840 census gives Martha, living with son, Andrew H. Gillmore.

Patrick Gilmore was born 1753 Augusta County, Va., m. circa 1772 Martha (name unknown) Issue.

I. Andrew H. Gillmore b. 1772 Mecklenburg Co., N.C. m.c. 1803, Margaret Price, who was born in 1781 Mecklenburg Co., N.C. Margaret Price Gilmore died Feb., 5, 1827, and is buried in Gilmore cemetery on Harry Brunson's farm, Cemetery road, Warren County, Kentucky.

On April 30, 1857, Andrew H. Gillmore sold his farm to his second son, James Lewis Gilmore, and went to Empire Township, Illinois, where he built a house a few rods from his fourth son, Thomas Davidson Gilmore, and lived there to the ripe age of 98 years. (History of McLean Co., Ill.) His fifth child, Lucinda Gilmore born Jan., 4, 1817 Warren Co., Ky. evidently went with her father to Illinois, as there she married, June 6, 1860, Joseph Kershaw, Widower.

Thomas Davidson Gilmore (page 882) McLean Co., History, is found in Empire Township, farmer, Sec., 3, P.O. LeRoy; born in Warren Co., near Bowling Green, Nov., 18, 1814. He was 22 when he emigrated to Illinois and located.; after learning the trade of blacksmith in the shop of his father. He drove his team of oxen all the way from Ky., bringing with him his wife and two children, and all of his property, which consisted of two yoke of oxen and wagon, one horse, saddle and bridle, his blacksmith tools, a few household goods and $4. in cash—the latter he invested in pork, obtaining one hundred pounds. He put up a log cabin with puncheon floor, clapboard door, with wooden hinges; a raccoon bedstead, with one leg, in which poles were inserted, the other ends being fastened in holes made in the side and end logs of the house; boards were laid accross from the side rail and upon one of the side logs of the house. when the rude structure was complete. He made stools, which were used for chairs, and a clapboard table. He labored from four a.m. until 9 or 10 at night in his blacksmith's shop, and then attended his chores. His father ANDREW H. GILMORE, was born in North Carolina, and emigrated to Kentucky when quite young, where he lived until he emigrated to Illinois in 1857, where he purchased land and built a house but a few rods from his son, in which he lived until his decease, which occurred Oct., 17, 1870, at the ripe old age of 98 years. Thomas Davidson Gilmore married Matilda Savage in Warren Co., Ky., Jan., 2, 1834. They had three children Mrs. Gilmore died Oct., 5, 1839, and he married Mary J. Brannaman Dec., 11, 1840. She was daughter of Mary Hulderman and David Brannaman of Va."

"Lucinda Gilmore (page 886 McLean Co., History) was born Jan., 4, 1817, in Warren Co., Ky. daughter of Andrew H. Gilmore, married Joseph Kershaw, widower June 6, 1860. She came to Ill. in 1858 with her father. Mr. Kershaw married first, Hannah Robinson in England Sept., 3, 1823, where she was born Dec., 10, 1799, and she d. March 2, 1859 leaving five children."

WILL OF JOSEPH GILMORE WARREN COUNTY, KENTUCKY.

I, Joseph Gilmore Senior of the county of Warren and State of Kentucky, do make this my last Will and testament, viz. I hereby appoint my son John H. Gilmore my executor.

My will is that my son John H. Gilmore shall have all of my plantation and land upon which I now live except fifty acres of the same upon the northern side of the same. It is further my will that the said John H. Gilmore shall have all of my personal estate without reserve. It is also my will that my son John John H. Gilmore shall provide for and take care of my wife during her lifetime.

It is my will that my son Francis Gilmore shall have fifty acres of my tract of land to be taken off of the Northern side of said land. It is further my will that my Executor shall pay all of my debts out of my personal property. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal on the 29th day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty six.

WILL OF JOHN H. GILMORE 27 Sept., 1847 Proved by Worley and Osborn, ordered to be recorded.

Know all men by these presents that I JOHN H. GILMORE of the county of Warren and State of Kentucky do hereby make this my last will and testament; viz; I hereby appoint my wife Caroline Gilmore and Benjamin Kite of this county and state aforesaid as my administrators to this my will.--My will is that all of my debts be paid; my will is that my wife keep or cause to be kept my mother, Elizabeth Gilmore, as long as she may live, and provide herewith the necessary comforts and necessaries of live.--My will is that after paying my debts my wife aforesaid, shall have and hold all of my estate both personal and real as long as she may live or remain a widow,--that is to say all of my household and kitchen furniture, farming utensils, horses, hogs, cattle, sheep, etc., and also all of my land. My will is that if my administrators shall think, at any time, that it would be to the interest of my widow and children to sell my property or land, or both, and put the proceeds in money out at interest, I hereby authorize and direct them to do so without a decree of court. My will further is, that after the death of my widow, all of my estate or the proceeds thereof as above shall be equally divided betwixt my children. In testimony whereof I hereby assign my name on the seventh day of May in the year of our Lord 1847. Signed: John H. Gilmore. In presence of us. S.M. Worley, Nancy Kite and Thomas Corn. (produced in court and proved by the oaths of S.M. Worley and John W. Osborn, Recorded accordingly.)

GLASSCOCK--JUSTICE--NANNEY EXCURSUS

From research by Sallie Glasscock Giberson and many others including th late Kenyon Stevenson, we have been able to locate the Glasscock Coat of Arm and the first home of the family in Richmond Co., Va.

The name Glasscock is derived from various sources; the one having th greatest appeal is that of Glasscote; a house of glass, or a house filled with glas windows.

Peter Glasscock Jr., fought in the Revolutionary War from North Carolin in 1781. His father Peter Glasscock Sr., was a road viewer, equivalent in ou present terms to engineer or surveyor, in Virginia during the American Revolutio These services entitle their descendants to membership in DAR.

Thomas Glasscock the emigre m.. June 16, 1643 Jean Just (Joust) (Jovett in London, England, and migrated to Virginia with three sons; Gregory, Thoma and John. Later he bought 200 acres of land for 6,000 pounds of merchantable tobacco. He built a home on his plantation and called it "Indian Banks." Th house is believed to have been erected in 1696, as under a window on either sid of the main entrance this date has been found. The custom in building in thos days was to put the date of construction either in that place or on the chimneys.

Box hedges, a formal English garden, and old trees grace the side of the lawn which is surrounded by the farm which, in turn, is surrounded by water on three sides. The lower part of the exterior walls is 26 inches thick; above the are 18 inches thick. Throughout the timber is hand hewn white oak. It is dove tailed at all joints and in other places held by blacksmith nails.

Clay packed in open spaces in the interior walls gives excellent insula tion and air-conditioning. Planks six inches wide make the floors.

There are numerous decorative features throughout the house, many pan neled doors, HL hinges, original locks, a curved chimney in the main living room, built in window seats. Eighteen pane windows, five sided dining and living room and attractive mantels in every room, make the place "different."

Of course, the negroes thereabout say, "it's haunted." Strange sights and sounds are rumored. Footsteps ascend the stairs then descend and are heard no more.

A pistol shot that goes off in a certain corner, once a year. The ghost legend? Yes, it is a lovely young woman in white who returns to a special bedroom.

Foundations of the original kitchen, the ice-house and the well remain. A tunnel leading from the house to the nearby Lancaster Creek is believed to exist. Here a boat could have been hidden, giving the people a chance to escape Indians and enable them to get to the larger settlements down the river. One fact leading to the belief that this tunnel exists, is that traffic passing a certain point where the tunnel is supposed to have been, causes hollow vibrations to resound in a living room fireplace. This fireplace is suspect, for there is a good sized space in it that is unaccounted for.

The owner of Indian Banks, in 1957, Brigadier General Philip C. Wehle, gave us permission to visit the place; therefore, our good friend Lt. Col. Lee Snapp drove there from Washington, D.C. to make pictures.

The handsome old brass door knocker and handle are in good working condition, as is the house.

or the other reasons, they were called Kirbys, spelled in that day Kyrkbys, meaning "by the church."

The Kirby Arms are blazoned--Argent, two bars, gules on a canton of the second a cross moline or.

From "A corner in Ancestors" by Frances Cowles we Quote: "The fourth Kirby family in the new world was established by Thomas Kirby, who was living in Charles Parish, York county, as early as 1645. Thomas' wife, Mary died in 1666. He died June 20, 1668. His will mentions his only son, Robert, whom he wishes to have taught reading and writing.

Robert, the son mentioned in Thomas Kirby's will, was born in 1662, so he was only six years old at the time of his father's death. Robert married first, Mary--2nd. he married Catherine Tompkins. By his first wife he had a son Thomas and by his second wife 12 more children." (Thomas Kirby's Will, York county, Deeds, Orders, Wills, etc. Book 4, 1665-1672, Richmond Co., Va.)

RENICK EXCURSUS

One authority has it that the Renicks came originally from Northern Germany and were the Rhinewicks who left Germany during the Reformation to escape religious persecution.

The branch of the Renick family presented here is a direct line descending from Thomas Renick, wife unknown presently, this his son William Renick was born in 1704 in Ireland. They came to America, settling in Paxtang Township, Lancaster County, Pa. On March 27, 1733 William Renick held a warrant for 326 acres of land in this place.

William Renick, wife Mary, died intestate in the township of Paxton in the county of Lancaster and Province of Pa. in 1741; possessed of a tract of land known by the name of William Renick's place, lying in Paxton township, bounded by land of Thomas Dugan on the east, by Patrick Montgomery on the North, and by George Fleming on the West, including a tract of 250 acres of land called Pollock's tract. He named his wife, Mary and heirs--seven children. Mary Renick died 1747.

Henry Renick b. 1725 m. Martha Wilson; Thomas Renick b. 1730 m. Jean Clarke (correction by Dorothy Renich Luttrell) Margaret b. 1733. Resided in Cumberland Co., Pa.; Alexander Renick b. 1736 m. Ester McKenney, (sisterof Robert McKenney); Alexander served in Pa. Troops during Revolutionary War, died of Camp fever. Children named in Will Book C. page 44, Cumberland Co., Pa. will dated Jan. 29, 1777, five children-- Mary, under 14 yrs. Samuel Renick, Guildford Township, apptd. her guardian; John under 14 yrs. John McKinney, guardian; William, under 14 Samuel Renick apptd. guardian Robert, John McKenny, apptd. guardian; and Alexander, John McKenney apptd. guardian from Letterkenny Township.

Samuel Renick was the 5th child born in 1739, of Guldford Township, Cumberland Co., Pa. wife "Nancy" Ann, surname unknown, Moved to Augusta Co., Va. sold land there, later moving to Barren County, Kentucky, in 1796, after his son Robert Renick was accidentally killed in Barren Co., in Sept. 1796. Samuel Renick fought in American Revolution, Cumberland Co., Militia, 1779, in Capt. Wm. Long's Company. Issue--five children: 1. Robert Renick b.
